FRIDAY, MAY 1, 1868.

MR. HALIBURTON, we are glad to notice, has received a most cordial reception in Toronto. Both the Leader and Globe have referred to his lecture in the most flattering terms, and we have no doubt but that his efforts toward the establishment of more intimate commercial relations between the Provinces will have a happy influence in tending to consolidate the Union.

THE melancholy "NOTMAN case" has terminated by the sentence of Mr. ROBERT NOTMAN to ten years' imprisonment in the Penitentiary. The Montreal Gazette, in a most judiciously conceived and well written article, calls this a "severe sentence," but we think Judge DRUMMOND has done a signal service to society and the cause of morality by the apparent severity with which he has visited the abominable atrocity so plainly brought home to the guilty man. Our readers need hardly be reminded of the tragic end of Dr. PATTON, a young man of great promise and high professional standing, who in an evil hour lent himself to the devilish purpose of destroying human life ere yet it had seen the light. How much of future honor and usefulness was blasted by that one false step, who can ever tell? Poisoned by his own hand, he quitted the scene before the success of his misapplied science was made manifest, and now the principal actor in this very sad drama—he upon whose shoulders lies the great burthen of the moral guilt of the whole transaction—is consigned to the felon's prison for a period not too long to mark society's disapprobation of such an abominable crime.

Of all the importations from Yankeedom, "the science of abortion," if so we may term it, is the most horribly revolting, and we earnestly pray that whether attempted in or out of the marital state, there ever may be found throughout the length and breadth of the Dominion juries to convict, and judges to visit with condign punishment, the guilty wretches who lend themselves to the perpetration of a crime so revolting to every instinct of humanity, and abhorrent to all the inspirations of religion.

WE must enter our protest against the pretension to broad and liberal argument assumed by the objectors to the remission of the duty on breadstuffs. It is impossible to disguise the fact that Ontario only and exclusively was benefited by the duty; and that that benefit—at the outside something about three per cent. ad valorem—was utterly insignificant compared with the mischief which the impost inflicted upon other portions of the Dominion. The imposition of this duty in 1866 may have been judiciously conceived, and we believe that up to a certain point its effects were beneficial; but on the other hand, no one can shut his eyes to the broad fact that the bread of the people of two, if not three, of the Provinces, was being taxed for the benefit of one. The rate was, it is true, but a very small one, yet it was amply sufficient to incur the odium which attaches to any tax on an essential necessity of life, and therefore, we think, that in the present circumstances of the Dominion, every consideration of sound policy points to the wisdom of its repeal.

Were the almost parallel case of Nova Scotia's staple—coal—to be fenced in by a protective duty, it is not at all improbable that those who speak the loudest in favor of the bread tax, would be the foremost in advocating free fuel. Their "broad views" would then receive a still greater expansion, and the manufacturing industries of the west would be pathetically commiserated on account of the increased cost imposed upon one of their most important elements. For our own part, we are glad that the Government has repealed this odious impost, and confident that the Legislature will sustain them in doing so by an overwhelming majority. It may be that the discriminating legislation of the United States will place our millers at some slight disadvantage with theirs; but even so, it does not follow that a special interest should be built up at the expense of the whole community. We cannot see the advantage of putting a premium upon the grinding of American wheat in Canada, when that premium entails an additional expense upon all the consumers of flour. Nor is it very plain to us that any ultimate advantage is conferred upon the Canadian agriculturist by a duty on grain, seeing that both Canada and the United States grow more than they consume, and that therefore the price is regulated by the outside markets of the world.

THE following letter is translated from Le Canada, of the 20th April. We invite public attention to it as being a fair statement of the consequences of the present rage for retrenching the salaries of the subordinate officers in the public service:

RETRENCHMENT.

SIR,—Were the position of the Government employee, with its attendant annoyances and disappointments—its miseries great and small—thoroughly made known, many who are now prone to indulge in envious feelings in relation to those who fill such situations, would probably hesitate before devoting their lives to the service of the State.

A competent public officer must possess a fund of instruction and knowledge, the fruit of long years of labor, and this accumulation of acquired knowledge, being of a special nature, cannot be utilized by him elsewhere than in the public offices and for the public benefit.

After having labored for twelve, fifteen, or twenty years, for a miserable salary of from £150 to £200; after having expended all the energy of his youth in the public service; after having for twenty years been trundled, at the end of every fourth year, from one extremity of the country to the other; after having established for himself a home—relying upon his vested rights—just at the moment when he stands most in need of all his salary and of all his energy, to meet the growing necessities of his family, he is told one fine day:—"My dear fellow, to conduce to my greater advantage, it is necessary that I should turn you and your's into the street!" or what comes to the same thing, "I want an eighth of your salary!" And this, in political parlance, is called economy! Under such circumstances what is the employee to do? If he is so situated that he cannot speak out, he can but pray for mercy, and even this is, not seldom, forbidden him. To hold up to view the whole injustice of such an abuse of power, I may be permitted by the following statement of the indispensable expenditure of a public officer residing at the seat of Government, to shew how difficult it is with a salary of £300, or even £400 a year, to make both ends meet.

Let us take for example an average household: father, mother, five children and one servant; eight persons in all:

Rent, not of a comfortable house, for that is far beyond our means, but of a house at the lowest....	36	0	0
Municipal and school taxes........	9	0	0
Advanced education of one child..	30	0	0
Elementary education of three others at $1 per month each...	9	0	0
Servant's wages at $4 per month	12	0	0
At least from 16 to 20 cords of wood will be consumed during the year, say 18 cords at $4....	18	0	0
House-keeping cannot be estimated at less than five pence a meal, or one shilling and three pence a day: seven persons for one year at this rate..........	159	13	9
Clothing of seven persons, everything included, cannot, without the strictest economy, be confined to £10 each, say.......	70	0	0
Lest all should be lost and the whole family turned without clothing into the street, fire insurance will entail the expenditure of	3	15	0
Water, without being by any means good, is costly in Ottawa: say for the year.	5	0	0
Repairs to furniture, &c.	10	0	0
The cost of light during the year will amount to at least........	4	0	0
The doctor and the apothecary will not fail to get out of you at least an annual sum of...........	10	0	0
Urgent family necessities rendering necessary an unimportant journey, say to Quebec or Montreal, or even the receiving of a flying visit, will entail an increased expenditure of...........	10	0	0
Unforeseen expenditure, such as subscription to churches, charities, or public institutions, &c....	10	0	0

Is there, I ask, anything exaggerated in this statement, and has not everything been placed at the lowest figure? Now, say if we can with any reason, be reproached with failing to lay aside any savings, our average salaries barely amounting to £300 a year.

I can easily understand that persons residing in the country should consider a salary of from £300 to £400, an exorbitant one. A person in such a position will say to himself: I spend hardly £150 or £200, and why should public officers spend more? They might, indeed, keep their expenditure within that limit, if they were not compelled to reside at the capital, and in this the whole difference lies. In the country a good house can be rented for £12 or £15; water costs nothing; wood may be had for one dollar or two dollars a cord, and all other articles in proportion. The consequence is that in the country it is possible to live better with £200 a year, than at the capital with £100.

I commend these plain but stubborn facts to the kindly notice of all those who take an interest in our case.

A GOVERNMENT EMPLOYE.

THE following interesting letter from our friend "Unionist," on "the state of affairs in Nova Scotia," has been for sometime on hand, but pressure of other matter has heretofore prevented our giving it publicity. In connection with the recent decision of the House of Commons on the question of "Repeal," we think it will be read with general satisfaction throughout this portion of the Dominion:

To the Editor of THE TIMES.

SIR,—I need not tell you that the subject which has been engrossing the public mind, during the past week, to the exclusion of all other topics, is the fearful event which has deprived British America of one of its most brilliant orators and able statesmen. Men of all classes and creeds speak strongly and think deeply on the subject. Even those who have been in the habit—some in the press, and others in the Legislature—of hurling their little envenomed darts against him are now silent, or have the manliness at last to acknowledge his merits, when they consider the cause and circumstances of his death. It is not the intention of the present writer to pronounce any eulogy on Mr. McGee—that is now being done by all British America, from Sarnia to this Island forming as it were a breakwater to the Atlantic waves. Those who have had the privilege, at one time and another, of hearing the sallies of his genial wit, or his chaste eloquence, are not likely ever to forget that distinguished statesman and orator. His career in Canada was not long compared with that of other men still in public life; but short as it was, he succeeded in winning a reputation of a most exalted character. The speeches and writings he has left behind him, is an inestimable legacy to British America must always be deeply studied—the sound constitutional doctrines and the sagacious maxims they contain—which doctrines and maxims were the results of his matured judgment and his ripe intellect—must continue to exercise no unimportant influence upon the mind of the present and many future generations in the new Dominion.

No doubt the circumstance of Mr. McGee's death must have an important influence upon the feelings of the people of the Provinces—especially upon Nova Scotia. Men cannot be so blind as to continue to refuse to see the evil consequences that must result from any agitation that is likely to end in disorder or rebellion. It has been said, time and again, for some months past, not only "on the stump," but in the halls of the Legislature, where men are commonly expected to speak with a certain degree of deliberation and reserve, that if repeal should be refused them Nova Scotia would become a "second Ireland." We might well ask now, if the men who used such language are willing to have their Fenian organizations in Nova Scotia—to send out their assassins and incendiaries throughout Canada and other parts of the British Empire, to burn and destroy property and life. A person of the name of Savary—I believe he is a legal practitioner somewhere in the westward—is reported to have said not long since, in the Parliament at Ottawa, that Dr. Tupper did not dare to pass through Nova Scotia, because he was fearful of personal chastisement. A more disgraceful imputation upon the people of this Province could not be imagined; and whoever this Savary may be he must have been in strange company, when he expressed such an opinion of Nova Scotians. Certainly nobody has ever seen or heard of anything here that would justify any person in making an assertion of such a character. Persons there are, very anxious for repeal, but none of them yet are ready to resort to personal violence. I will not except the Annexationists or Mr. Attorney-General Wilkins, the would-be founder of the new Republic. Such language as I am referring to may proceed either from a man ignorant of the meaning of language, or desirous of getting a little notoriety, even at the expense of perpetrating a libel upon his countrymen; but in any case it is in very bad taste, and likely to have an unfortunate effect just now in the neighboring Republic, where there are many who actually believe that Nova Scotia is on the verge of putting British authority at defiance.

By the time this article reaches the capital of the Dominion, in all probability many important circumstances connected with Mr. McGee's assassination will have been made public, or at all events will be in the possession of the authorities. At present, certainly, no one can help feeling deeply impressed with the conviction that the murder was only a part and parcel of the conspiracy which the Fenians have formed for the purpose of injuring Great Britain. No doubt, Mr. McGee's earnestness in showing the folly and wickedness of the Fenian organization had deeply irritated its leading spirits, who have been desirous of creating branches throughout British America. They knew, whilst he was alive, their efforts would be completely neutralized by his vigorous and telling denunciations. More than this, we have every reason to conclude, say not a few persons I have talked with on the subject, that these Fenians are also the deadly enemies of the Union scheme—certainly several of their leaders have denounced it very plainly since it has been matured. They have gladly hailed everything that has looked like successful opposition to the establishment of the Union on firm and stable foundations. It has, indeed, been happy for the Dominion that Fenianism has not taken any hold of Canada.

No greater loss could have occurred certainly to the Dominion at the present crisis than the death of Mr. McGee. His mind was not narrow and contracted, but of that broad and expansive character that enabled him to take generous and liberal views of every great question. His public addresses recommended themselves, by their moderation, by their conciliatory spirit, by their logical argument, by their statesmanlike enunciation of great principles, and were having a most admirable effect upon the people of this Province.

I have very little to write you that is new in connection with public matters in this Province. The result of the delegation to England is anxiously awaited, but I think that the impression is rapidly gaining ground that it must end in a failure. Indeed, it is impossible to believe, at least it is impossible for any man of common sense and political sagacity to believe, that the British Government, as statesmen, will listen favorably to the demand of a few unscrupulous agitators, for they must feel, if they did so, they would effectually dismember their colonial empire in North America. When our ablest public men are struck low by the enemies of British connection—when men in the Legislature of one of the Provinces would intimidate the British Government with menaces of "disastrous consequences" unless the Union is repealed—it is obvious that the time has come for binding these provinces more closely together, and enabling them to present an unbroken front to those who threaten their integrity.

In former letters I have plainly stated what it is believed by those best able to speak confidently on the subject will be the result if the Repealers go much further with the agitation that they have commenced. The majority of the people are not in a mood for disaffection; it is to be presumed they have the sense to see the consequences, supposing they entertain the sentiments imputed to them by their leaders. To appeal to the United States would be madness—even although it is recommended by that astute and sagacious statesman, Mr. Wilkins. Annexation—for that would be the result of such an appeal—to a country riven asunder by anarchy, and overwhelmed with debt, and governed by the mob, would be political suicide, as far as Nova Scotia is concerned. I believe when the answer comes back there will be a split among the Repeal party; some will wish to continue the agitation; others will be for accepting the situation. That was the complexion of matters certainly a few days ago when I was in Halifax: it is said two of the present Local Government are inclined to act moderately and discreetly, whatever Messrs. Howe and Wilkins may do. Even the two last, it is stated, do not work harmoniously together.

It is certainly to be hoped that the sound sense and intelligence of the people of this Province who are not rabid partizans, will sooner or later assert themselves, and put down the unscrupulous attempts of men who would bring innumerable evils upon this Province. The men who are at the head of the Repeal movement cannot be considered in any other light than that of conspirators against the public peace. The Unionists certainly do not defend every act that has been done in connection with the question of Confederation—some of our public men may have been rash and indiscreet; but that does not excuse the conduct of the Repeal agitators, who would keep up a most unjustifiable and dangerous movement in this country—and for what purpose? To return us to our former state of isolation, which can never enable us to make any progress, commercially or politically, but which may tend to the rupture of the connection between Nova Scotia and the Crown—perhaps the ruin of all British America, for Union can never be successful without Nova Scotia, or at all events, Cape Breton, which has the most valuable coal mines of the Dominion, and stands as a key to the St. Lawrence.

The Unionists here notice with much satisfaction the course pursued by Mr. Stewart Campbell in the General Parliament, for his language must recommend itself as that of one who at all events is alive to the importance of the present situation, and to the folly of undue agitation at a crisis when all British America should be as one. Who can look at the state of affairs on this continent, or to the occurrences daily taking place in Great Britain and in other parts of her Empire, without seeing the necessity of harmony among ourselves. These are not the times for agitation or disaffection; and the men who would produce the latter result must be considered among the worst enemies of their country. Perhaps, at present, it would be as well not to attribute too much importance to the sayings of the Repeal worthies of the Local Legislature. Leaving their ignorance of public matters out of the question, the majority of them are very silly fellows, who have got into a position which has surprised themselves, and perhaps, they do not know any other way of making use of it, except by talking nonsense and braggadocio. The misfortune, however, is that people outside of Nova Scotia do not know them, and will attribute importance to the sayings of the Attorney-General and his friends.

I am afraid that the ensuing season will be one of continued commercial depression. Last year things were bad enough, but they are likely to be worse during the remainder of the present. We have always depended too much upon American trade, and the result is that we have been sadly hampered by the abrogation of the Reciprocity Treaty. If our Halifax merchants and capitalists had been men of energy and enterprise, we would have had long ere this manufactories started in different places—trade opened with South America and other countries where we ought to be able to undersell the Americans, if we only went into the business with judgment and earnestness.

We expect to hear daily that the General Parliament has taken some action in respect to the tariff. A few concessions, as I have stated on previous occasions, in the way of lowering the duty upon necessaries may have a good effect not only on Nova Scotia but also on New Brunswick, where there has been a slight re-action against Union. A duty should certainly be put upon the bituminous coal of the United States—indeed upon all foreign coal. It must be remembered that the trade so far between Canada and the Maritime Provinces, especially Nova Scotia, has been almost entirely to the advantage of the former. We have bought your flour, and you take nothing from us in return; and consequently we have been obliged to pay you in hard cash, at a time when our usual markets for our produce are virtually shut against us. In the Island of Cape Breton things are very gloomy, for a large and valuable section depends entirely on the coal trade, indeed all classes in all parts are affected more or less by its condition. In some of the rural districts the farmers are stealing fodder for cattle, and many are obliged to use up the usual supply of seed for food. It is very unfortunate that an island so rich in natural resources, with fine agricultural capabilities, with magnificent fields, with unrivalled facilities for carrying on the fisheries, should be so situated.

I noticed a few days ago, that the leading paper of the Repealers, the Halifax Morning Chronicle, copied an article from the Toronto Globe, throwing cold water upon the idea of a duty on American coal, and declaring that even if such was done, the people of Ontario would not buy Nova Scotia coal, but would continue to import from the United States. Now such articles do the Union cause in this Province a good deal of harm; they strengthen the impression that has got abroad that this Confederation is to be an Upper Canadian Confederation. We are able to supply Ontario and Quebec with all the coal they want at a cheap rate, and we believe, the Upper Canadians will buy from us, if we are encouraged. At all events, it is preposterous that the Americans should be so favorably treated when they have actually shut out our chief exports from their markets by their prohibitory policy. We should treat them as they treat us. But in any case, do not let public journalists who call themselves the friends of Union, continue to irritate the public mind in the Lower Provinces by such ill-advised statements as those that I have been referring to.

Certainly it is time that broad views prevailed, and everything like sectionalism disappeared from our councils. If this Dominion is to be a success, its basis must be laid on the broad platform of equal rights to all parts of the Confederation. Men must rise to the "height of this great argument," and lay aside all personal and political prejudices and jealousies, and endeavour to cement the discordant elements of the Union into one harmonious whole. Let a conciliatory and statesmanlike policy be pursued towards this Province, even though some of its public men may be inclined to give trouble to the Dominion. Such was the advice given more than once by the eminent statesman whose loss all British America is now mourning, and it should be adopted by those public men who control our affairs, as the best tribute they can pay to his memory.

The Unionists of Nova Scotia still look trustingly to the General Parliament and Government, and believe that wise and judicious counsels will prevail, that the discordant elements that at times look so threatening will disappear sooner or later, and then:—

"As the varying tints unite,
They'll form in heaven's light,
One Arch of Peace."

CORPORATION EXPENDITURE.

To the Editor of THE TIMES.

SIR,—Looking over the minutes of the City Council, No. 8, April 6th, 1868, I notice that three medical gentlemen have been paid fifteen dollars for examining one lunatic. For the sake of the ratepayers' pockets, it is to be hoped that few lunatics will present themselves for examination, or that the M. Ds. will continue their investigations until they discover something to meet such an extravagant bill.

UNITED STATES MUSICAL JOURNAL.—We received this popular magazine from Houser & Fulton, agents for Ottawa. This, the May number, contains about fourteen pages of music, besides musical notices, criticisms and biographies of composers. It is a good number and worthy its popularity.

ACKNOWLEDGMENT.—Mr. Roderick Ross, Secretary to the General Protestant Hospital, in behalf of the Directors, begs respectfully to acknowledge, with many thanks, the kindness and consideration of the Hon. Col. Monck, in sending from time to time many interesting newspapers to the patients, who duly appreciate such attention, and feel truly grateful for the same.

THE FUNERAL PROCESSION.—Jones and Holland have received a fresh supply of Frank Leslie's illustrated newspaper containing the pictorial illustration of Mr. McGee's funeral. They have also for sale for 20 cents a combined calendar and book-slate for the pocket. A very useful article which every one who can write should carry about him.

STEALING FROM THE DOOR OF A CLOTHING STORE.—Yesterday Private Stanton, of the Rifles, was arrested on a charge of stealing a pair of pants from Mr. Graham's clothing store, Rideau-st. The prisoner came out of jail on Tuesday, where he had been serving a period for assaulting a policeman, and after coming out failed to report himself at his quarters.

UNWHOLESOME MEAT.—The present high price of butter has led to another evil. People will not feed their calves but bring them to the market before they are old enough to make good veal, and in a half starved condition. Such meat is not fit for human food; it contains little or no nutriment, and is positively unwholesome. A man was fined at the Police Court yesterday, for bringing such meat to market and had it confiscated, besides paying a fine with costs amounting to $3.

BLACKWOOD FOR APRIL.—New York, the Leonard Scott publishing company. Ottawa: Durie & Son. Contents: Horace: the causes of his popularity; Linda Tressel, part VII; Historical sketch of the reign of George II, No. II; the Minister; William Edmonstoune Aytoun; Cornelius O'Dowd; Quack Remedies for Ireland, &c., &c.; Charles Kean, and the modern stage; the new nostrum for Ireland, and the battle for place.

POLICE COURT.—Julia Ring, the well known inebriate of the filthy mouth, was brought up on a charge of drunken and disorderly conduct. She had been arrested the evening before and put in the lock-up, when she made the night hideous with ribald songs and blasphemy. She was fined $5 and costs, and in default went to jail for three weeks.—James McGaffney was charged with being drunk and disorderly at the house of Kate Hyland. Kate was also brought up as in some way concerned, but the charge against her was not sustained. James, however, was ordered to pay $10 and costs, or go to jail at hard labor for the space of three weeks—the latter was accepted.—Matthew Meredith was charged with offering unwholesome veal on the market for sale. The meat was confiscated and three dollars paid.

YESTERDAY'S DESPATCHES.

LONDON, April 29.—The first witness who testified in the trial of Burke and others was the notorious informer Coryden, not Corrigan.

PARIS, April 29.—The Moniteur has advices from Brazillian sources stating that the allies are masters of the situation in Paraguay, and it is thought Humaiti cannot long resist.

PARIS, April 29.—Terxera de Macado, the Brazillian Ambassador to this Government, has received the following news officially by the steamer which recently arrived at Lisbon, from Rio Janeiro. The Paraguayans are shut up in Humaiti, the out forts have been captured, as have also the position at Curupaity and Paso, and their gunboats sunk. Their President Lopez has fled. Humaiti cannot hold out three days.

BERLIN, April 29.—It is officially stated that the reduction heretofore announced to be made in the Prussian army will consist of twelve thousand men.

LONDON, April 26.—Further advices from the seat of war from Paraguayan sources, admit that the Brazilian iron-clads had passed Humaiti under the fire of its guns. They were arrested in the undertaking by the batteries which had been placed by the allied Commander around the fortress. The killed and wounded on board the fleet numbered 1,500. It was ascertained that Lopez has massed his army at the northern extremity of his lines, which renders probable the abandonment of Curupaity by the Paraguayans.

LONDON, April 29.—The trial of Burke, Shaw, and Casey, for treason, felony, in being concerned in the Fenian attack on Chester Castle, was resumed in the Court of Queen's Bench this morning. A. Mr. Kylock, proprietor of a gun shop in Birmingham, was sworn, and testified that he sold to Burke in December, 1866, a quantity of caps and pistols. He also swore that five hundred rifles were bought by Burke of a Mr. Hill, together with moulds for bullets, to the amount of £2,000. Witness at cross-examination showed confusion about the identity of Shaw and Casey. Mr. Hill was sworn, and gave evidence confirming that of Kylock, stating that Burke represented to him that the arms purchased of witness were for use in South America. Several other witnesses were examined, and testified that the arms and ammunition were sent from Birmingham to Liverpool. The evidence of a number of lodging-house keepers, cartmen, and others from Liverpool, was given, which agreed that Burke had, under the name of Dinstow, been a resident of that city about the time of the attack on Chestercastle, and approved his intimacy with well known Fenians. The trial was adjourned until to-morrow.

THE CANADIAN PARLIAMENT.

1ST PARLIAMENT 1ST SESSION.

THE SENATE.

TUESDAY, April 28.

The SPEAKER took the chair at three o'clock.

After routine,

Hon Mr DICKEY inquired whether the Government have decided upon the route of the Intercolonial Railway, or upon the portion thereof to run through Nova Scotia, and if not, when it is expected that such decision shall be made?

Hon. Mr. CAMPBELL replied that the Government had not decided upon the route of that portion of the line which was through Nova Scotia, but three or four parties of surveyors had been sent down to obtain information for the Government. The earliest action in the matter would be taken by the Government consistent with the necessity for obtaining the necessary information.

The following address to Her Majesty was received by message from the House of Commons, with a request for the concurrence of the Senate thereto:

"To the Queen's Most Excellent Majesty:
Most Gracious Sovereign:

We, Your Majesty's dutiful subjects, the Commons of Canada, in Parliament assembled, desire to approach Your Majesty with the expression of our horror and indignation at the recent atrocious attempt to assassinate His Royal Highness the Duke of Edinburgh, and to convey our deep sympathy with Your Majesty in the distress and anxiety which the endeavour to take the life of one so justly dear to You, at such a distant part of Your Empire, must have occasioned.

In uniting with Your Majesty in thanksgiving to Almighty God, that it has pleased Him to save the life of His Royal Highness, so recklessly and wickedly assailed,—and in fervent prayer that it may please God to restore him speedily to health and strength,—we beg to assure Your Majesty that the high personal esteem with which His Royal Highness is regarded throughout this Dominion—from a lively recollection of his gracious demeanour amongst us during his visit to this country in the year 1861, has if possible heightened our abhorrence of this detestable act. We take this opportunity of renewing to Your Majesty our assurance of our devotion and attachment to Your Majesty's throne and person.

JAMES COCKBURN,
Speaker, House of Commons.

Hon. Mr. MITCHELL said it had been announced yesterday that an attempt had been made on the life of a member of the royal family, by a member of a society we have reason to fear has made too much headway on this continent. He was sure that when the announcement was made he had only stated what had been re-echoed and responded to by every person present; and throughout every loyal colony of the crown, this act would be considered as one of the most atrocious character and deserving of the condemnation of every peace loving man. He had announced that a message would be received from the other branch of the Legislature, and when that message arrived, this House would be called upon to participate in an Address to Her Most Gracious Majesty the Queen, expressing sympathy with her on the occasion of this most foul attempt to deprive Her Majesty of a member of Her family. There was an opportunity now for giving expression not only to loyal feeling but to those feelings of sympathy which would be called forth from each one of us on an occasion like this, and the motion he was about to make would be responded to by every gentleman around the House, giving expression to loyalty and devotion to the Throne which has upheld the institutions we enjoy and given so much security to life and property. He would now move that the blank in the address be filled up by the words "Senate and."

Hon. Mr. LETELLIER DE ST. JUST said he thoroughly approved of the address and heartily responded to its sentiments. He was satisfied this address of condolence and sympathy would find a re-echo in the breast of every good man in the Dominion, and in none more so than in the hearts of his fellow-countrymen, and if the question could be tested by a petition it would be universally signed without exception throughout the British Empire. Our gracious Sovereign was justly esteemed as Queen, mother and widow throughout the wide extent of the New Dominion and all the world over, except a few vile miscreants, perhaps, who have no hearts to feel any generous impulse.

On motion of the Hon. Mr. MITCHELL, seconded by the Hon. Mr. CAMPBELL, it was unanimously

Resolved, To agree with the House of Commons to the said address, by filling up the blank with the words "Senate and."

Ordered, That the Honorable the SPEAKER do sign the said address on the part of this House.

Ordered, That one of the Masters in Chancery do go down to the House of Commons and acquaint that House that the Senate have agreed to the said address by filling up the blank with "Senate and."

The Hon. Mr. MITCHELL moved, seconded by the Hon. Mr. CAMPBELL,

That an humble address be presented to His Excellency the Governor-General in the following words:

To His Excellency the Right Honorable CHARLES STANLEY, Viscount MONCK, Baron MONCK of Ballytrammon, in the County of Wexford, in the Peerage of Ireland, and Baron MONCK of Ballytrammon, in the County of Wexford, in the Peerage of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, Governor-General of Canada, &c., &c., &c.

May it please Your Excellency—

We, Her Majesty's dutiful and loyal subjects, the Senate of Canada, in Parliament assembled, beg leave to approach Your Excellency with our respectful request that your Excellency will be pleased to transmit our joint address to Her Most Gracious Majesty, expressive of our abhorrence and indignation on being informed of the recent attempt to assassinate His Royal Highness the Duke of Edinburgh, and assuring Her Majesty of our deep sympathy with Her Majesty upon this occasion, in such a way as to your Excellency may seem meet, in order that it may be laid at the foot of the Throne.

The question of concurrence being put thereon, the same was unanimously resolved in the affirmative, and it was Ordered, That the Hon. Mr. SPEAKER do sign the last mentioned address on the part of this House.

Ordered, That one of the Masters in Chancery do go down to the House of Commons and acquaint that House that the Senate have passed this address, to which they desire their concurrence.

OFFENDERS APPREHENSION AND SURRENDER.

The House went into Committee of the Whole on a Bill from the Commons entitled: "An Act respecting the Treaty between Her Majesty and the United States of America for the apprehension and surrender of certain offenders."

Hon. Mr. FLINT in the chair.

Hon. Mr. CAMPBELL moved an amendment giving the Governor-General power to set offenders at liberty and discharge them when there was no reason why they should be delivered over to the United States authorities.

Hon. Mr. McCULLY called attention to a case which came under the Extradition Laws—A man had committed an offence in the United States, of that class of offences by which the person was entitled to be extradited and a communication came from New York to Halifax by telegraph for his apprehension, as he was on board of one of the steamers of that line which usually call at Halifax. He was accordingly arrested, and as it happened that the Supreme Court was in session at the time, the party who had been arrested under this telegraphic communication made application for a writ of Habeas Corpus, which the Court granted, and he was brought up at once and discharged on the ground that there was not sufficient grounds to hold him because the affidavit was only by telegraph. If the Bill did not provide a remedy for this evil one of the objects of the Bill would be frustrated.

Hon. Mr. CAMPBELL said there was no way of reaching such a case, for in no country was communications by telegraph considered a means of action in courts of justice, although he thought at some future time when they became more familiarised with telegraphic practice such communications may be made a ground for action. Several sections of the Bill were then passed, when progress was reported and leave asked to sit again.

PARLIAMENTARY PUBLISHERS PROTECTION.

Hon. Mr. CAMPBELL moved the second reading of the Bill defining the privileges, immunities and powers of the Senate and House of Commons, and to give summary protection to persons employed in the publication of parliamentary papers, and explained its provisions, saying that it was necessary to introduce a Bill of this kind in order to carry out the constitutional Act. It did not seek to define these privileges in detail, and in consequence when any question arose they would have the advantage of referring to the decisions given in England.

The Bill was then read a second time and on motion of the Hon. Mr. CAMPBELL it was ordered to be committed to a Committee of the whole House to-morrow.

The House then resolved itself into Committee of the Whole on the Bill entitled "An Act to provide for oaths to witnesses being administered in certain cases, for the purpose of either House of Parliament, (Hon. Mr. Bill in the chair) providing generally that the chairman, or any member of the Committee, have the power to administer the oaths to witnesses. The Committee rose and reported the Bill as amended, which amendments were concurred in and the said Bill was ordered to be read a third time to-morrow."

The House went into Committee on the Bill respecting the Department of Justice,

Hon. Mr. REESOR in the chair.

Hon. Mr. McCULLY wished to know if the Attorneys-General and Solicitors-General of the various Local Governments, where they could be retained, would have the crown business in criminal cases, or if such powers would be limited to the Minister of Justice, or his deputies, and who would have the power to enter nolle prosequi for the crown? Have these Attorneys and Solicitors-General the same powers as those functionaries in England? It was important to know their respective powers and duties, so as to avoid conflicting of authority, as for instance in prosecutions against defaulters in the collection of the public revenue due the Dominion Government.

Hon. Mr. CAMPBELL said by the "Confederation Act" the Administration of Justice was confided to the Local Governments, and they were empowered to do all required in the various cases cited, and therefore no conflict of authority could be apprehended.

Hon. Mr. McCULLY doubted much if the Local Governments would have jurisdiction in the cases for infraction of the revenue laws and the collection of revenues which exclusively belong to the Dominion Government. He could not see how the Local Governments could have authority, and assume the responsibility of acting for the General Government.

Hon. Mr. CAMPBELL said there would be uniformity of criminal procedure throughout the Dominion, and the Local Governments clearly had the right of administering the laws; though the General Government had the power to enact these laws

Hon. Mr. SANBORN said the Union Act was conclusive to his mind on this point, for the procedure alone was confided to the Dominion Government, the administration of these laws was referred to the Local Governments only. The office of Attorney and Solicitor-General of Ontario and Quebec has ceased, and the Bill gives power to the Minister of Justice to continue all suits brought by them. So it was plain that there could be no conflicting powers of jurisdiction.

Hon. Mr. McCULLY suggested that a Deputy Minister of Justice should be named in each Province.

Hon. Mr. CAMPBELL thought it better not to confound titles, as their duties and powers were distinct, but the general name of "officers" was more suitable.

There were different forms in the Provinces of Ontario and Quebec from the Lower Provinces in civil cases; but the criminal laws are the same all over the Dominion.

The said Bill was then reported with amendment, which amendment was concurred in and ordered to be read a third time to-morrow.

A message was received from the Clerk of the Commons, with a Bill intituled "An Act to authorize the carrying of gas pipes across the river Niagara, in order to facilitate the lighting of the Town of Clifton with gas." The said Bill was read a third time, and on motion of Hon. Mr. BENSON, seconded by Hon. Mr. BUREAU, ordered to be read a second time to-morrow.

Also, a message was brought from the House of Commons, by their Clerk, with a Bill intituled, "An Act to incorporate the Clifton Suspension Bridge Company," which was read a first time, and ordered to be read a second time to-morrow, on motion of Hon. Mr. ROSE, seconded by Hon. Mr. CAMPBELL.

PENSION TO MRS. T. D. M'GEE AND FAMILY.

The Bill intituled "An Act to enable Her Majesty to provide for the widow and children of the late Hon. T. D. McGee" was read a second time.

Hon. Mr. RYAN—If the sum granted by this Bill to the widow and orphans of the late Hon. T. D. McGee were to be taken as the measure of his great ability, or of the loss we have sustained by his death, or of the gratitude we owe for the services he rendered to this country, it would doubtless be considered by every member as very inadequate, but independent of this merely pecuniary offering to the memory of the deceased, made with a view to the suitable maintenance and comfort of his widow and family, this grant will be recorded in the annals of Parliament, which will transmit to posterity our estimation of the man who has been taken from amongst us by the hand of a ruthless assassin. He was sure his honored family would regard in this light the measure now about to pass. When the subject was before the House the other day, he had abstained from saying a word upon the matter, because Mr. McGee's praises were spoken so much more ably than he could do it, by others, who were unconnected with the deceased, either by ties of nation or religion. He thought it was more becoming, as it was certainly more flattering to Mr. McGee's friends, that his praises should be set forth by gentlemen from distant parts of the Dominion, as Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, and Ontario, and that nothing should be said by gentlemen from his own section of the country, more especially from Montreal, the city which Mr. McGee had so long and ably represented; for these reasons, he (Mr. Ryan) abstained from speaking on that occasion, but there was one point not touched upon in the discussion which then took place, one which he thought it most important to refer to, one which he was sure, if Mr. McGee was living and present in this chamber, he would call attention to, and which recent events (events which have occurred since his lamented death) rendered it necessary for every member of this Senate to pronounce their decided opinion on: that is upon the magnitude and turpitude of this conspiracy and its ramifications to which he has fallen a victim (Hear, hear.) If hon. gentlemen hesitate to come forward and denounce this conspiracy, and those who sympathise with it, it may become very fatal to the prosperity of this country. (Hear, hear.) The announcement we had yesterday, and the address we voted to-day to Her Majesty the Queen, upon the deplorable attack made upon her young and amiable sailor son, following so soon after Mr. McGee's death, tends to the conclusion that both deeds were done by a member of the same organization, and coupling these with the recent attempts to destroy buildings, and to set fire even to the palace of Her Majesty, should be sufficient to convince us that a systematic plan of assassination has been adopted by the Fenian conspirators to work out what they have failed to achieve manfully in the field (hear, hear). And now shrinking from the observation of all good men, unable openly to succeed in any direction, they have resorted to a system of assassination, taking us back to the barbarous revenge of barbarous times (hear, hear), and striving to introduce a system of Eastern Thuggism in civilized lands, so that they may be well called the Thugs of Christendom, and as such he hoped they would be crushed out of existence (hear, hear). Twelve months since, when in England, he obtained clear and distinct evidence of the adoption of this system. He saw evidence clear and sufficient to assure him that the subject of assassination had been discussed by their leading men, those who concoct their plans in secret, and send forth their poor and ignorant tools to execute their behests (hear, hear). This subject had been before their council, and they had determined to resort to it, but it was only now that it had begun to show its fruit. He hoped the Government here would act as promptly and determinately in putting down this conspiracy, as the Government at Sydney, where he was happy to say, immediate justice would follow the attack upon a son of our most gracious Queen. He hoped the Government would search out and discover all the ramifications of this conspiracy. On the part of this society, a plea has been put forward that Ireland has been aggrieved, and that her grievances should be redressed. He fully believed that the wrongs of Ireland should be considered and redressed, and he believed there was every disposition in England to redress them; but he would ask, was the course this Fenian organization was now pursuing calculated to do service to Ireland? He would ask them whether the attempted assassination of Prince Alfred, or the murder of Mr. McGee, would cause England to take a calmer view of the circumstances of Ireland? Would it facilitate the satisfactory settlement of the question concerning the relations between landlord and tenant, or the question of education; or will it not rather arouse a spirit which will be prejudicial to the adjustment of those important questions, if these self-elected champions of Ireland hold up their country to the contempt and detestation of every Christian man, and every civilized nation in the world. Again, these men, if he might call them so, (cries of no, no,) or rather these assassins, have put it forward in Canada, exposed as it is to their attempts, that they are the avengers of the evils of Ireland, and that it is to better Ireland and Irishmen in every part of the world that they have conceived and carried out their wicked plans. He would tell the Irishmen of this country that the course which that society has adopted here has done much to injure the character of the Irish in this land. The people who have contributed their small earnings to the Fenian organization will learn to their great loss, that the deeds of these men have thrown suspicion and doubt upon all who are supposed, whether rightfully or wrongfully, to sympathise with them. He found the interests of Irishmen in Canada had thus been seriously compromised. He believed that Mr. McGee, in denouncing this system, had brought down upon him the vengeance of this secret society, but in doing so he had covered himself with honor, and his name would be remembered long after the assassin had sunk into his grave with shame and obloquy. If his enemies had sought for a mode to immortalize Mr. McGee they could not have found a better. He fell when his faculties were in their prime, when he was devoting himself to the service of Canada, and by his communications with the Imperial Government exerting himself for the good also of his native country. (Hear, hear.) Mr. Ryan further said they should one and all come forward undeterred by the revolver of the assassin and fearlessly denounce this organization. (Hear, hear.) In doing so they would honor the principles and follow the example of the late lamented Mr. McGee. (Hear, hear.) He would conclude by saying he warmly appreciated the handsome manner in which the House had proceeded with this Bill, and read it a second and third time the same day, and Mr. McGee's family would, he was sure, take it as another honor to the memory of the departed statesman.

Hon. Mr. MITCHELL remarked that what had been said by his hon. friend (Mr. Ryan) was concurred in by every member of the House, and he (Mr. Mitchell) felt that to do justice to the memory of Mr. McGee, would only be occupying the time of the House in repeating what had already been said in the public press and elsewhere. He had distinguished himself in literature, and was a lover of peace and a promoter of it. He had rendered many services to the country during his life, and though by his death the country had been deprived of a great and noble man, it had received a benefit in filling the minds of every honest man with a hatred for that association, which would bring down the power of the law upon the individuals who compose it. His hon. friend had referred to the provision for the widow and family of the late Mr. McGee, which the Government had felt it their duty to ask Parliament to grant. He could only say that though it was not as much as some of the late hon. gentleman's most ardent friends might think it ought to be, the Government felt it was their duty to give Mr. McGee's family a competency which was all they desired, and he believed this would be supplemented by a grateful public who feel they have lost much in the loss of Mr. McGee. Then again he entirely agreed with his hon. friend, that if the Government failed to use every legitimate means, if they failed to expend every dollar necessary to bring the assassin to justice, they would be open to censure. He might say that from the hour that the crime was committed, the Government had used every means in their power to bring the criminal to justice, and that a train of evidence surrounds the man who was first thought to be the assassin, and that gradual developments are being made in the Fenian organization in all its ramifications. He felt the evidence was so strong that the guilt of the criminal would be brought home to him, and he was satisfied the Government would not be deficient in that duty which they owed not only to the departed but to the living. He was glad to find one of the foremost Irishmen of the country come forward and avow his sentiments, no matter what risks were to be run. He was bold to say he heartily endorsed the utterances of his hon. friend, and no matter whether the bullet of the assassin was aimed at them or not, they should endeavor to stamp out that vile association which has been gradually creeping within our borders. The country has been deprived of a citizen who was an honor to it, and the public feel that every effort should be made to drag to justice the perpetrator of such a vile act. He thought the Bill should now receive two or three readings, which would convey to the public another evidence of how high the Legislature of this country esteems the services Mr. McGee had rendered, and his family would receive it as an additional testimony to the merits of the late departed.

Hon. Mr. DEVER rose and said—Hon. gentlemen, being a lately appointed member of this Senate, I had partly made up my mind to say very little during this Session, but to be watchful and careful in voting on all measures brought before us, and to acquire a good knowledge of the routine business of this chamber. But, hon. gentlemen, owing to the unexpected and calamitous misfortune that has befallen us in the assassination of my great friend, the late Honorable Thomas D'Arcy McGee, I feel compelled, as being the only Irish Catholic in this Senate, from the Province of New Brunswick, which I have the honor to represent, as a Senator of this new Dominion he loved so well, and did so much to create and consolidate, in the minds of our people, as being a Christian too, worshipping at the same altar he worshipped at, to set forth my humble share of grief for the great loss we have sustained in his sudden and cruel death. Just, too, hon. gentlemen, at a time when his rare gifts were being appreciated, and required to bring into harmony the many conflicting parties, and I may add, races, who constitute the people of this new but vast country. Hon. gentlemen, Mr. McGee was my personal friend, and there I will leave him. But it is as a great Irishman and a reasoning Catholic, he was, and is, most dear to me. As an Irishman, hon. gentlemen, a mere boy, he left his native land he loved so tenderly, to seek a home and position in a foreign country, and well, hon. gentlemen, he did it, against many obstacles and vicissitudes, until at last, and even early in life, he attained the enviable position of scholar, statesman, poet, orator. But, alas, hon. gentlemen, could not all those great qualities acknowledged in him, stay the hand of the assassin, and who I fear by recent developments, and to make the fearful act seem if possible blacker, is some vile miscreant of his own race and country. Some Cain, actuated, and driven on by the devil to stop for ever that rare and shining intellect, when just at the zenith of its power, to do good for Ireland—for his race—and for the world—for, hon. gentlemen, Mr. McGee was admitted a great moral philosopher, a reasoning christian; no narrow minded man, and hence was valuable to Ireland, to his race, and to the world, as having the qualities of a great peacemaker and statesman. But, hon. gentlemen, as an Irish Catholic possessing such talent he was doubly dear to me, and on him I looked with delight, and at this, perchance, you will not wonder, seeing how few of us are in the Legislative Chambers of this new Dominion, and now out of that few, to find we have lost our brightest ornament, is it any wonder I should mourn? No, hon. gentlemen, for I feel his equal as an Irish leader, and political architect, I never shall see again, and I will tell you why it is because he was, in my opinion, no cold hearted demagogue, wishing at the expense of his warm hearted countrymen—to keep up a foreign element in this free country—hostile to our Government and their own true interests—that he might ride to power, without merit, and leave them as an inheritance naught but enmity for their trouble. No, hon. gentlemen, his was the doctrine of loyalty, nationality, and education, which is the only doctrine I hold will ever place my countrymen on the pinnacle of political equality with all other men, seeing now, that knowledge is power; that the penal laws and religious obstructions of past ages are no more; that all office doors, in this country, are wide open to receive all men who possess the fitting talent and ability to entitle them to consideration. I would say then to my countrymen, be loyal citizens, possess the land, possess wealth, and possess intelligence, and the country and Government are yours, and you will cease to be on the weak side, on the side of the minority. As an Irish Catholic he was dear to me, because his literal thoughts so well expressed, have shown to this Dominion, so largely Protestant, that Catholics, when educated and happy, are equal to any other class, in loyalty, and devotion to this country. And now, hon. gentlemen, I hope, indeed, I see already this country will recognize my late friend's intellectual wealth of poetry, literature, speech, and song, and will transmit it down to our generations, that it may take a fitting place along side the intellectual wealth of other great Catholics, whose memory we all like to cherish, and amongst whom I would mention here, the poet, philosopher, and translator of Homer into our language, I mean the great Alexander Pope, and that other Catholic, too, hon. gentlemen, the immortal Arne, the composer of Briton's national song and chorus, who does not know it? "Rule, rule, Britannia, Britannia rules the main." But hon. gentlemen, I am detaining you too long, and now seeing you are all actuated by as warm feelings of regard for the late Mr. McGee, as I am, I will conclude by saying I leave the orphans and widow in your national care, feeling from your sentiments and acts, they will be well done for as the adopted children of this our Government and country.

On motion of the Hon. Mr. MITCHELL the forty-second rule of the House was dispensed with so far as it related to this Bill.

It was then read a third time and passed without amendment.

The House then adjourned until 3 o'clock to-morrow.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.

TUESDAY, April 28, 1868.

The SPEAKER took the chair at three o'clock.

LITERARY PUBLIC PATRONAGE.

The Joint Committee on Library Management reported the reception of a number of petitions from statistical compilers, and others, praying the subscription to or purchase of their volumes on public account, which course the committee had been hitherto occasionally in the habit of following, but had now decided to abandon in future, preferring to leave such responsibility to executive authority. The committee farther recommended that no books should be removed from the City of Ottawa under any circumstances, or from the Library, without the sanction of the Librarian or either Speaker.

Mr. McKENZIE could not see why residents in Ottawa should be permitted greater privileges than himself or other outsiders.

Mr. F. JONES protested against the restriction upon the perusal during recess of works provided at public cost, by perusal of which Legislators might possibly improve their public capacities.

Mr. YOUNG also opposed the recommendation, after which the subject dropped.

BAGOT ELECTION.

The General Committee on Privileges and Elections reported that the following members had been chosen to serve on the Bagot Select Committee, viz.: Messrs. Workman, Simard, Young, Robitaille, and Joly chairman.

FORTIFICATIONS.

Upon the motion of Sir G. E. CARTIER, it was resolved that the House would on to-morrow, (this day) go into Committee of the Whole to consider certain resolutions to provide a sum not exceeding £1,100,000 stg. to defray the expense of constructing works of fortification for the defence of Montreal and other cities, to which Mr. McKENZIE indicated his purpose of moving an amendment in accordance with his previous remarks upon the proposition.

INLAND REVENUE.

The order of the day for reception of the report of Committee of ways and means having been called,

The first resolution providing for an increased excise duty of three cents per gallon on all spirits of Canadian manufacture was concurred in.

The second resolution imposing a duty of five cents per gallon on petroleum or coal oil, after some opposition from Mr. MILLS, was also agreed to, as also was

The third resolution declaring it expedient to provide for the inspection of all petroleum or coal oil manufactured or imported, and for the forfeiture of all offered for sale without having been subjected to inspection, and for the imposition of an inspection fee of twenty cents for every barrel, cask or package so inspected.

The fourth resolution also passed without opposition, providing that no person shall carry on the business of refining petroleum or coal oil without a yearly $50 license.

The fifth resolution confirming the action of the first and second from 25th April, and of the third and fourth from 15th June of the current year, after some brief discussion, was also concurred in.

CUSTOMS DUTIES.

Upon the question of concurrence in the resolutions affecting the tariff, the first declaring certain alterations advisable, passed without objection.

Upon the second, imposing specific charges of $15 per head on horses; $10 per head on horned cattle; $2 per head on swine and $1 per head on sheep.

Hon. Mr. DORION took exception to any obstacle to the introduction of an improved breed of live stock, and was followed by Hon. Mr. HOLTON, who failed to see any rational ground for exempting cereals and taxing meat.

Mr. GIBBS thought that the difficulty might be best met by retention of the flour tax. (Laughter.)

Hon. C. DUNKIN having also partially opposed the resolution,

Mr. F. JONES thought that the proposed imposition bore with undue severity upon the agricultural classes, and regretted that there were not more largely represented in the House. Every injustice possible was imposed upon this leading section of the community in the benefit of class interests. They had spent $16,000,000 in construction of canals, and were being called upon to spend $16,000,000 more in construction of a railway, both works made to carry nothing but ruinous competition to their doors, and throw open a freedom of trade that was utterly one-sided, to the injury of their own industry. It was such legislation as this that was driving our young men abroad, young men who, when they were called upon to volunteer in defence of their country, asked if they were to be called upon to defend the injustice that was being meted out to them. (Hear, hear.)

Mr. D. A. MACDONALD thought that it was right to impose upon American imports all duties such as Canadian productions of similar character were compelled to bear in the United States.

Hon. C. DUNKIN could not consent to the principle of moulding our own after American enactment.

Mr. YOUNG thought the proposal of the hon. member for Glengarry offered the only means practicable of ensuring the renewal of Reciprocity.

Mr. OLIVER moved an amendment in opposition to the principle of the resolution so far as importations for the improvement of stock were affected, when imported by agricultural societies.

Hon. J. ROSE pointed out the great public inconvenience of such special exemption under the privilege of which it would be sought to bring every importation of any description.

Hon. Mr. HOLTON thought that the House was entitled an exposition of the principles on which this legislation was sought for in contradiction to that adopted by the House two years ago. These partial and exceptional invasions of the existing principle demanded an explanation of the grounds on which they were founded.

Mr. McKENZIE having followed on the same side,

Sir J. A. MACDONALD said that the flour tax has been imposed as an assertion of the independence of the country against American exclusive legislation. It had been maintained with this view until it had been found to work oppressively on certain sections of the community, and was now repealed as a step in the right direction. He went on to show the impossibility of Custom House officials deciding on the stud value of live stock, and to instance cases of previous misuse of the privileges of agricultural societies.

Hon. Mr. HOLTON thought that having already sufficiently indicated our right to be as stupid as our Yankee neighbours, we might now fairly commence a broader exposition of our ability to be wise in such matters of political economy.

Mr. D. A. MACDONALD objected to the waste of time in discussing and rediscussing the same points.

Mr. McKENZIE considered it the duty of members to give full attention to the public business, and that members ought not to endeavor to hurry through the Session for their own personal convenience.

Mr. WHITE (Halton,) thought that the duty proposed would be a mere trifle on the class of animals which would be imported. By the stock register which he held in his hand, it would be seen that no other country of the same population had such a large stock of thorough bred animals as Canada, and he thought that very few more would be imported for several years. He held that the remission of the flour tax was a step in the wrong direction, as it tended to check the trade between the Provinces, and also that hops should be removed from the free list and subjected to an important duty for the sake of revenue.

Mr. OLIVER again spoke in support of his amendment.

Mr. SCATCHERD contended that the farmers of Western Canada should receive some protection, and he was prepared to record his protest against the remission of impost duties on grain and flour, merely to please the people of the Maritime Provinces.

Mr. JONES (Leeds,) argued that the protection given to agriculture in the United States, was an inducement to our farmers to leave this country, and pursue their calling where it was more profitable. He thought the tendency of the proposed legislation would be to drive our farming population away from us. The interests of the people of Western Canada ought not to be sacrificed for the sake of the people of New Brunswick. They were proposing to sacrifice the interests of two millions and a half for the benefit of two hundred and fifty thousand. Free trade had been adopted in England in the interests of the majority of the people, but here free trade was being forced upon us in the interest of a very small minority.

Dr. PARKER denied that an impost duty on an article of which the country produced a surplus would not affect the price, and contended that if a neighbouring country produced a larger surplus, then an import duty would materially affect the price. He sympathised with the people of Nova Scotia and New Brunswick and did not wish to oppose the remission of the tax on breadstuffs; but he saw in this question one of the grave difficulties which had resulted from uniting Provinces whose interests were so diametrically opposed.

Mr. GIBB regretted that so much had been said of legislation for this section or that section, and urged that all subjects should be considered upon their broad merits as affecting the prosperity of the whole. He argued strongly against the remission of the tax on breadstuffs. The reasons which had been urged in favor of its imposition in 1866 still existed, and he thought the Government were making a mistake in repealing that duty now. The Government were pursuing a policy calculated to extinguish one of the most important interests of the country, which had already suffered much from the discriminating legislation of the United States. By the United States law saw logs, were admitted at a rate of about one sixth of that imposed upon manufactured lumber, and the Government had very properly given the lumbering interest of the country by imposing an export duty on logs to counteract the effect of American Legislation. With respect to flour and wheat the case was precisely the same—the American tax on wheat was twenty cents per bushel, while on flour it was equivalent to a tax of thirty-five cents per bushel on wheat. He held therefore that the millers should be protected equally with the lumbermen. He did not approve of sectional legislation for the purpose of conciliating opposition. The people of the Maritime Provinces would not be conciliated by these concessions, but on the contrary great discontent would be created in other parts of the Dominion. He urged legislation upon broad grounds irrespective of local interests.

Mr. POPE said his hon. friend while avowing broad principles had spoken just like a sectional representative. His view was that which precisely suited the local interests of western Canada, while the people of the Eastern Townships, whom he (Mr. Pope) represented, felt that on this question their interests were the same in this question as those of Nova Scotia. (Hear, hear.)

It being six o'clock the Speaker left the chair.

After Recess.

Mr. POPE continued the discussion upon the second resolution, maintaining the inadvisability of attempting to subserve particular local interests upon protective principles, prejudicial to the general welfare.

Mr. MAGILL opposed the proposed impost upon swine, suggesting that at least no drawback should be allowed upon pork packed here for exportation.

Hon. Mr. TILLEY replied that by the measure of the early part of the Session, the Governor in Council had power to authorize such facilities.

Mr. ROSS (Dundas) held that the progress made by the United States under their protective system was one worthy of imitation by any people, and contended that the free admission of the produce of the Western States would glut the natural market of Western Canada.

The item under consideration, (impost duty on swine) was then concurred in, as also were the proposed imposts upon butter, cigars, cheese, coffee, chickory, fish, lard, meats, malt, coal oil, and soap.

Upon the item of two cents per pound upon starch being proposed,

Hon. Mr. HOLTON objected that the raw material from which starch was made had been exempted, and that starch ought consequently be included in the same exemption.

Hon. Mr. TILLEY replied that the Government had taken off half a cent per pound which they considered sufficient.

Mr. SHANLY and Mr. D. A. MACDONALD having further discussed the item,

Hon. Mr. JOHNSON admitting that the proposed tariff modifications were an improvement on the former measure of the Government, could not understand their change of position in abandoning, from considerations of expediency, the principles they had previously called upon their supporters to assist them in maintaining. The Administration could more easily command valuable adhesion by an unflinching maintenance of their deliberate convictions.

After some further general discussion, the item was concurred in.

Upon the item of proposed duties upon spirits being put,

Mr. JONES (Halifax) referred to the large increase upon the duties paid in Nova Scotia upon rum, which formed a large branch of the trade between that Province and the West Indies, and the consumption of which had largely fallen off under the higher rates, which were so excessive as to offer improper inducement to smuggling, and moved in amendment that the resolution be referred back to the Committee with instructions to reduce the rum duty to 63 cents per gallon, by which means he believed a larger revenue would be secured to the Government, while the duty would be thus assimilated to the excise duty on whiskey, and Canada and Nova Scotia placed in this respect on an equal footing.

Hon. Mr. TILLEY said that the result of such a reduction would be the importation of large quantities of United States spirits made up and entered under the name of rum to the injury of the distilleries and the revenue of the country.

Mr. JONES having further urged his proposition, maintaining that under the low Nova Scotia duties of former years experience had shown that the large American importation anticipated by the Minister of Customs was not practically to be feared.

Hon. J. ROSE could not see any reasonable grounds for making distinction between various classes of spirits. He did not quite coincide with the doctrine that the people of the Lower Provinces would never learn the use of whiskey. (Laughter.) They would find it no worse than their favorite liquor, and he could assure the hon. member for Halifax that there was a great deal of virtue and of pleasure to be found in Western Canada rye. (Renewed laughter.)

The amendment was then declared lost, and the original item agreed to.

Upon Resolution No. 3, proposing a specific and ad valorem duty upon sugars,

Hon. Mr. TILLEY explained that the discrimination now introduced of two grades only of sugar where there had previously existed several, would obviate the inconvenience hitherto felt in the collection of the duties.

Hon. Mr. HUNTINGTON considered that the Government, in their choice of such discrimination, had been actuated by a desire to attempt a compromise rather than establish a principle.

Hon. Mr. TILLEY replied that disregarding the conflicting interests of importers and refiners, the Government had been guided by considerations affecting the advantage of the revenue and the public.

The discussion (which was mainly of interest to the trade) was prolonged in similar committee style by Hon. Messrs HOLTON, ROSE, HUNTINGTON, and HOWLAND, after which

Mr. JONES (Halifax,) asserted that the rearrangement of the duties satisfied no one, he himself preferring the old Canadian tariff to the new one, and entered into a lengthy argument in support of his view.

The points on which issue had been taken were further debated by Hon. Messrs. ROSE, TILLEY, (the latter contending that the new tariff reconciled protection to the manufacturer with justice to the consumer) and ANGLIN.

After some remarks from Mr. BOLTON, Mr. JONES' amendment, providing for the imposition of a uniform duty on all classes of sugars of 25 per cent. ad valorem and 75 cents per cwt., was put and lost on a division of 32 to 85, after which the third resolution was concurred in, as also were the fourth and fifth imposing ad valorem duties of 25 upon spices, playing cards, and patent medicines, and of 10 per cent. upon sole and upper leather.

Upon the sixth resolution being put imposing a duty of five per cent. upon books and pamphlets, iron and type,

Hon. Mr. CHAUVEAU moved in amendment its reference to a committee with instruction to strike out the impost on the first named articles which was put and lost on a division of 45 to 65.

Mr. GIBBS then moved in amendment the exemption of bar and sheet iron, &c., which was seconded by Mr. WORKMAN, and after reply by Hon. Messrs. ROSE and CARTIER, and some slight discussion by Hon. Mr. HOLTON, Messrs E. M. MACDONALD, BROWN and LAWSON, declared lost on a division, and the resolution concurred in.

Upon the seventh resolution being put, affecting beer, tea, tobacco, and wines, a long discussion took place, on the motion of Mr. D. A. MACDONALD to reduce the specific duty on green tea to five cents per pound, which was lost on a division of 48 to 53.

Mr. McKENZIE then moved the reduction of the duty to six cents per pound, which was lost on a division of 45 to 53, and the resolution then concurred in.

As also was the eighth, imposing a 15 per cent. package duty on bottles, barrels, &c., containing wines and liquors.

Upon the ninth resolution being put, enumerating free goods,

Mr. McKENZIE took exception to the definition of sundry works of art as "busts of life size not produced by any mechanical process," and "paintings the work of artists of well-known merit, or copies from old masters." He asked, amid loud laughter, by what other than mechanical process the Minister could expect busts to be produced, and enquired further if such an acquaintance with art was to be expected from custom house officers as to enable them to decide upon merit well-known or ill-known. He did not imagine that very many of these officials ever heard of the art masters, and thought it likely that if asked about them they would imagine that the Minister for Customs was himself the old master. (Prolonged laughter.) As to "natural size," was the Minister (Mr. Tilley) to be taken as the model of symmetry, or were the proportions of his colleague of finance, so longitudinally different, to be accepted as the standard? (Renewed laughter.)

Sir J. A. MACDONALD did not apprehend that any practical difficulty would occur such as apprehended, or that they would be greatly puzzled to discriminate between the longitude of the head of the Treasury Board, and the latitude of say the member for Soulanges. (Laughter.)

Mr. ROSS (Dundas) moved in amendment, the omission from the free list of grain of all kinds, except wheat and Indian corn, which was lost on a division of 20 to 81.

Mr. McKENZIE moved that rice be restored to the free list, which was lost on a division, and the resolution then concurred in, as also were the tenth, eleventh, and thirteenth.

Upon the fourteenth resolution being put providing for an export duty on lumber,

Mr. McKENZIE moved that the resolution be struck out, which was declared lost on a division,

Mr. LAWSON then moved a reduction of the proposed duties, which amendment was declared lost on a division, and the resolution (the last) concurred in, after which the Bills founded thereon were read a first time, the second reading being fixed for to-day; and the House rose at ten minutes past four this morning.

THE REV. DR. IRVINE AT ST. CATHERINES.

At a meeting at St. Catherines a few days ago, held to pass resolutions in connection with the assassination of Hon. Mr. McGee, the Rev. Dr. Irvine, of this city, was requested to occupy a seat on the platform, and to say a few words in support of the resolution. The reverend gentleman said that he would prefer to muse in mute amusement on the mysterious and permissive Providence which had thrown a pall over this New Dominion, but when invited, he felt that he could not withhold his drop of sympathy from that cup of wormwood and gall which has been put into the hand of—not a widowed mother and an orphan family—not a Province—but into the hand of an Empire; for the British Empire to-day mourns the loss of our ablest statesman and noblest philanthropist. The Doctor went on to say: A week ago to-day I had the pleasure of a walk and a most profitable interview with my honorable and lamented friend—our conversation turning upon the best means of advancing the Working Man's Association of Montreal. A week ago to night, from the Senators' side of the gallery where I sat, I had the pleasure, for the last time, of seeing him in his seat in the House of Commons; and little did I then suppose that to night it would be my melancholy pleasure to be blending my tears with those of millions scattered over three continents, because a "Prince and a great one hath fallen." (Applause.) It matters not in what relations we look at this truly great man—we see traits of character which elicit universal admiration. As a scholar he was highly accomplished; as an essaist and historian he stood among the first of our day; as a poet his fugitive pieces are exquisite; as a statesman, he was clear, honest, and fearless; as a patriot he loved the land that gave him birth with all his heart; he loved British Monarchy as a form of Government, and the untiring energies of his noble spirit were laid on the political altar of this, our dear Dominion. Alas! alas! that the foundations of the Dominion of Canada should be laid in the precious blood of her most sagacious statesman and her most ardent patriot. (Applause.) I am not using the language of undeserved eulogy while I thus speak—for many of you no doubt have read the statements of the Earl of Mayo in the Imperial Parliament, in reference to our late lamented friend. The language is as strong as any that has been, or may be used to-night and yet the eulogy of the noble lord was well deserved. Besides his gifted and cultivated intellect, Mr. McGee was endowed with a warm heart—a warmer and more genial heart never throbed in human bosom. In private and in public he acted alike to friend and foe (he meant political foe, for he could not understand that he had or could have had, a personal enemy,) in such a way as to leave the impression indelibly upon every observer's mind that he cherished unkind feelings toward no man. His soul was cast in a large mould. He loved his country; he loved his Church; he loved his fellowmen; he loved every man that deserved the name of man. His heart was too large to cherish hatred or revenge against any man, and while millions of men are this day crying for vengeance on the ruthless ruffian who murdered him—nay, while his blood, which still stains the streets of Ottawa, is crying to heaven for vengeance upon the unrelenting asssassin who shed it, I believe, if we could reach the immortal spirit of Thomas D'Arcy McGee, we should find it crying for—not vengeance, but mercy upon the fiend who chased it from its gory tenement into the presence of its God. (Loud applause.) Many theories have been afloat touching the motives which have prompted, and the hands which have perpetrated the revolting atrocity; and within the last two days, not a few have assured him that the assassination was the out growth of our late election squabbles in Montreal. Mr. Mayor, I do not believe that there is a Roman Catholic in the city of Montreal who would have committed that foul murder, and I am satisfied that there is not a Protestant in the city who would have laid a violent hand on him. Sir, I believe when the web of mystery shall have been unrolled, it will turn out that the conspirators and accomplices of this fiendish act belong to the other side of the lines, and will ere long prove themselves as unworthy of political priviliges even there as the worst of traitors of any country. Mr. McGee differed from many of his co-religionists and country men in many political points; but I cannot and will not believe that Thos. D'Arcy McGee perished by the hand of any true Catholic or any true Briton, and dear old Erin would execrate the detestable wretch. He was no friend of Ireland who murdered Mr. McGee. The crime of assassination has ever been regarded—alike by the laws of God and man—as the most reprehensible. It is inhuman—it is brutal—it is the act of the tiger. From the day in which "the Lord set a mark upon Cain," the first assassin, until this moment the crime has been justly held in universal execration. Even Ehud, who presented a gold gift to Eglon with the one hand and stabbed him with the other, never commanded the respect of his own countrymen afterwards; though by an assassinating strategem he liberated an Empire. If Joab becomes an assassin, he forfeits the confidence of his royal master, and finally perishes under the mandate of the very monarch whose throne he sought to defend by such an act. Who respects the memory of Brutus? and the name of John Wilkes Booth will be held in abhorrence as long as history shall be read. But assassination is as silly as it is impious. It has always carried in its own bosom the elements of its own defeat. God grant that it may be so in this instance. If the murder of Mr. McGee was the legitimate outworkings of an infamous organization, fostered and cherished by parties in the United States of America, God grant that the atrocity in which such a spirit has culminated, may prove the death blow and everlasting defeat of that infernal organization. (Applause.) But there is one sentiment in your resolution which is quite in harmony with the spirit of this meeting, and with his own professional calling. He adverted to the widow and the orphan family of the late honored and honorable gentleman. This sentiment will touch the tenderest chords of the smitten heart. If sympathy could but assuage grief—if burning tears such as I see shed here could but allay the pang, caused by death inflicted in such a way that wailing family might be happy to-night; for an Empire weeps with her who weeps, and sighs for her bereavement. You commend her to the care of our Heavenly father. May the Lord God of Elijah, who blessed the widow's barrel of meal and cruise of oil, be the God of this his widowed handmaid. May he who raised the son of the widow of Nain, and restored a living child to a mourning mother, throw the pavillion of his gracious Providence around the orphan children of the late lamented Thos. D'Arcy McGee. May God Almighty fill the place in the heart and in the home of that dear woman which the hand of the fiendish desperado has left empty. And may she be henceforth esteemed not only as the widow of Thomas D'Arcy McGee, but as the widow of the Dominion of Canada; and her children as the offspring of the man whose precious blood has sealed the Union of Great Britain and Ireland, and cemented the Confederation of the Provinces of British North America. (Loud and long continued applause.)

These works are most highly recommended by the English Magazines and religious press, also by the Press of Canada, (see Montreal "Witness," Toronto "Globe," "Leader," "Christian Guardian," &c.) The intention is to supply every Protestant family in the Dominion with these valuable works. As an antidote to Romanism, Ritualism, Infidelity and formal religion, they are unsurpassed.

DARLEY'S

Arabian Heave Remedy

AND CONDITION MEDICINE

IS POSITIVELY SUPERIOR TO ANY or all other preparations for the cure of Heaves, Coughs, Thick and Broken Wind, and all diseases which affect the Wind of Horses ; also, as a Condition Medicine, surpassing everything of the kind, is easy to give, sure to cure, and safe in all cases and at all times, and does not prevent the horse from being worked while using it.

It cleanses the breathing apparatus, by removing from the air-cells the coagulable lymph, or that secretion which in heaves clogs them, causing a difficulty in breathing, and by its action on the diseased part, causing the mucous membrane to resume its natural dimensions, thus equalising the circulation of the blood, and restoring the distended vessels to their natural size ; by its use the horse's appetite is improved, all derangements of the digestive organs corrected, softening the skin, and giving to the coat a sleek and shining appearance.

SATURDAY, MAY 2, 1868.

WE have before remarked upon the monopoly of the contested election business by the Province of Quebec (with the solitary exception of Essex). A rumour has of late obtained currency that the Rouge or Opposition members have made a proposition to their Conservative opponents, to drop all their petitions, provided, the latter would do the same. We do not know whether this mode of settling the difficulty in school-boy fashion, has received the sanction of the Conservative contestants for Opposition seats, but should judge that it has not, from the fact that to-day the Election Committee for Montreal East goes into its work in earnest. Several prominent gentlemen from Montreal, who are witnesses in the case, arrived here last night.

THE Hon. Minister of Militia, in introducing his resolutions, providing ways and means for the construction of fortifications at the several points designated, made a thorough vindication of the policy of the Government in this regard; and we think the Opposition, in challenging a contest upon this subject, have mistaken the feeling of the country. Public opinion is decidedly in favor of such a moderate outlay as that proposed by the Government, for no spirit of economy, however rampant upon other subjects, will find sympathy with the public in denying necessary provision for the national defence. The people of this Dominion are prepared to make any reasonable sacrifice to keep faith with the mother country, and that which is now asked of them is much less than what many will admit would have been quite reasonable under the circumstances.

IN the recent discussions on the tariff and kindred subjects, the word "conciliation" has done frequent service, and may, perhaps, be liable to misconception. As an instance, we may note the remission of the duties on breadstuffs which has been prominently referred to as a "conciliatory" measure. It would be much more accurate to say, as was said by the Premier, that the Government had resolved upon repealing the duty when they found that its exaction worked "in-"justice" upon some portions of the Dominion. It is then as a matter of fair play—of equal justice to all—that this change in the tariff has been made, and though it may appropriately enough be said that, it is "con-"ciliatory," in that it does away with injustice; yet it is hardly correct to represent as a "concession" what is simply the recognition of a right. Were the case reversed—had the coal trade of Nova Scotia been protected by the tariff, instead of the milling interests of the West, it is quite possible that this distinction in the meaning of the word "con-"ciliation" would have been better understood in Ontario. There cannot possibly be a reason why the Nova Scotians should be persuaded that their very antagonism to Union is to be rewarded by "concessions" unsanctioned by, or in excess of, the principles of even-handed justice; but on the other hand, there is every reason why they should see that, according to our understanding of what is equitable, we are prepared to carry it out. The small vote in favor of retaining the impost alluded to should shew them that the representatives of Ontario and Quebec were not by any means enamoured of it. It was at first imposed in Canada for what may very properly be termed reasons of state rather than for considerations of revenue, and these reasons having been so far served, the Government very properly abandon the impost when its unfairness to one portion of the Dominion is made manifest.

It will of course take time and experience to demonstrate whether even now the public burthens have been equally balanced, so that there will be no undue pressure upon any class, interest, or locality; but so long as the Government endeavors, acting upon the best information in its possession, to fairly balance the weight of taxation that it may not press unequally either upon separate Provinces or special interests, so long should their policy be regarded as that of even-handed justice, rather than of "conciliation," though in the end we believe that "fair play and no favor" will prove the best conciliator. If all parts of the Dominion cannot be welded into one harmonious political community by legislation that is calculated to be equitable to all, there is nothing to be hoped for from special sops; and nothing but mischief from persuading the Nova Scotians that their opposition to Union will increase their advantages under it. The real trouble with our repeal friends is that they believe they have been treated unjustly; they do not ask for "conciliation," but for what they consider fair play; and the obvious duty of the rest of the Dominion is to show them that the spirit of fair play underlies the policy of the country; not that their opposition to Union is to be rewarded by "concessions."

THE Irish People, in paying a tribute to the memory of the departed MIKE MURPHY, incidentally gives a certificate of character to the Hibernian Society of Toronto. The People says:

> "In the death of our lamented friend, Michael Murphy, the Fenian Brotherhood has lost one of its earliest, most steadfast and influential supporters. The original founder of the Canadian branch of the organization, he always continued to be its most honoured and trusted representative. At the general conventions of Chicago, Cincinnati, Philadelphia and New York, Michael Murphy was ever found at his post (one of danger to him as it always was), aiding by his counsel and his well earned influence in the work of his native land's redemption. No Irishman in Canada was more loved and respected by his warm-hearted countrymen than he was, for his ability, integrity and unselfishness were all known to his compatriots, and likewise to the enemies of his country and race. As a natural consequence, he was both feared and hated by all the ultra-loyalists of Canada, who could not feel secure while such a man was at large among them, to defy the rampant bigot and rebuke the purchased renegade; and so, when the opportunity for slaking their thirst of vengeance offered in 1866, both parties united in hunting him down, and he was thrown into that prison from which, after half a year's incarceration, he and his indomitable comrades, so successfully effected their escape."

ON the 30th ult., Mr. M. P. RYAN was elected by acclamation to represent the Western division of Montreal. There was a large concourse of people at the hustings, and the proceedings as reported in the Montreal papers, were conducted throughout in a quiet and orderly manner, no symptom of opposition having been manifested.

WE understand that a number of special constables have been placed in charge of the Public Buildings, under the direction of G. McMICKEN, Esq., Stipendiary Magistrate, who has been here for some time past, assisting in the investigations which have been going on.

WE have heard of no new developments in the case of the prisoners held under the Habeas Corpus Suspension Act, or of those committed under a more serious charge. Mr O'REILLY took some depositions yesterday, but their nature has not transpired.

INTERCOLONIAL RAILWAY ROUTE.

To the Editor of THE TIMES:

SIR,—Not being fond of newspaper writing, I was very glad to end somewhat summarily, a short controversy with you a few weeks ago. Some intrusive individual, however, not willing to trust the discussion in your own hands, volunteered to enlighten you, your readers, and the world. I felt that a reply to him was desirable; not for the sake of controversy, nor from any ambition on my part to attempt to overcome in a war of words, that pungent satirist, "A True New Brunswicker," whose assertion that he "was born and bred in New Brunswick," was, I presume, intended as a rebuke, in anticipation of any one who should question his wisdom, discretion or patriotism; that he was born, is a very evident proposition; that he was born in New Brunswick, I won't deny, however bad for New Brunswick; that he was well bred, I require other proof than his style of writing. Not for these reasons I answer him; but because, behind his assumption, and rising superior to his vanity, there are important interests at stake in which the public should be well informed.

And here, permit me to say, that this letter has been delayed on account of that horrid murder that has thrilled the continent, and now, in view of that horror, in view of the latest words uttered by the late lamented statesman, who was its subject—words of conciliation not repulsive—words of respect for the opinions of others, not disregard of those opinions—words of consideration, not of rude contradiction—words indicating a desire to know and meet things as they are, and not to be blinded to facts by superficial and fanciful theories, however agreeable. In view of these considerations, I turn to your correspondent's letter. It is of small consequence what I may have written, or from what Province I hail. Your readers will, I hope, judge me by the standard of fact.

I am a native of New Brunswick, having there first seen the light of day, well on to half a century ago, and I will venture to say that I was acquainted with her politicians and her politics, intimately participating in those great questions which agitated her people and her Legislature, following the dawn of reform in 1833, while yet "A True New Brunswicker" bore in his person the evidence of that adolescence which, as indicated by his writings, his mind maintains to the present. And, did he know me, he would scarcely question that I have had rather better opportunities than has he, for becoming acquainted with the different sections of the Province, their people, feelings and interests. My former letters were called out in vindication of that loyalty, which I then thought assailed, that "A True New Brunswicker" has discovered exists in the Province. He probably knows, as well as I do, that New Brunswickers are "Men who their duties know; but know their rights,

And knowing, dare maintain.'

Your correspondent mentions a clique in St. John, and Charlotte, who have a tendency for annexation, and the St. John Globe as being their organ.

I have heard this of St. John before; it may be true, if so, the clique is small, and from its composition, not perhaps to be wondered at; I have not heard it before of Charlotte, and believe the statement to be a calumny upon the loyalty of her people, as it is a broad reflection upon their common sense, for geographically situated as they are, every commercial reason favors their remaining as they are. Your correspondent then dashes into the railroad question, in such a way as to convey the impression that this clique—this disloyal clique of which he has spoken—are the men who alone agitate the question of route for the railroad other than the Northern.

Now, Mr. Editor, there is a clique in New Brunswick, embracing a large proportion of its inhabitants; populating a large proportion of its territory; developing a large proportion of its industrial and commercial resources; representing the bulk of its wealth; inhabiting the counties of Albert, Westmoreland, St. John, King's, Queen's, Sunbury, York, Carleton, Victoria, Charlotte, who have regarded since Confederation was first broached, the railroad question as the question of most vital importance to the Province, and who have always felt, as recent events have proved, that a Central or Frontier was the only route feasible or desirable.

I admit this clique have not been such active propagandists of their views; nor have they been as lavish in the employment of agencies as have that smaller party who favor a Northern line. But here justice compels me to say that the North has, in this matter, chiefly lived, moved, and had being in, through, and by one man, as the grand central vitalising instrument, but for whom the route question would scarcely have been raised. Of course, the inertness displayed by the people of the Central, Southern and Western parts of the Province, with regard to the advocacy of "route" may be condemned; but there is this to be said in their excuse, that knowing the merits of the question, they never imagined that such an insane Act would be committed by the Government or Legislature of the Dominion, as carrying the Intercolonial by the Northern line. Now, we are told by "a true New Brunswicker," that there is much division of opinion in New Brunswick. That certain natural preferences for particular routes are felt by inhabitants of the several sections of the Province, I admit, but, when the question becomes narrowed down to a choice between two lines—Northern and Frontier, or Northern and Central—then there are only two parties in the Province; and there is a perfect unanimity of feeling among the people living in the counties I have named, except perhaps in Westmoreland, where there may be some division of sentiment owing to the fact of their peculiar position in relation to the road whichever way it runs, a perfect unanimity of sentiment, I say, against the adoption of a Northern line. Shall I advance proof? A vote of the Provincial Legislature is in all matters a constitutional, as it is a common sense, test of public opinion. The vote taken in the New Brunswick Legislature was two-thirds against the Northern line which, it was declared by that vote, would be ruinous to the best interests of the Province. With the majority every member from St. John, city and county, voted. It is also a recognized principle that the Ministry of the day that maintains a majority in the Legislature, represents the wishes of the people. The members of Government in the Assembly, with two exceptions, these being northern men, voted as above with the majority against the Northern line. Subsequently, I need scarcely remind you, on a motion of want of confidence, that these members voted against the Government. But, says your correspondent, "the recent resolutions were hurried through the Local House by means of mere trickery." Sir, I deny this statement. The journals of the House will show that ample notice was given previous to their introduction for discussion, and they were published several days before. The member who introduced them opened the debate with an elaborate speech, during which he quoted from the several reports made by Robinson, Fleming, and others, from these authorities justifying the terms of his resolutions. He brought to the elucidation of the subject his own pretty extensive knowledge of the character of the country;—the relative importance of the several lines in an industrial and commercial point of view; the engineering difficulties and facilities which they relatively presented, and then he drew the inevitable conclusion. One of the oldest and ablest members in the House, a representative from Northumberland, followed, complimenting the mover of the resolutions very highly, not only for the matter, but also the manner of his speech. Not agreeing with him in the conclusions drawn, he still would not attempt to answer the arguments on which they rested. Another member from Northumberland, and a young man whose ability, no doubt justly, had been highly spoken of, and who was looked to by both parties as the champion of the north in this matter, and who must have been conversant with the general arguments applicable, and at all events, with the character of the country and resources of the north when he spoke, candidly admitted that he was not prepared to reply to the mover's speech, which he eulogised, and said that it would take some days to prepare himself to do so properly. And the resolutions passed without an attempt at an argument against them. The members from the north, strong as their feelings were, prejudiced as they reasonably were against the proposition, and in favor of the Robinson line, did not one of them even insinuate what "a true New Brunswicker" now boldly states, in "Ottawa," that the resolutions passed through trickery. I am sorry that, claiming to be a New Brunswicker, your correspondent has no more respect for his country, if not for truth, than so wilfully to misrepresent action had in the Assembly. When he made reference to a subsidised and venal press, he should have borne in mind that portions of the press advocating his own views have been long since charged with the same sin and upon, at all events, as good a basis as he brings his charge now against another portion. Let me see how the press of New Brunswick stands on this question. The Northern line is advocated by the Freeman, possibly, although it was formerly the strong advocate of the other line, because its proprietor represents a northern constituency, and is pledged to their interests by advocating their favorite route; the Telegraph, I presume; the Union Advocate, a northern paper, which gives the Northern line a qualified support. Against the Northern line we have the Eastern Advocate, Albert; Borderer, Westmorland; News, Journal, Globe, Church (Episcopal) Witness, Intelligencer, (F. C. Baptist,) Visitor, (C. Baptist,) Presbyterian and New Dominion, St. John; the Reporter, Head Quarters; Farmer, Fredericton; the Sentinel, Woodstock; and the Carrier and Standard, Charlotte County. Thus we find 16 provincial papers opposed to the Northern line, and four in favor of it. Is the press the vox populi?

Another evidence of the feeling of the people is found in the fact that large numbers of petitions, very numerously signed, have been received by the Government from New Brunswick, all representing how unsatisfactory to the people of the Province the adoption of a Northern line would be. Another evidence is found in the expression of opinion at a caucus of New Brunswick members of the Senate and Commons, held in Ottawa some time since. There were present of Senators Messrs. Botsford, Westmorland; Odell, York; Wilmot, Sunbury; Steeves and Dever, St. John; of the Commons, Messrs. Bolton, Charlotte; Fisher, York; Connell, Carleton; Costigan, Victoria; Burpee, Sunbury; Ferris, Queen's; Ryan, King's; Wallace, Albert. These gentlemen voted for a resolution which affirmed that the adoption of a Northern line would produce dissatisfaction on the part of a large majority of the people of New Brunswick. Mr. Gray who was present did not vote for the resolution, but expressed himself against the Northern route. It will be observed that the same counties of New Brunswick were represented by this last vote, as were, in the Local Legislature, in their resolutions above referred to. I now propose shewing what these several votes represented, and as in the caucus here, Westmorland was divided, I shall include that county in my figures on both sides of the question.

In population the vote for the Northern line represented 95,822, against it, 236,930; majority, 141,108. Of Territory the minority represented 2,730,864 acres, granted or located, and 4,617,976 acres of vacant land. The majority vote represented 5,529,145 acres granted, and 5,347,815 acres ungranted land, a total in one case of 7,348,840 acres, and in the other of 10,876,960 acres, balance, 3,528,120 acres. Of land fit for settlement, ungranted, the minority represented 2,850,000 acres; the majority, 3,385,000 acres; balance, 535,000 acres. The Northern vote represented counties whose imports last year were $1,106,655, the Southern vote, $8,994,129 balance; against the North, $7,887,474. The minority represented exports, amounting to $1,440,658; the majority, $4,933,047; balance, $3,492,389. The former represented farms worth, in 1861, $9,577,111; the latter farms worth $26,874,682; balance, $17,297,571, and so, in like proportion, every branch of material industry and production. Even of fish, while the Northern counties exported to the value of $207,482 in 1861, the Southern counties exported to the value of $331,285; balance, $123,803.

So that, I think, there need be no doubt how the people of New Brunswick and their interests are in regard to the question of railroad route.

A "true New Brunswicker" states that the people of the North have contributed their means to subsidise railways in the Southern sections of the Province." The Subsidy Law provided equally for North as for South; the intention of that law was to stimulate and call into exercise the energy, enterprise and wealth of the people of different sections of the Province. The people of the South nobly responded, putting their own shoulders to the work by the aid of Hercules; they have achieved, or are achieving comparative success. The North, taking your correspondent's own recital, sticks in the mud, or rather is frozen up in the ice, and there it has stuck, and is sticking, calling upon Hercules to come and lift them out, without making ayn effort, without displaying any signs of vitality, or energy themselves. There is much in "a true New Brunswicker's" letter to awaken sympathy in its whine over the frozen condition of the North, but nothing to show why, in a great national undertaking like the Intercolonial, every consideration of national and provincial advantage should be merged in that of mere sectional sympathy. Had the people of the North followed the example of the South, and built the same number of miles of railroad, under the Subsidy Act, as it provided, or could have been made to provide, they might have had a road from Moncton, up as far north as Bathurst; and largely paid for out of the pockets of the southern and western people. The contribution of the North, under the Subsidy Act, was light, compared with the South, as the former only imported goods amounting to $11¼ per head while the others imported to the amount of $37 per head.

Further remark is scarcely necessary to prove how and why this railroad question is one in which the great majority of the people of New Brunswick is deeply interested. If that majority favor a Western or Central Western route, as being the cheapest and best as a Dominion work, then I am bold to say, that to disregard their views and wishes is, in a constitutional view, to disregard the whole people.

Sir, if the parliament, if the people of Canada desire to perpetuate that name as indicating the Dominion; if they wish to maintain the Union in its integrity, and make and preserve it a symmetrical whole, then, sir, at the present crisis, due respect must be paid to the reasonable wishes, and some regard must be had to the reasonable prejudices, of the several provinces. Recent events should impress this upon the mind of Government and Parliament. They know of the feeling abroad, to-day, in New Brunswick—they know the result of the election in St. John, the other day, and of the elements that influenced that election. The people of New Brunswick complain of the tariff—the stamp tax—newspaper postage; and Government has wisely conceded, it is said, something to them so far as relates to the tariff. All these things, properly understood, the public would bear, but, if there is anything in expressions of public opinions; if the sound that comes rolling up from cities and towns and rural settlements mean anything, then the Government may be assured they will not stand such a complete sacrifice of every practical and reasonable consideration; such an ignoring of every financial and commercial consideration as would be the case should they determine to take the railroad north. At present, I would not write thus strongly in New Brunswick; I should be sorry to hasten a crisis, or to fan the flame of discontent, but here the truth should be told boldly and bluntly; here beats the great heart of the body politic, but its life blood must flow back in healthy currents from the extremities, or that heart, however great, will soon cease to maintain its vitality; and here should it be distinctly understood, what is required to sustain and nourish the far off members, in order that health and vigor, and that contentment which is the only true indication of true vigor, in a nation, may be continued.

Perhaps "A True New Brunswicker" will call my language again "incendiary." I have heard too much of late of the cry, "peace! peace!" when there is no peace. If I state aught that is untrue, there are an hundred pens ready to expose me; if I tell the truth, I am doing right, and to do less than this now would be to do a grave injustice to New Brunswick, the Government, and the Dominion.

Yours, &c.,
A NEW BRUNSWICKER.

THE LATE ASSAULT CASE.—John Towers, the man who was so badly beaten by Reilly and Costello last week, is lying in a doubtful condition in the Roman Catholic General Hospital, erycipelas having set in. This fact having been made known to the authorities Reilly was re-arrested on Thursday night and still remains in custody, but up to a late hour last night Costello had not been taken.

MOVING DAY.—Yesterday being the first of May, which is the annual moving day, the streets in all directions were filled with all sorts of vehicles laden with all sorts of household furniture on the way from the old to the new homes of the owners, presenting a picture on a small scale of New York City on the same day. This yearly flitting is, perhaps, necessary in these times and in this country, but so far as the mere habitations are concerned it spoils the sentiment of "Sweet Home" and prevents the growth of those feelings which become hallowed memories of the "dwelling place of early years," and "the cot where I was born."

SELF POSSESSION IN A DIFFICULT SITUATION.—Yesterday forenoon as Mr. Robert Skead, jr., was riding on horseback over the Sapper's Bridge, his bridle suddenly broke, the horse taking alarm at the accident dashed away at full gallop, whilst the rider was apparently without the means of guiding or checking his course. The accident was observed by a large number of persons, who all became alarmed for the consequences; as quick as thought, however, the young gentleman leaned over the horse's neck, got his hand into his mouth, seized his tongue, and brought him to before he had got two hundred yards from the spot where the bridle broke. This splendid feat elicited the admiration of all who beheld it.

VESTRY MEETING.—Notice was given on Sunday last in Christ Church, that a meeting of the Vestry would take place on Monday evening at 7:30, to take into consideration the propriety of increasing the clerical staff. At the time appointed a large number of the members of the church attended, when the chaplain, the Rev. Mr. Lauder, explained the object of the meeting, and the church warden, J. B. Lewis Esq, gave a very clear statement of the finances, of the church for the past year and his views as to the revenue of the current year. After which it was moved by Mr. Cochrane, seconded by Dr. Hill, in effect, that having heard the statement of the church warden it is inexpedient to increase the clerical staff of Christ Church. Mr. Spragge moved an amendment seconded by Mr. Rowan, which the Rev. chairman declared out of order. The motion was then put and carried and the meeting separated.

POLICE COURT.—A stranger who gave his name as George Codd was charged with having been drunk and disorderly. Policeman Brown said he found the prisoner on the previous night near the jail making a disturbance. He said he intended to have a row with somebody and requested to be allowed the privilege of fighting him (the policeman.) The request was refused and he was marched to the lock-up. Fine $3.00 and costs; in default he went to jail.—George Mills and Simon John Clark were fined one dollar each and costs for having foul premises. John Stanton, a private soldier, was charged with stealing a pair of pants from the door of Mr. Graham's clothing store, Rideau street. Several witnesses were examined neither of whom saw the theft committed nor saw the pants in his possession, though all saw him running away from near the store about the same time they were alleged to have been taken. The principal witness could not be brought up and the case was adjourned till Monday.—Jules Trepanier arrested on a charge of an indecent assault on his wife's, or what turns out to be his mistress' sister-in-law, was brought up and the case also adjourned until Monday.—John Conway was charged with beating and otherwise ill-treating his wife, who came forward and gave reluctant testimony to the effect that her unmanly husband not only spent his money in drink when his family required it for bread, but beat and in many ways grossly ill-treated her; he had many times threatened to stab her and more than once flung knives at her, but what was the most unendurable part of his outrageous conduct he affected to believe, and openly declared, that the babies with which she presented him were not entitled by the ties of consanguinity to his paternal consideration. All this she had endured in silent grief until forbearance had ceased to be a virtue, and now she came to seek protection at the hands of justice. It is to be feared that his month in jail will not be time enough to reform a character so decidedly villainous.

YESTERDAY'S DESPATCHES.

LONDON, May 1.—In the House of Commons last night Mr. Walpole, member for Cambridge University, opposed the resolutions of Mr. Gladstone. In the course of his remarks he acknowledged that it would be unwise at this time to erect an established church in Ireland, but he declared it would be a far more serious thing to destroy such an establishment. All the arguments brought to bear in favor of such action were equally valid against the existence of the established church of England. He warned the House against the consequences which would follow the destruction of the Irish Church.

SUICIDE.—We were inexpressibly shocked on last Wednesday forenoon, to learn of the untimely death of Mr. Richard Coleman, of Lyn, who in a moment of mental aberration, put an end to his own existence. Early in the forenoon he left his dwelling, taking his rifle with him, and went into a small storehouse in his nursery. There he fixed one arm in a sling to support his body, and shot himself through the temple, the ball passing out at the side of his head. His death must have been instantaneous, and his body was found shortly afterwards erect in the position already described. His act is traced to some pecuniary troubles, and a mind naturally strong gave way in their presence. Mr. Coleman was a man of clear intellect, great business capacity, and no small ability otherwise. His death is greatly regretted in this neighbourhood, and his family have the most heartfelt sympathy of the public in their great and trying affliction.—Brockville Monitor.

BAD SIDEWALKS.

To the Editor of THE TIMES.

SIR,—May I call the attention of your street Engineer to the dangerous and disgraceful state of the sidewalks in your principal streets (Sussex and Patrick particularly), In countless places the planks are loose, and nail heads, an inch long, are protruding from the pathways. The public are subjected to the danger of broken heads and noses, and it was only a day or two ago that I was horrified at witnessing the narrow escape from immolation on a nail head, of a clergyman, who was proceeding from his place of worship in Patrick street to his residence after performing his devotions.

Unless the Corporation look to this grievance at once, the coroner will certainly be called upon ere long to sit on some of the cases, and no jury in Canada could bring in a verdict of accidental death under such circumstances, after the insertion of this warning in your extensively read columns.

Trusting that you will give this a place in your next publication,

I remain, sir,
Your obedient servant,
AMICUS HUMANIS GENERIS.

Ottawa, April 27th, 1868.

THE 13th OF APRIL AT VANKLEEK HILL.

To the Editor of THE TIMES.

SIR,—I am glad to observe that Monday, the 13th instant, (the day of the funeral of the late Hon. T. D. McGee), was very generally kept as a holiday throughout the Dominion. In this village in the forenoon all business was suspended, and all shops closed; several of the stores and many of the private dwellings were draped in mourning. Flags on public buildings, drill sheds, armories, and many private houses, floated at half mast; the local volunteer companies, Nos. 2 and 5, 18th battn., under command of Captains G. W. Johnson and D. McIntosh, assembled in full force at their drill shed at nine o'clock, a. m., precisely, and both officers and men had bands of crape fixed upon their left arms by ladies of the village who kindly attended for that purpose. After a short preliminary drill the volunteers formed in funeral procession order, and marched round the village with reversed arms, followed by the principal inhabitants of the village and surrounding country, to the number of at least three hundred. When the procession returned to the drill shed Thos. Higginson, Esq., was appointed chairman. He called the meeting to order, and made a few very feeling and appropriate remarks upon the sad cause of the assemblage, and the genial and social qualities of the deceased statesman. Addresses were subsequently delivered by Major Shields, 18th Battn., Surgeon Harkin, 18th Battn., Rev. W. Lumsden, and J. Boyd, Esq., M.P.P., pointing out the irreparable loss the Dominion had sustained in the deceased as a statesman, scholar, poet and patriot, commenting particularly upon his noble and patriotic desire, not only to build up a great northern nation upon this continent, but to teach its inhabitants to live in peace and harmony together, thereby meriting his most cherished compliment, that of peacemaker.—Com.

THE CANADIAN PARLIAMENT.

1st PARLIAMENT. 1st SESSION.

THE SENATE.

WEDNESDAY, April 29, 1868.

Pursuant to adjournment the SPEAKER took the chair at three o'clock.

After routine,

Hon. Mr. CAMPBELL moved the following resolution, seconded by Hon. Mr. Letellier de St. Just,

Resolved, that the Hon. Mr. Speaker, on behalf of this House, do acknowledge the receipt from the President of the Legislative Council of Prince Edward Island, of copies of the resolutions passed by that body on the occasion of the assassination of the late Hon. Thomas D'Arcy McGee, expressing their horror at the crime which deprived the people of Canada of an able and patriotic statesman, and their sympathy with the Parliament and people of the country, as well as with the widow and children of the deceased; and to convey the thanks of this House to the Legislative Council of Prince Edward Island for this manifestation of their good will, and their sympathy with the people of this Dominion in the national loss which has been inflicted upon it by the atrocious crime of which that body so justly expresses its detestation.

After a few appropriate remarks were made by the mover and seconder of the resolution it was adopted unanimously.

Hon. Mr. TESSIER enquired whether John Page, Esq., engineer of the Department of Public Works, has made a report or reports on the work of deepening lake St. Peter, since the passing of the order in Council to that effect, about the month of July, 1862.

Hon. Mr. CAMPBELL replied that he had been told that there had been several reports made on the work of deepening lake St. Peter since the passing of the order in Council, but no general or final report had been made.

The Bill intituled, "An Act to provide for the oaths to witnesses being administered in certain cases for the purpose of either House of Parliament," was then read a third time and passed.

Also, "An Act respecting the Department of Justice" was read a third time and passed. The House then resolved itself into a Committee of the Whole, on the Bill from the Commons, relating to the apprehension and surrender of offenders,

(Hon. Mr. FLINT in the chair.)

Hon. Mr. CAMPBELL said progress had been reported on this Bill yesterday, in order to enable him to consult the members of the Government, but more particularly the Minister of Justice, in regard to whether it would be an advantage to add a provision to the Bill, which would enable copies of indictments to be admitted as part of the evidence to commit prisoners under this Bill. He thinks it is more desirable that action should be based upon, not the final result of evidence, as that evidence has been arrived at in another country, but based upon the evidence itself.

After a few remarks made by the Hon. Mr. HAZEN, the Bill and amendments were reported as agreed to, and ordered to be read a third time to-morrow.

PARLIAMENTARY PUBLISHERS PROTECTION.

The House in Committee of the Whole.

(Hon. Mr. BOURINOT in the chair.)

Hon. Mr. CAMPBELL said they got no powers by virtue of the clause, which was not consistent with the Constitutional Act of 1867. There was no uncertainty in the clause as it stood: if they took the powers of the House of Commons, they only took them so far as was consistent with that Act. He did not see how he could use language to make it more clear. In reference to the other point, he thought it would be better to use the language which had been used, instead of mentioning those privileges in detail, because by taking them in general, we will have the advantage of any just and liberal interpretation that may be given, therefore, he thought it was desirable to adhere to the language used in the Bill.

Hon. Mr. McCULLY argued that the word "may" should be used in the Bill in the place of the word "shall," as he considered it equivalent to the latter word, and much more suitable in a Bill of this kind. He agreed with the Postmaster-General, that it would be dangerous to specify particular powers, as they could not anticipate what difficulties might arise, but by adopting this Bill, they would have the practice of the House of Commons to refer to.

Hon. Mr. HAZEN contended that the word "shall" was the proper word in such Bills, instancing where it was employed in the Union Act to prove his assertion.

The Bill was then reported as agreed to, with an amendment, and the third reading was ordered for to-morrow.

The following resolution was received from the House of Commons:

Resolved, "That a message be sent to the Senate, to inform their Honors that this House hath agreed to the Address of the Senate to His Excellency the Governor-General, praying that His Excellency will be pleased to transmit the Joint Address of both Houses to Her Most Gracious Majesty, expressive of their abhorrence and indignation upon being informed of the recent attempt to assassinate His Royal Highness the Duke of Edinburgh, and conveying to Her Majesty the assurance of their sympathy with Her Majesty upon this occasion:—in such manner as His Excellency may see fit, in order that the same may be laid at the foot of the Throne;—by filling up the blank with the words: 'and Commons.'"

When on motion of Hon. Mr. MITCHELL it was,

Ordered, That the Joint Address to Her Majesty, and also the Joint Address to His Excellency the Governor-General be presented to His Excellency on the part of this House by such members of this House as are members of the Privy Council.

Hon. Mr. MITCHELL presented to the House a return respecting Harbor Charges.

A message was brought from the House of Commons by their Clerk, with a Bill intituled: "An Act respecting accessories and abettors of indictable offences," to which they desire the concurrence of this House.

The Bill was read a first time and the second reading ordered for to-morrow.

On motion of the Hon. Mr. BENSON, the Clifton Gas Bill was read a second time and referred to the Standing Committee on Private Bills.

The Clifton Suspension Bridge Company Bill was then read a second time.

Hon. Mr. ROSS said this Bill proposed to incorporate persons who shall become shareholders of the Company, as a body corporate and politic under the name of the "Clifton Suspension Bridge Company," with power to unite with any other person or Company, to construct a suspension bridge over the Niagara river below the falls. He would now move that it be referred to the Committee on private Bills.

Hon. Mr. CAMPBELL said the first clause of the Bill gave power to this Company to join with any other company to build a bridge. He thought it was not desirable to give them this power, as it would give them a monopoly, let them build the bridge upon their own responsibility and then other bridges could be built if necessary. Then in the 9th clause, he would suggest that the clause should read "If any toll collector shall unreasonably and without cause delay or hinder any passengers, &c." He simply drew attention to these points in order that the committee on private bills might take them into consideration when the bill came before them.

Hon. Mr. ROSS said the more bridges there were built there the better, but if one person or two persons, could not of themselves raise the necessary capital to build the bridge, there could be no harm in getting any other public body to become shareholders.

The bill was then referred to the Committee on Private Bills.

REPORT OF THE PRINTING COMMITTEE.

The House went into consideration of the 13th report of the Joint Committee on printing.

Hon. Mr. CAMPBELL wished to defer the adoption of the report for a few days until the other branch of the Legislature had adopted this joint report of the Printing Committees of the two Houses. He objected to the creation of a new department, which would remove the control of the printing entirely from the Speakers of both Houses. The report had passed the House of Commons, but it was now found it was in ignorance of its contents, and was doubtful whether such action would be finally confirmed. Then the report recommended an increase of salary to a clerk, which was at least an invidious distinction between him and other officers. At a time when reductions had just been made in other salaries, it was inopportune to be increasing this case. On both these grounds the adoption of the report ought to be delayed. He was quite sensible of the laudable and useful efforts of this committee, but he hoped the hon. chairman (Mr. Simpson) would postpone the adoption of the report for a few days, until we see what action the Commons branch may take.

Hon. Mr. SIMPSON said as objection had been taken by the Postmaster-General to the adoption of the report, he would briefly state what had been done by the Printing Committee in years past. In 1858 he had introduced a report recommending such changes as he thought from the facts before him, gathered after three months' hard labor, would save to the country a great deal of money. Through the labor brought to bear by that report, and from the cordial assistance given by the Government, he had no hesitation in saying we have saved to the country over one million dollars. We recommended that the printing be managed by a joint committee of both Houses, and this committee has been in existence from that time. We ask now nothing new about the matter, we only ask that these affairs shall be managed by four persons instead of fifteen. We do not ask that one single officer shall be appointed, or one single salary created, but we ask that the work which the committee order under the authority of this House shall be managed by these four persons, and they shall be held responsible for it. He did not agree with the Postmaster-General that they were trying to create a new department, they simply asked to have the work performed in a way which would secure its being efficiently done, and place greater checks upon it than now, thus preventing documents from going astray, and having to be reprinted, as had been formerly. We recommend two messengers specially employed to carry all copy, proofs, and messages, thus avoiding the liability of their being delivered at wrong offices, as is often the case when so many are employed. We recommend a slight increase in the salary of Mr. Hartney, as he has to reside here during the year, and his duties in connection with this work being very heavy. He (Mr. Simpson) then went on to speak of the efficiency of that officer and the satisfactory manner in which his duties were performed, and of his salary in connection with these duties having formerly been reduced from $350 to $200, but now it should be raised to $300, as his duties were much greater than they were formerly. The Committee had agreed to recommend this increase without any application on his part. The reason his salary had been reduced was this: when the Committee first undertook the supervision of the printing, they found the expenses connected with the printing for the Legislature, to be $191,000 a year, and this they had gradually reduced from year to year until they reduced it to $31,000, when having the books all arranged they thought there would not be so much duty for him to perform and they cut down his salary accordingly. He then alluded to his having been chairman of this Committee since its formation, with the exception of two years, when they had another chairman who had obtained a large sum of money for his services in connection with those duties. But he (Mr. Simpson) had never received anything for his services, and had never asked for anything. He spoke at some length about the prices paid for paper, envelopes and printing under the old system, and the economy which had been used by the Committee, and concluded by saying he was perfectly willing at the request of the Postmaster-General to drop the report altogether.

Hon. Mr. SEYMOUR regretted to see the Postmaster-General opposing the adoption of the report. He argued that there would be no additional expenses incurred by its adoption. As to the responsibility spoken of by his hon. friend, surely the Committee was controlled by the House, and what more responsibility could they ask for? Was it necessary that this department should be under the control of the Government? He could see no reason for it, the joint Committee on printing had always managed the department admirably, and there had been no complaint. He then eulogized Mr. Hartney as being an efficient officer, and recommended the increase of his salary.

Hon. Mr. DICKEY said this report was a move in the right direction, but the subject of its adoption was not before them at present, because this was a joint report and it requires united action on the part of both Houses; the question before them was whether they should defer its consideration. After explaining the question in regard to the salary of the Clerk of the committee he said he agreed with the Postmaster-General that it was not desirable to be legislating upon that report until it had been considered in the other House, therefore he hoped they would allow it to stand for a few days.

Hon. Mr. BUREAU (in French) fully approved of the report, and said he thought the Heads of the Departments in this House or under the Government should be well paid, for they had all the responsibility of directing the members of Parliament and the Ministers on any difficult matters. He entirely approved of the increase in Mr. Hartney's salary who was a most efficient officer. He would wish to see established a Parliamentary and Departmental office to supply stationery and printing which would effect a considerable retrenchment in expenses.

Hon. Mr. STEEVES thought the arrangement proposed by the Printing Committee would not assume such an important shape as would entitle it to be denominated a new department. There was a certain amount of labor to be performed in connection with the printing of various documents of this Parliament, and their transmission from one place to another until delivered to the proper officers. The committee found it was very difficult to control and manage the different officers who performed this duty, and they thought it best that a certain number of the employees of this House should be set apart for this particular service, in order that the work might be more under the control of this Committee. It was also necessary that one of the rooms in this building should be set apart for the reception and distribution of these documents. He did not see how this would be establishing a new department, or incurring any additional expense, as the report says the above officers are to be named from the present staff. It was true, the Committee recommended a slight advance in the salary of one of these officers, and that he thought was the only question which could be raised on this report. There might be a difference of opinion in regard to allowing that officer $100 additional to his salary, but he did not for a moment suppose there could be any objection to arranging the labor to be performed. It was taking no power out of the hands of Parliament, because they had still the right to say whether the Committee were doing right or wrong, and of approving or disapproving of their reports as they came in. He had no hesitation in saying he found a disposition on the part of the members of that Committee to serve the public interest to the utmost of their power, instead of their being disposed to increase the expense. They could not only desire to serve the public interest, but their experience enables them to do it with a great amount of efficiency. It is not every one who understands the number of accounts which come before Parliament, and there was a difficulty in ascertaining whether they are correctly charged, or whether they are overcharged. Printers have a manner of making up their accounts, which makes it necessary for a man to be educated in the terms made use of and in the mode and manner of measuring printing, to understand them. From what experience he had in New Brunswick on a Committee of this kind, he could say the members of this Committee have a large experience in this business, and were fully educated in the class of work which came before them. He, as one member of the Committee, had no objection to allow this question to stand over for a day or two, but he doubted very much the propriety of waiting to see whether this report would be sustained or rejected in the other branch of the Legislature.

Hon. Mr. SANBORN thought it unfair to object to this report. This Joint Committee report from time to time to the House and so be entirely under the control of the House. Regarding the objection taken to Mr. Hartney's increased salary for the extra work that this report would entail on him—besides the 12½ per cent. reduction would leave his salary at the same sum as he had originally, even with the proposed increase—but he besides the House would receive full value for the salary named by the personal attention of such an efficient and able officer as Mr. Hartney. This Committee has effected real substantial retrenchment and should be seconded in their efforts. He could see no good reason why this House should await the decision of the other House, and he, therefore, hoped the House would decide at once to adopt the report.

Hon. Mr. ANDERSON entirely agreed with the remarks of the hon member, who has last addressed the House, (Mr. Sanborn) and thought this Committee had effecting a very large saving in the expenses according to his calculations about $1,890 would be gained in the expenses of this House alone.

Hon. Mr. SIMPSON moved that the report be taken into consideration to-morrow.

Hon. Mr. CAMPBELL said in reference to such a large sum having been paid envelopes in excess of what they were worth, that this was the first time it had come under his notice and as somebody must be responsible for the error, he would take especial pains to inquire how it happened. The motion was then adopted and the House adjourned until three o'clock to-morrow.

THURSDAY, April 30, 1868.

Pursuant to adjournment, the SPEAKER took the chair at three o'clock.

After routine,

Hon. Mr. McCULLY moved,

To resolve that in the opinion of this House it is desirable that the law on the subject of interest should be made uniform throughout the Dominion during the present Session.

Hon. Mr. CAMPBELL said it was the intention of the Government to bring in a Bill on that subject during the present Session, therefore, there was no necessity for passing this resolution.

Hon. Mr. McCULLY said he wished the law of interest to be made uniform throughout the Dominion. In Nova Scotia they had the old English law concerning the rate of interest, and as the natural sequence of things, money was being sent away from that Province and invested in other Provinces where it commanded a higher rate of interest. As the Postmaster-General had promised to bring in a Bill in reference to this matter, he would accede to his request and now drop the subject.

Hon. Mr. CAMPBELL said that possibly the Bill might not meet the views of his hon. friend, therefore, he would only ask him to postpone it until he saw the Bill.

Hon. Mr. McCULLY said he would allow it to stand over until Tuesday next.

The Bill entitled "An Act respecting the Treaty between Her Majesty and the United States of America for the apprehension and surrender of certain offenders," was read a third time and passed.

Also, "An Act to define the privileges, immunities and powers of the Senate and House of Commons, and to give summary protection to persons employed in the publication of parliamentary papers."

A message was brought from the House of Commons, with a Bill intituled "An Act constituting the department of Inland Revenue."—Read a first time.

Also, "An Act to regulate and restrict the contingent charges of the departments of Public Service, and to establish a Stationery Office."—Read a first time.

Also, "An Act to enable Banks in any part of Canada to use notes of the Dominion instead of issuing notes of their own."—Read a first time and second reading ordered for Tuesday next.

Also, "An Act respecting the Currency. Received a first reading, and ordered to be read a second time to-morrow.

WHITEAVES' RELIEF—BILL SECOND READING.

Hon. Mr. FERRIER said as the Union Act defined the powers of this Senate to be the same as were enjoyed at that date by the House of Commons, therefore, he intended moving that this Bill be referred to a committee to comply with the rules of the House of Commons, where those Bills are referred to Special Committees of the members, and the evidence comes to them from the House of Lords, who are the court qualified to receive it. The Senate not being able to exercise that power under the Constitutional Act, he asked them to appoint a committee for the purpose of laying the evidence before them which was taken before the Superior Court; that evidence being of the same character as that taken before the House of Lords. Persons will be summoned before that committee, and the committee will have an opportunity of examining witnesses to see whether their testimony corresponds with the evidence taken before the court. This was a case of great hardship, and if this case was postponed until another year, the witnesses who still remain in the country, may leave, and the evidence not be available, therefore, he desired this committee to include gentlemen of high standing in the legal profession, and they can report to the House whether the evidence is sufficient or insufficient to proceed further with the case. He would do all he could to enable the petitioner to obtain what he asks for, therefore, he hoped, though some of the hon. members might feel it their duty always to oppose this class of Bills, that they would reserve their opposition until they saw what action that committee would take. He would now move that the Bill be read a second time.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.

FRIDAY, May 1, 1868.

The SPEAKER took the chair at three o'clock.

SHIPBUILDING.

Mr. DESAULNIERS presented the report of the Select Committee on shipbuilding, recommending the allowance of a drawback on all imported iron for employment in the construction of composite vessels.

FORTIFICATIONS.

A message having been brought down from His Excellency recommending the attention of the House to the resolutions recommending the appropriation of £1,100,000, to be raised under Imperial guarantee, for the purpose of construction of fortifications at Montreal, Kingston, Toronto, Hamilton, Paris or London.

Sir G. E. CARTIER moved the House into committee for their consideration, stating that it had been generally rumored that the Imperial Government had been rather exacting in regard to the proposed appropriation, by which it had been said that Montreal only was to benefit. He was happy to be able to lay before the House the real state of the question. The defence of Quebec and Halifax had been undertaken by the British Government, but that while it was conceded that Canada could always claim the aid, in emergency, of all the resources of the Empire it had been thought only just that the Dominion should share the expenses necessary to make this assistance effectual by providing covering works for the city of Montreal. Consenting to undertake the responsibility on this condition only, the Imperial Government had readily accepted the views entertained here that Ontario should not be left undefended, but while indicating the steps to be taken for carrying out this national requirement he could not be expected to explain the nature of the fortifications purposed to be erected, and which it was expedient to reserve from outside scrutiny. The Montreal fortifications would cost say £440,000, and would be constructed in such a way as to meet the approval of the home authorities, who had pointed out the necessity of similarly protecting St. John, N. B., which could be effected for £190,000 or £200,000 sterling. The balance of £500,000 would be applicable in the largest proportion to Kingston, and the remainder chiefly appropriated to London. Opposition would be raised probably on the ground of the expense, but when a country had reached so great importance as to necessitate fencing in they could hardly object to the very moderate cost by which protection to their property had been secured, and the details of which, as previously announced, had been previously confided to the Chamber. No such complete return for the expense involved was to be found in any European country. It was quite true that the best defence of Canada would be found in the loyalty and patriotism of her people (hear, hear), but though these feelings would supply 700,000 militia men, these should be supported by the fortresses necessary to the judicious handling (to use the Napoleonic phrase applied to Italy) of gros battalions, and not exposed to the risk of being overwhelmed by superior masses of the enemy. Invasion could only be formidable in the summer, during the months of which these fortifications need only be manned for the necessary advantage of the military enthusiasm of the people. The experience of the American war showed how successfully a community, feeble in numbers, might hold its own against a colossal antagonist, when assisted by such fortifications as those of Vicksburg, Petersburg, and Richmond. Single-handed Canada possessed more elements of defence than the Southern Confederacy, and had behind all the power of England to rely upon, for maritime succour and diversion in the direction of California and Oregon, points more vulnerable than any of ours. The American nation had by bitter experience learned the lesson of avoiding as long as possible all war, of which the issue could be doubtful, and were, year after year, appropriating large sums for their own defences from aggression. This action of theirs disposed of the argument that fortifications were unnecessary, and that masses of troops might be most effectually opposed by masses ranged openly against them. For, while the United States possessed a greater amount of such material than we, we saw that they were not satisfied to rely upon such preponderance alone. The examples of the Crimean campaign, and of the recent rivalry between France and Prussia for the possession of Luxemburg, sufficiently illustrated his argument, while the tenacity with which the holders of the quadrilateral disputed ground with the conqueror of Magenta and Solferino told also in his favor. The appropriation for the purchase of such advantages was altogether unexceptionable, and he was able to announce with satisfaction that the Imperial Government had consented to extend to the western fortifications the assistance of guarantee which had been primarily tendered only for those of Montreal. He anticipated little opposition to the measure of which he had explained the necessity, but, after any discussion which might ensue had terminated, would not press a vote that evening, confident that while an overwhelming majority would sustain his position, any objection made on the part of a minority would disappear under the influence of further reflection.

Hon. Mr. HOLTON asked if the Government were to be understood as determined to adjourn the debate before its termination under any circumstances.

Sir G. E. CARTIER replied in the affirmative, stating that many members were then unavoidably absent who would be desirous of taking part in the discussion.

Hon. Mr. HOLTON thought that, if the debate were to be made dependent for its conclusion on the arrival of anticipated supporters, the hon. member for Lambton, who proposed moving an amendment, would prefer to wait until there was some definite prospect of a definite conclusion.

Mr. McKENZIE, believing that nothing tended to obstruct fair discussion so much as these jerking and intermittent adjournments, would pursue the course indicated by the member for Chateauguay.

Sir J. A. MACDONALD taunted the member for Lambton with being afraid to carry out his announced purpose, and with being desirous of taking the Government at the last moment by surprise by raising an unexpected issue.

Mr. McKENZIE repudiated any fear, even for the gentleman commanded who 700,000 men, and was supposed to be able to take command of the channel fleet in addition. He maintained his course to be the regular one, and would adopt his own opportunity for speaking or for keeping silent, conscious that he never cared to stoop to parliamentary trick or unworthy manoeuvre. His amendment would be immediately placed in the hands of the Clerk, and might have been now printed, if the Minister had not declared it to be unnecessary.

Hon. Mr. DORION saw on the hesitation of the Ministry their incapability of taking the question in due order then. They desired to lay over the measure as long as possible, and press it through at the last moments of the Session, which it was desired on their part to hurry to a close.

Sir J. A. MACDONALD having replied,

Hon. Mr. HOLTON stated his belief that Ministers were anxious to postpone a vote until after the anticipated departure of sundry Opposition members on Monday. (Sir J. A. Macdonald—This is the first we ever heard of any such departure) gentlemen from Nova Scotia were about to leave. The member for Hochelaga had occasion to leave. The subject had been very amply discussed already, and might, but for such motives, be easily exhausted to-day.

Hon. Mr. JOHNSON having briefly addressed the House,

Sir G. E. CARTIER rose to speak upon the question, but was ruled out of order.

Sir J. A. MACDONALD then moved the adjournment of the debate, which was put and carried amid opposition. (Cheers.)

RETRENCHMENT.

Upon the motion of the Finance Minister to go into Committee of Supply,

Hon. Mr. HOLTON moved in amendment, the reduction from the 1st July of the Governor General's salary to $35,000, and that of all salaried officers of Government having more than $800 per annum by 12½ per cent., and also to provide that no salaried official shall receive any extra gratuity for special services.

Mr. DUFRESNE desired to move in amendment to the amendment the reduction of the Governor General's salary to $32,000, which the SPEAKER ruled out of order.

Hon. C. DUNKIN submitted that the amendment of the member for Chauteauguay, was also irregular in raising these distinct questions.

A considerable discussion ensued in which Sir J. A. MACDONALD, Messrs. GALT, F. JONES, MASSON (Soulanges) and GRAY took part, the latter alone sustaining the admissability of the motion, and which lasted until six o'clock, when the SPEAKER left the chair.

After Recess.

On the motion of the Hon. Mr. HOLTON, the House went into Committee upon the Bill to confirm the amalgamation of the Commercial and the Merchants' Banks, which was reported with some verbal amendments, and agreed to, the third reading being fixed for Monday.

MONTREAL WEST.

The SPEAKER read a certificate from the Clerk of the Crown in Chancery declaring the due election of Mr. P. Ryan to represent the constituency of West Montreal.

MR HOLTON'S MOTION FOR RETRENCHMENT.

The SPEAKER then gave his decision upon the point of order raised by Mr. DUNKIN, and declared the amendment of the member for Chateauguay to the motion for going into Committee of Supply to be not irregular.

Hon. J. ROSE remarked that it was not impossible that the hon. member had framed his amendment, regarding official emolument in so complex a style with a sensible regard, not only to the interests of the present occupiers, but also of the incoming tenants (laughter,) and went on to show the injustice of indiscriminate uniform curtailment of Departmental salaries, dependent on Legislative enactment, and merited by varying degrees of efficiency.

Mr. F. JONES—Does the Hon. Minister mean to state that these salaries are dependent on enactment of this Dominion Parliament?

Sir J. A. MACDONALD—Some of them.

Hon. J. ROSE—Whether this be the case or not many of these gentlemen have grown grey in the service of the Government, and no complaint has been urged against their efficiency. The forthcoming Civil Service Bill would make such discrimination as the careful attention of the Government had been enabled to command between employees of diverse capacities, and he protested against the deliberate, carefully considered action of the Administration being anticipated by such rough and ready treatment.

Mr. CHAMBERLIN had listened with much satisfaction to the denunciation, on the part of the Minister, of the principle of applying the scalping knife of these absurd 12½ per cent. propositions to every man in public service, whether desirable or otherwise. He could only have desired that the Minister had taken the same line a few nights since, when the treasury bench voted down the effort of himself and some of his friends, to exempt their own immediate employees from the proscription now decried. He found nothing in the amendment with which to concur. The salary of the Governor-General was exorbitant if judged by local standard or bestowed by local patronage, but it was not excessive with consideration to the authority and the quarters from which its incumbent must come. The second portion of the proposition was too mischievous and absurd to need serious encounter. The third was totally unnecessary having been already anticipated by the Ministry.

Hon. Mr. DORION endorsed the reference of the last Speaker to the inconsistencies of the administration in attempting to ridicule a principle to-night which they had themselves enunciated last week. Going on to support the amendment, he characterized it as being merely a directory admonition of the House to the Government declaring the course which it was thought desirable that administrative action should follow, and seeking no usurpation, as had been alleged, of executive authority.

Mr. YOUNG supported the amendment, and attempted to throw discredit upon the course of the member for Missisquoi in opposition.

Mr. CARTWRIGHT held that the salary of the Governor-General was far from excessive in consideration of the state he was necessitated to uphold, and the hospitalities his position compelled him to dispense.

Mr. OLIVER supported the amendment, and was replied to by Mr. POPE, after whom

Hon. Mr. HUNTINGTON dealt with the argument, that the fixity of the Governor's salary proposed by the member for Chateauguay was inadmissable, on the assumption that the imposition of such a necessity upon any private member sufficiently censured the Ministry who had not led the House to a judicious consideration of the question. He must support the resolution, knowing that, as the homely graphic phrase put it, what was sauce for the goose, was also sauce for the gander, and being unable to see the grounds for Ministers' defection from the principles of economy laid down so vauntingly the other day. The motion that we were to subordinate our own convictions of prudence to any vague apprehension of the verdict of English opinion of our provincialism was too absurd to be reasonably entertained.

Hon. Mr. LANGEVIN argued that the dignity of His Excellency's position required maintenance by a liberal salary.

Hon. Mr. CONNELL, who was imperfectly audible in the gallery, was understood to express a general objection to large salaries,

Mr. BELLEROSE having defended the Government position,

Sir J. A. MACDONALD pointed out that the vote to be given upon the amendment by any member, would not debar him at any future stage from maintaining any opinions he preferred upon the points at issue, and characterized the motion of the member for Chateauguay as factious merely, and brought up only as a party weapon. It was insulting to the representatives of Her Majesty to class him under the proposed 12½ per cent. reduction among tide-waiters and door-keepers, or other inferior persons. The hon. Premier concluded a speech of some length amid considerable applause.

Mr. BLAKE supported the amendment and asked, in reference to the Premier's exclusive theory, if the Governor were not so sacred in being, as to forbid his being concerned in any pecuniary appropriation, for which, if consented to at all, a special day should be set apart from the profane competition of other people.

Mr. J. H. CAMERON opposed the amendment, believing that the Governor-General was not paid too highly.

Hon. Mr. CHAUVEAU followed on the same side.

Mr. BOLTON, though in favor of retrenchment, could not consent to vote for an amendment which could not but work unfairly.

Mr. LITTLE said that there was no man within the House whom he would follow with such confidence as Sir John, and no leader of the Opposition in whom he had equal trust. And at the request of Sir John he had, a few nights since, voted for the reduction of the salaries of gentlemen whose worth he valued from personal acquaintance, and yet was now told by the leader whom he had served, that he must not venture to vote a reduction of the salaries of officials with whom he was not acquainted. His honor demanded that he should not altogether submit to this dragooning, even with the recollection of the lash held over their heads by the Minister of Public Works, and in vindication of his consistency, in preference to his personal sympathies, he must support the amendment. (Applause.)

Mr. BURPEE supported the amendment which Mr. A. P. MACDONALD opposed, Mr. WALSH having attacked Mr. LITTLE for his independence of Government control. Mr. SCATCHERD replied in support of the amendment.

The amendment was then put and lost on a division of 52 to 73.

Mr. McKENZIE, speaking to the original motion, complained of the charge made by the Premier against the Opposition as being disposed to impede the business of the country. The Government had voluntarily adjourned business at six o'clock night after night, and had no ground to complain of the just action of their opponents in saying what they had to say in the public interest at the proper period. The lash that had been wielded last night by the Minister for Public Works, and had echoed this morning in the grumblings of the streets and the corridors, it had been thought more prudent this evening to place in the gentler hands of the member for Peel, who with the member for Missisquoi in pure party style had conjointly turned the tide of war.

Mr. CHAMBERLIN repudiated the insinuation that he had voted from unworthy personal motives. He had voted from party consideration as had been alleged, but from some considerations connected with the broad party that sought the welfare of the Union. (Hear, hear.) The party that had never degraded itself by the quest of anti-Confederate votes, or craftily introduced issues. (Applause.)

After some remarks from Mr. LAWSON,

To which Mr. J. RYMAL replied amid much merriment, by showing the hon. member's inconsistencies, the House went into Committee of Supply, Hon. Col. GRAY in the chair, and after one item had been agreed to, resumed, and rose at twenty-five minutes past two this morning.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

The Florence Nightingale of the Nursery.—The following is an extract from a letter written by the Rev. C. Z. Weizer, to the German Reformed Messenger, at Chambersburg, Penn.:

A BENEFACTRESS.—Just open the door for her, and Mrs. WINSLOW will prove the American Nightingale of the Nursery. Of this we are sure, that we will teach our "SUSY" to say "A Blessing Mrs. Winslow," for helping her to survive an escape the griping, colicking and teething siege. We confirm every word set forth in the prospectus. It performs precisely what it professes to perform, every part of it—nothing less. Away with your "Cordial," "Paregoric," "Drops," "Laudanum," and every other "Narcotic," by which the babe is drugged into stupidity, and rendered dull and idiotic for life.

We have never seen Mrs. Winslow—know her only through the preparation of her "Soothing Syrup for Children Teething." If we had the power, we would make her, as she is, a physical saviour to the infant race. 25 cents a bottle. Sold by all druggists. Be sure and call for "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup." Having the fac-simile of "CURTIS & PERKINS" on the outside wrapper. All others are base imitations. 709d14w2m

Mothers Read This!—Holloway's Worm Lozenges are a certain and safe remedy for Worms in Children and Adults.—As it is a well-known and melancholy fact that one great cause of death among children is from Worms alone, it cannot be too deeply impressed upon the minds parents the necessity of closely watching their children. By so doing; and understanding he symptoms and true cause of the disease, thousands of children might be saved from early graves. SYMPTOMS OF WORMS:—The following are a few of the very numerous symptoms and diseases which are caused by Worms: deranged appetite, emaciated extremities, offensive breath frequent picking at the nose, grinding of the teeth during sleep, hardness of the belly, with frequent slimy stools, and sometimes convulsive fits; itching of the arms, pain in the head and stomach, unquiet sleep, faintings, tremblings, coughs, indigestion low spirits, frightful dreams, and a gradual waisting away of flesh.

They are palatable and self-administered to th child—drive out the worms thoroughly without pain and completely cleanse the stomach—thereby doing away with the necessity of administering Casto Oil or other unpleasant cathartics—as in the use of other Worms.

☞ Each box contains the fac-simile signature of NORTHROP & LYMAN, Newcastle, C.W., who are he sole proprietors.

N. B. Ask for Holloway's Worm Lozenges ☞ and take no other. ☜ Sold by all the druggists in Ottawa, and medicine deale eve where. 578y

OTTAWA, Feb. 14, 1868. 666-3m

GOVERNMENT HOUSE, OTTAWA,

Monday, 6th April, 1868.

PRESENT:

HIS EXCELLENCY THE GOVERNOR GENERAL IN COUNCIL.

WHEREAS by the 81st section of the Act 31 Vic., Cap. 6, intituled: "An Act respecting the Customs," it is enacted that—"Except in cases which by any regulation to be made by the Governor in Council, may be excepted from the operation of this section, all spirits (unless in bottle and imported from the United Kingdom, or in bond from a Bonded Warehouse in some British Possession) brought into Canada, in casks and packages of less size than to contain one hundred gallons, shall be forfeited."

And whereas Brandies and other Spirits are usually exported from Europe in Casks or other packages, containing less than one hundred gallons, whereby such goods, when imported into Canada, would become liable to forfeiture as aforesaid, unless excepted from the operation of the 81st section of the Act referred to,—Therefore His Excellency in Council, on the recommendation of the Honorable the Minister of Customs, and under the authority given by the said Act, has been pleased to make the following "Regulation:"

"All importations of spirits made direct to Canada from European Ports, shall be and they are hereby excepted from the operation of the 81st section of the Act 31 Vic., Cap. 6, intituled: "An Act respecting the Customs."

THE CANADIAN PAIN DESTROYER HAS now been before the public for a length of time, and whenever used is well liked, never failing in a single instance to give permanent relief when timely used, and we have never known a single case of dissatisfaction where the directions are properly followed; but on the contrary, all are delighted with its operations, and speak in the highest terms of its virtues and magical effects.

We speak from experience in this matter, having tested it thoroughly, and therefore those who are suffering from any of the complaints for which it is recommended may depend upon its being a Sovereign Remedy.

The astonishing efficacy of the Canadian Pain Destroyer, in curing diseases for which it is recommended, and its wonderful success in subduing the torturing pains of Rheumatism, and in relieving Nervous Affections, entitle it to a high rank in the list of Remedies for these complaints. Orders are coming in from Medicine Dealers in all parts of the country for further supplies, and each testifying as to the universal satisfaction it gives.

DARLEY'S

Arabian Heave Remedy

AND CONDITION MEDICINE

IS POSITIVELY SUPERIOR TO ANY or all other preparations for the cure of Heaves, Coughs, Thick and Broken Wind, and all diseases which affect the Wind of Horses; also, as a Condition Medicine, surpassing everything of the kind is easy to give, sure to cure, and safe in all cases and at all times, and does not prevent the horse from being worked while using it.

It cleanses the breathing apparatus, by removing from the air-cells the coagulable lymph, or that secretion which in heaves clogs them, causing a difficulty in breathing, and by its action on the diseased part, causing the mucous membrane to resume its natural dimensions, thus equalizing the circulation of the blood, and restoring the distended vessels to their natural size; by its use the horse's appetite is improved, all derangements of the digestive organs corrected, softening the skin, and giving to the coat a sleek and shining appearance.

MONDAY, MAY 4, 1868.

We may state as a reason for the delay in determining whether the prisoners now in custody, charged with the murder of the Hon. T. D. McGee, or as accessories thereto, shall be tried by Special Commission or held over until the next Assizes, that the Hon. Attorney-General for Ontario has been absent from the capital for some days, and the question has not yet been formally taken into consideration. As we remarked on a former occasion, opinion is universally in favor of the issue of a Special Commission, as in every way better than holding over the prisoners for some five months, till the Fall Assizes. It is probable that the matter will be decided in the course of a few days, and from all we can learn, in favor of the trial of the prisoners by Special Commission. The promptitude with which the trial and conviction of O'Farrell followed his attempt on the life of Prince Alfred has naturally quickened the desire, which in itself was natural enough without such an example, that an end should be put to the suspense in the public mind as speedily as the ends of justice would permit. Nearly four weeks have already elapsed since the authorities were on the track of the prisoners now in custody; they have worked incessantly in ferreting out as far as possible those who were connected with the deed; and if, as there is reason to believe, they feel they have already succeeded in preparing their case to go before a jury, it appears that the ends of justice are more likely to suffer than be served by awaiting the Fall Assizes. But of course we can only speak of the matter as appreciated by the public, there may be reasons for a contrary course, of which we are entirely ignorant.

In the death of Mr. McDonnell, of Quebec, the press of Canada has lost one whose early labours gave promise of a brilliant future. Though an advocate by profession, and undoubtedly qualified, had he applied himself to law, to have achieved distinction at the bar, it was rather as a laborious and accomplished member of the fourth estate, that he was known and esteemed by a numerous circle of friends. As paragraphist, reporter and editor; sometimes as poet and story writer, he is acknowledged to have gone through an immense amount of hard fagging work during his connection with the press; and in the reporter's gallery he has ever been spoken of as the crack "long hand" reporter in Canada. But Mr. McDonnell had to struggle early against the approaches of that insidious disease—consumption—and was finally compelled to abandon the laborious duties of the journalist. He continued, however, while health permitted, to be an occasional contributor to the Chronicle, and we have reason to believe that his name was retained on the staff of that paper, when failing health no longer permitted him to contribute to its columns. Mr. McDonnell was unmarried, and the sole support of his widowed mother. His early death will be lamented by his many friends who knew and appreciated the kindly geniality of his nature, and recognised in his poetic and other contributions to the press a promise of higher literary achievements. Among the journals with which he was associated before his connection with the Chronicle may be mentioned the Montreal New Era.

We are glad to be able to announce that the authorities have taken a decided step towards the prevention of the circulation of treasonable publications in Canada. On Saturday last Detectives O'Neill and Cullen, under instructions from Mr. O'Reilly, visited the several news depots in the city and obtained possession of the whole supply of pro-Fenian literature in town, at the same time informing the agents that no more pernicious stock of the kind should be offered by them for sale unless at the risk of prosecution. The agents were quite willing to conform to the strictest observance of the law in this respect, as they were on a former occasion, when the vigilance of the press called forth the official condemnation of the immoral sensational sheets imported from the neighboring Republic, so that now the sale of treasonable publications is stopped in this part of Canada. Mr. McMicken, who left for Toronto on Saturday evening, will see that the same kind service is done for the news stalls in Toronto this morning, and arrangements have also been made for a like procedure in Montreal and other cities.

This is a righteous step, which we are sure the good sense of the country will applaud. We have already expressed our views upon the impropriety of permitting noxious publications to circulate in the country—as well the obscene, which sap the foundations of morality, as the pro-Fenian treason-breeding sheets that poison the minds of their more simple readers, and inflame their passions to deeds of lawlessness; and we are now heartily glad that the nuisance has at length been firmly grappled with. Even the State Legislature of New York has passed a most stringent law against obscene publications and immoral advertisements, which if rigidly enforced in that State will be a great blessing to Canada; and if our own authorities, as they seem prepared to do, will now abate the other more dangerous, if less disgusting, nuisance of treason-spouting sheets being scattered broadcast throughout the land they will do a service to the whole community; and confer a signal favor on those whose national predilections expose them to be led astray by the perusal of the inflammatory effusions of bastard patriotism with which they abound. Opinion is setting steadily and firmly towards the conviction that liberty must no longer be permitted to degenerate into license; and therefore we believe that this action on the part of those now engaged in investigating the circumstances connected with the recent melancholy tragedy, will be heartily endorsed by every thinking man in the community, who desires to see the peace of the country preserved. But those who have heretofore been in the habit of patronising and sympathizing with these publications, have by far the greatest reason to be thankful that a dangerous source of temptation has been removed from them. For our own part, we hope that the step now taken will be vigorously followed up, because, believing in the influence of the press, we are convinced alike of its power to do mischief and of the duty of those in authority to restrain it, whenever it oversteps the legitimate bounds of freedom.

The appointment of constables to guard the Public Buildings, which we mentioned on Saturday, was made in conformity with the provisions of the Act empowering the Government to appoint Stipendiary Magistrates having general jurisdiction, who can, when authorised by order in Council, appoint a designated number of officers for special or general duty. The local authorities were quite prepared to have put on a special force, but it was correctly concluded that the Public Buildings should be guarded at the public expense, and therefore an order in Council was passed directing Mr. McMicken to appoint this force under the provisions of the Act alluded to, by which also their services are made available for police duty in any part of the Province, under his directions. It may be presumed that this step has been taken in compliance with the promise said to have been made by the Premier, when the member for East Durham brought the matter up in the House of Commons, with closed doors, to which allusion has already been made in the Times.

We have been informed that Dr. Pyne has had a final interview with the Secretary of State for Canada, concerning the affairs of the Mississagua tribe of Indians of the Credit, and having placed all the papers and particulars of their claims before the Secretary of State, and the aid papers and particulars being reported upon and the reports laid before the Secretary, he has finally assured Dr. Pyne that after the present Session of Parliament is over he will at as early a day as possible, complete and finally dispose of these long pending claims.

We have received a copy of the eloquent oration of the Archbishop of Halifax, on the late Hon. T. D. McGee, in pamphlet form, revised by His Grace, and published in pamphlet form by Messrs. Compton of the Halifax Express.

THE INVESTIGATION.

There is but little to add of the proceedings of Saturday, except the wholesale clearing of the news depots of certain Fenian or pro-Fenian newspapers. The Irish American, the Irish People, and if we mistake not, the Irish Canadian, were taken in charge by detectives Cullen and O'Neill, the agents readily assenting to the request that no more of them should be offered in this market.

It is reported that an effort was made to have Michael Starrs admitted to bail, but that it was not attended with success.

Some witnesses were also examined in private, but we have not heard whether any important testimony was elicited.

LOCAL NEWS.

Police Court.—Several persons were brought up on Saturday and fined for keeping foul premises.

Ottawa Provisional Battalion.—Mr. Jas. B. Lamb was gazetted on Saturday as acting Ensign, vice Cherry, promoted.

Young & Radford, of 30, Sparks-st., always employ the best workmen, and are therefore able to make all kinds of Jewellery, Masonic jewels medals, &c.

Auction Sale this Evening.—Remember the great auction sale of dry goods this evening at 7 o'clock, at Prud'homme's store, Sussex-st. Great bargains may be had.

Augmentation of the City Police Force.—We understand that it is in contemplation to augment the city police force by the appointment of five more men.

A Break Down.—A broken down water cart was suffered to remain on the Sappers' Bridge for a long time on Saturday to the great inconvenience of travel, and came near causing several other accidents.

Ottawa Cricket Club.—The annual meeting of the members of this club, for the election of officers and the transaction of general business, will be held at the Russell House, this evening, at eight o'clock. All persons desirous of joining are invited to attend.

The Galaxy.—We have received this illustrated magazine for May. This number contains a large amount of interesting reading matter with some wood cut illustrations. Also Le Monde special edition for the United States. Jones & Holland have both for sale.

Fire Alarm.—The fire bells sounded an alarm on Saturday night, a little before nine o'clock, when all the companies promptly answered the call and proceeded on their way towards the Chaudiere, but when told that it was an untenanted house near Sparks' mills, which could not be saved, they turned back.

Presentation from Washington to Ottawa.—A copy of the book lately published in the States entitled "A Tribute of the Nations to the Memory of Abraham Lincoln" was received here on Saturday, addressed to the Municipal Council of Ottawa, from the Department of State at Washington. The volume is quarto size and contains 950 pages, filled with the expressions of condolence from all countries on the occasion of the late President's assassination.

Launch of the "Shamrock."—Messrs. Heney and Neville's new barge was launched at the Canal basin on Saturday morning. This is a capital boat, and well adapted for the wood or grain trade. She is about 100 tons burthen, 96 feet in length, and 19 feet beam. She is strong, compact, and a good model. The owners have another flat bottomed barge on the stocks which will be ready in July.

St. Alban's Penny Readings.—This evening these popular readings will be continued, the following gentlemen having kindly consented to give their assistance:—Col. Macdougall, Mr. Langton, the Rev. Dr. Bedford Jones, Capt. Stewart and Mr. Carrier. The readings begin at 8 p. m. precisely, and the public are respectfully requested to be punctual. Those who come late disturb both the reader and the audience.

Runaway.—On Saturday, as a farmer drove into the market and backed up his wagon in its place, the horse, for some cause or other chose to gallop off, to the consternation of the bystanders who ran in all directions out of his way, and had not the stout arm of a brave fellow seized him by the head at Story's store, the girl who remained in the wagon, might have been seriously injured. As it was, all the damage done was the scattering a basket of butter about the wagon, and so disfiguring it as to induce the owner to sell it at a reduced price.

City Hall and Council Chamber.—Since the last meeting of our City Fathers, there has been a general renovation of the City Hall, outside and in. The lock-up has been completed, and has done good service. The whole of the exterior of the building has been whitewashed and the Council Chamber refitted and furnished so as to make a really creditable appearance. The walls have been colored in distemper, something between a warm white and French grey. The former desk at which the Mayor sat has been removed, and a small desk of a gothic pattern placed in its stead, raised on a semi-circular platform, which is covered with a magenta colored cloth. The old Council table is retained, newly covered and varnished, and like the Mayor's desk is furnished with neat gas fixtures. The old seats are continued back to the western wall, painted and finished in oak graining. All the painting and coloring has been done by Mathewman in excellent style; new matting has been laid down, and two new cylindrical coal stoves have taken the place of the old unsightly ones. Tables have been furnished for reporters, and a number of other improvements and embellishments contribute to the comparative elegance of a Council Chamber for which Ottawa scarcely needs to blush. Mr. Cluff was the contractor for the work, acting under the instructions of the City Engineer. This evening the council hold a meeting for the despatch of business.

At the Oil Depot, 73 Sussex street, you can get a full assortment of Hall Lamps and Chandeliers, Table Lamps, with new sun burners and globes to fit. The best oil on hand. Sign—Red Oil Barrel, 73 Sussex street.

INTERCOLONIAL RAILWAY ROUTE.

To the Editor of THE TIMES:

Sir,—In your issue of Saturday last, "a New Brunswicker," after a long silence, has reappeared in another of his characteristic articles on the subject of the route. This is evidently the same protean writer, who, over the signature of "Ontario," claimed to speak for the people of Western Canada, over that of "a Nova Scotian," he pretended to be the mouthpiece of that Province; over that of "Confederate," he became the weak apologist of his St. Stephens friends, who have, I perceive, taken my hint, and stopped his officious championship, lest he might still further damage their cause, already weak enough. Now, he reappears as "a New Brunswicker," but under all his disguises, the same animus is apparent, and the same style of argument. He has not wit enough to see that mere personal abuse, the imputation of unworthy motives, and audacious misstatements, must inevitably lead to disgraceful defeat, and cover the writer who employs them with well-merited contempt. Declining my challenge to assume his own name, he still prefers to shower abuse on all who will not accept his falsehoods as pure and unadulterated truth, and his palpable self-interest as the prompting of the most lofty and self-sacrificing patriotism. As I have fully exposed his mendacity over his former signatures, I propose to follow him as long as he pursues his tortuous course over his present nom-de-plume. Again challenging him to strip off his disguise and let the public, for whom he pretends to write, know him personally as well as I do, and judge for themselves who are pulling the wires of this ready puppet, I am quite ready to meet him on this ground, and compare character, standing, moral worth and motives with his own or those of his masters. Let this be a sufficient answer to all the mean insinuations contained in this his last production, while I examine some of the misstatements with which it abounds.

"New Brunswicker" says that he was acquainted with the politicians and politics of New Brunswick, when his opponent was an infant, because he is well on to half a century old, and he adds that if his opponent knew him, he would scarcely question "New Brunswicker's" better opportunities for becoming acquainted with the different sections of the Province, their feelings and interests. Now in reply to this, I have to say that I know this writer well and all his antecedents; that I am nearly if not quite his equal in years; that when we were both boys and young men, I had better opportunities than he boasts of for knowing the politics of our Province; that ever since I have had superior opportunities; that I believe I know the different sections of the Province quite as well as he does, and, that in point of general intelligence, and all the qualities on which he prides himself, I am ready, as I before said, to make my name known and to compare with him, just as soon as he throws off the disguise he was the first to assume.

This much I have thought it due to myself to say; now I am ready to appeal to "the standard of fact," and see how his statements will look when measured by that standard.

He admits the existence of a clique of annexationists in St. John, but says he has never heard of any such in Charlotte. I can only say in reply that I suspected his boasted knowledge of New Brunswick was assumed, and he now admits that such is the fact. I do most unequivocally assert that these cliques are the most active and unscrupulous advocates of the Frontier route, and that this writer is playing into their hands, whether he intends it or not.

With regard to his long and most unfair tirade against the North, it is so palpably and disgustingly false that I need waste no time in exposing it.

He endeavors to show that the "inertness displayed by the people of the Central, Southern and Western parts of the Province," is to be excused, because "they never imagined "that such an insane act would be committed "by the Government or Legislature of the "Dominion, as carrying the Intercolonial by "the Northern line." Now, if this writer is as well acquainted with the politics and politicians of his native Province as I am, he must know, as I do, that there never was a well-grounded hope of any other route being agreed to by the British Government. He must know that every proposition to carry the road by a Frontier route has been met by a refusal to give the guarantee, and that a special reservation was made that any route departing much from that recommended by Major Robinson must be subject to the approval of the Imperial Government. If "New Brunswicker" denies this, I refer him to the correspondence extending over 30 years, to be found in the Journals of Assembly, and if his acquaintance with public matters is only half as full as he boastingly asserts, he has no excuse for the mendacious statement he has dared to make over an assumed name.

I again assert, and I dare this bold falsifier to deny, that the "railway resolutions" were hurried through the Local House by mere trickery; that the Northern members begged for time to prepare replies to the long and fallacious arguments advanced by those who were mere cat's-paws and tools in the hands of those who pulled the wires, the most prominent of whom is in Ottawa; that this was refused, and a division pressed for before the Northern members had a chance of reply. I have now in my possession letters from Northern members who loudly complain of the indecent haste with which this "little game" was managed, so as to prevent them from exposing the fallacies and misstatements advanced by the introducer, and those who supported him.

Respecting his reference to the press, I assert that, until very recently, since this agitation was commenced, the press of New Brunswick was all but silent upon the subject of the route, and that even the most sanguine minds in New Brunswick never expected the Frontier line would be adopted, and indulged but a very faint hope of the adoption of the Central. At one time New Brunswick offered to assume one-third of the whole cost of the road by the Northern route, if the extension from Shediac to St. John was included in the guarantee, and the negotiations fell to the ground in consequence of the refusal of the Imperial Government to accede to the demand. Since then Southern New Brunswick has got the Shediac road, Western Extension, the St. Stephens branch, the Fredericton branch, and the Woodstock branch, but she still wants "all or none," without regard to any interests but her own. I challenge "New Brunswicker" to make good a denial of this assertion, and until he does so, I hold his "veracity" in about as much respect under his present signature as it deserved under his former one.

Respecting the "petitions numerously signed," I could say much. This was a part of the same "little game," and is very thoroughly understood by the members of the Cabinet, and appreciated accordingly.

As to the caucus held here in Ottawa, from which all Northern members were excluded, I have only to say that the member for St. John was so disgusted with the whole proceedings that he left the meeting in disgust, after protesting against the course pursued.

What "New Brunswicker" expects to prove by his ingenious array of figures, I don't pretend to know, but I do know that he has utterly failed to answer the figures given in my last letter, where I proved, even from his own data, that the Northern line will cost $1,190,000 less than the Central.

Although I am a New Brunswicker, and am quite as sincere in my wish for the welfare and prosperity as my opponent pretends to be, I have too much regard for plain and simple truth to shut my eyes to palpable facts such as the following: In the Spring of 1855 a general election to test the feelings of the Province on the question of Confederation resulted in the rejection of that measure. Just one year after the people were again appealed to, and gave an overwhelming vote in favor of it. Scarce two years have elapsed, and what do we see? At the recent election in St. John ample proof was given that the people of St. John would again reverse their vote, if they had an opportunity. And "New Brunswicker" shows himself only too ready to increase and encourage the discontent, which I am happy to believe exists only among men like himself, whose sectional feelings and grasping selfishness lead them to ignore all interests but their own. Like petulant children, who want the moon for a plaything, these disaffected annexationists and repealers threaten fearful things, if they do not get all their whims gratified, and agitators like "New Brunswicker" are only too ready, under the guise of patriotism, to feed and keep alive the discontent, hoping thereby, to frighten the Cabinet into favoring their schemes.

And his article closes with a most inflammatory appeal to the worst prejudices of the worst class of these malcontents. He seems to be aware of this, and partly ashamed of it, for he makes a lame apology, under the hypocritical cover of patriotism, for using what he rightly designates "incendiary" language. I have no words to characterize this base attempt, and I only regret that any one hailing from New Brunswick, is so lost to all regard for the welfare of his native land, as to play thus into the hands of its worst enemies. I pronounce this writer's whole article a tissue of deliberate falsehoods, and his assurance in pretending to write in the interest of truth, is equalled only by his stupidity. I regret to be obliged to use this plain language, but I gave him fair warning that I should not hesitate to call things by their right names. If he objects to this let him accept my proposal to assume his own, and put our claims to veracity to the test.

Yours &c., Examiner.

MIDNIGHT DESPATCHES.

London, May 2.—The crisis in the British Cabinet occasioned by the recent division on the subject of the Irish Church, monopolizes the public attention to-day. It is thought that if the measures which are in effect approved by both parties are not opposed by the Liberals the present Cabinet will not resign or dissolve Parliament until an appeal can be made to the new constituencies.

The Times, in an editorial to-day, recommends this course.

THE CANADIAN PARLIAMENT.

1st PARLIAMENT. 1st SESSION.

THE SENATE.

Thursday, April 30, 1868.

Hon. Mr. McCULLY in seconding the motion said that he was not quite satisfied that this Senate had any power in the matter. He had seconded this Bill pro forma, because he was anxious if the Senate has this power to give him every assistance he could. If the Senate had not this power, there ought to be a power vested in some organisation to give the relief sought by this Bill. He was afraid his hon. friend had fallen into the error of thinking that this Senate possessed the power the late Legislative Council of Canada had before the Union. He considered that this Senate as constituted under an Act of the Imperial Parliament did not possess powers as a court to discharge these functions. If this was nothing more than an Act of Parliament, then they are right in proceeding.

Hon. Mr. CAMPBELL—Nothing more.

Hon. Mr. McCULLY—The next point is this: the Senate has no power to examine witnesses under oath.

Hon. Mr. FERRIER said he had stated that, and therefore he wished it referred to a committee of the legal profession.

Hon. Mr. ROSS said this Bill was to be referred to a Special Committee, with power to examine under oath the same as in the Parliament of England. It is based upon the precedent of the House of Lords. In the Legislative Council of the two Canadas witnesses were sworn and examined under oath the same as in the House of Lords, and under the Constitutional Act of 1867, we have the same powers as the Legislative Council of the two Canadas had. They assumed this authority, but the Bills were reserved for the assent of the Crown.

Hon. Mr. BUREAU did not object so much to the mere separation of a man and wife, as to allowing the parties afterwards to marry, and he cited the United States to prove the ruinous evils such acts have on the morals, well-being, and the entire social interests of communities. He had collected some statistics which proved, to him at least, conclusively, that in that country where the laws of divorce obtain there were about ten cases daily, or 3,000 yearly, thereby depriving about 9,000 children of the fostering care of one of their natural protectors at least. Hence see the results.

Hon. Mr. FERRIER said he had named the Committee from gentlemen of the legal profession.

Hon. Mr. LETELLIER de St. JUST opposed the divorce, particularly when power is granted the parties to remarry, as in many cases, holding out inducements to infidelity to matrimonial vows.

Hon. Mr. MILLER opposed the divorce as ruinous to the best interests of society, and holding out facilities in many cases to gratify criminal desires, by the Legislature legalizing future marriages, and consequently he would oppose the second reading of the Bill.

Hon. Mr. FERRIER did not think the opponents of the Bill would be in any worse position on account of this Committee being appointed, which will be composed of gentlemen of the highest qualifications, and he was perfectly satisfied justice would be done.

Hon. Mr. CHAPAIS (in French) did not call in question the right of the Senate to deal with the question of divorce, but denied the wisdom, propriety or moral right of exercising that power. He opposed the second reading from a sense of duty, not as Minister, but as a member of the great Christian family. Men of various religious opinions had looked on divorce as a wrong, and he would always do all he could to prevent the spread of what he must say, he considered as dangerous principles, and ruinous to the whole social fabric.

Hon. Mr. McCULLY said the difficulty in this Dominion was that they had no other court for these cases. He would like to see this subject entirely withdrawn from Parliament, because, in this large Dominion, these questions would be constantly coming up, and this Parliament would be frequently called upon to deal with individual cases. In England they have laws which enables them to deal with this question without its coming before Parliament at all. The British Parliament have conferred the power to act in these cases, and if this Bill is thrown out without a second reading, the case is prejudged before we get the evidence, and no other person can succeed in future.

Hon. Mr. MILLER admitted this was the correct mode to adopt, but regretted that any question should be brought before Parliament which necessarily brought up distinctions between creeds and religious beliefs of hon. members of this House. He was sure the majority of this House would support this measure, but thought it preferable that a special court be appointed to try such cases, although decidedly opposed to the law of divorce.

Hon. Mr. LETELLIER de St. JUST did not oppose the Bill for the mere sake of opposition, but wished the minority to put their opinions on record, and that they should have an opportunity of doing their duty.

Hon. Mr. KENNY did not object to separating a bad wife or a bad husband from their lawful partner, but according to the doctrines of his church he objected to the parties being allowed to marry again.

Hon. Mr. TESSIER would have preferred that the motion in opposition had been put out at once, so as to make it unnecessary to argue again the objections at the subsequent stages. Of course he was opposed decidedly to divorce, and must, in duty, oppose the measure.

Hon. Mr. CHAPAIS wished to repeat in English what he had said in French, and would prefer that the actions for divorce, if such there must be, should be tried by this House rather than committed to a Court of Justice.

Hon. Mr. BUREAU moved in amendment, seconded by the Hon. Mr. DUMOUCHEL, to insert "not" after the word "be," and after "time" to insert the following, "but that it be resolved, that in the opinion of this House the divorce a vinculo matrimonii destroys in marriage those two characters of unity and indissolubility which Christian communities have always deemed to be essential safeguards of moral and family ties."

Hon. Mr. LETELLIER de ST. JUST took exception to the wording of the motion.

Hon. Mr. BUREAU in answer to the hon. member (Mr. Lettellier de St. Just) said that his motion was properly worded, owing to the distinction between a divorce a mensa et thoro, and a divorce a vinculo matrimonii. The former is not to dissolve the marriage bond, but simply to authorize the separation of the parties and of their property (seperation de corps et de biens) while the latter declares null and void, or rescinds the marriage contract, and allows one or both of the parties to marry again.

The amendment was then put and lost on a division.

The question being put on the main motion, the House divided, and the names being called for, they were taken down as follows:

Contents—The Honorable Messieurs Aikins, Allan, Benson, Bill, Blake, Botsford, Burnham, Campbell, Dickey, Dickson, Ferguson, Ferrier, Glasier, Hamilton (Inkerman), Hamilton (Kingston), Hazen, Leonard, Leslie, McCrea, McCully, McMaster, Macpherson, Mitchell, Odell, Reesor, Ross, Sanborn, Seymour, Shaw, Simpson, Skead, Stevens, Wark, Wier.—34.

Non-Contents—The Honorable Messieurs Armand, Bourinot, Bureau, Gauchon, Chapais, Cormier, Dever, Dumouchel, Flint, Guevremont, Kenny, Lacoste, Letellier de St. Just, Malhiot, Miller, Olivier, Tessier.—17.

The Bill was then read a second time; when,

Hon. Mr. FERRIER moved, seconded by the Hon. Mr. McCULLY,

That the seventy-ninth Rule of this House be dispensed with in so far as it relates to the said Bill, intituled: "An Act for the relief of Joseph Frederick Whiteaves," and that the said Bill be referred to a Select Committee composed of the Hon. Messrs. ALLAN, CAMPBELL, DICKEY, HAZEN, McCREA, McCULLY, ROSS, SANBORN, and the mover, to report thereon with all convenient speed, with power to send for persons, papers and records, and that the exemplification of the proceedings to final judgment of the Superior Court, Montreal, presented to the Senate on the reading of the petition of the said Joseph Frederick Whiteaves, be referred to the said Committee.

The motion was then carried on the same division.

The Bill intituled "An Act respecting accessories and abettors of indictable offences," was read a second time, and ordered to be committed to a Committee of the whole House to-morrow.

REPORT ON PRINTING.

Pursuant to the order of the day, the House went into the consideration of the thirteenth report of the Joint Committee on Printing.

Hon. Mr. SIMPSON observed that there had been so much said about this report, that he would not detain the House with any lengthy remarks upon the subject. He had had some conversation with the Postmaster General and other members of the Government upon this matter, and they were perfectly well satisfied that the report was right in the main, and therefore, he did not understand why so much fuss had been made over it. In regard to the salary of the clerk, he would repeat once more that they were only giving him one hundred dollars beyond what he had formerly. The late Province of Canada at one time gave him $350, and it was afterwards reduced to $200; but now they had become a large Dominion, keeping more books, and spending more money, the Committee thought they would not be very far wrong in asking this House to grant an additional $50, the other $50 to be granted by the other House. Mr. Hartney was an assistant clerk in the other House, and received $2,000 a year, and we have induced him to give us his services for the amount named, but as he, in attending to these duties, has to remain here for a considerable time after the adjournment of the House, we thought this increase should be made. He had no hesitation in saying that if we had to employ a competent clerk to do this work, we should not get him for less than $2,000 a year. The Government were willing the report should be adopted with the exception of this increase of salary. He (Mr. Simpson) did not concur with them in this view of the matter, therefore, he would leave it to the House to determine, and he would now move the adoption of the report.

Hon. Mr. CAMPBELL had acknowledged the advantageous results which attended the labors of that committee, but there were two points in which he could not agree with this report. The first change he wished to make was in that section which provided that unexpended balances should be carried over from one Session to another. That would be attended with some inconvenience, as had been said by the gentleman who has charge of the finances of the Dominion, and it was desirable that no unappropriated balances should be carried over, but that when money is wanted a new vote should be given. It was under the impression that he had obtained the concurrence of his hon. friend (Mr. Simpson) in this change, that he had satisfied him that the Government had given their consent to the passing of the report. The next change he desired to make was in regard to the salary of the clerk. He had said yesterday that he thought Mr. Hartney was an officer who was entitled to this increase in his salary, but he thought the moment inopportune to augment his salary when other officers who performed services just as valuable had been obliged to suffer their salaries to be diminished. It seemed invidious to increase his salary, and more so, as he was an officer of the other House, and they had pronounced upon his salary as they had pronounced upon the others. It was not respectful to them after they had reduced his salary for us to make up the amount to him in this way.

Hon. Mr. ANDERSON—Have the House of Commons adopted the report in which this additional $100 is added to the Clerk's salary.

Hon. Mr. CAMPBELL said the principle had been adopted, although the report of the sub-committee, in which the salary that was mentioned was not adopted. This increase was a small amount, but objections were taken to it by members of the other House, particularly by the members of the Contingent Committee, who had taken upon themselves the disagreeable task of reducing the salaries.

Hon. Mr. REESOR said that when an appropriation was made for printing, it was impossible to tell the amount of work to be done, or the precise sum of money which would be required for the work, therefore, if there was any deficiency the printers would either have to wait until the next meeting of Parliament, or take less than was agreed upon for their work, but if there was a surplus and no law that this surplus was to be carried over until the next year, what was to be done with it? Was it to be divided among the printers, or among the members of the committee? Surplus money is too often disposed of in a careless manner. If this report was adopted the House would know what was done with every cent of the money appropriated for printing. He would read the clause: "That there be a distinct appropriation for the printing of Parliament, sessionally, to be lodged in the hands of the Accountant of the House of Commons, in such sums as may be required; and be disbursed by him under the certificate of the Clerk of the Committee; and accounted for in the Annual Balance Sheet, which shall include all expenses of management, so as to show the whole cost of the printing services, directly and indirectly," and now comes what the Postmaster-General would strike out, "And should any balance of the appropriation remain unexpended, it shall be carried to the credit of printing for the succeeding Session, or in case of deficiency to be likewise shown." He (Mr. Reesor) thought that clause should remain as it was, in order that the House might know whether there was any deficiency or balance remaining. In regard to the salary of the clerk he took the ground that every officer in either House should be paid according to the value of his services as regards ability, responsibility, and the value of his labor to the House. They should take into consideration the services of Mr. Hartney in connection with the Printing Committee, and he (Mr. Reesor) knew what these labors were, for he had been several years upon the committee, and several years in connection with the publication of a newspaper, and they should consider that the committee, in conjunction with Mr. Hartney, had been the means of saving to the country something like one million dollars. The mere addition of $100 to his salary was but a trifle compared to the gain that may accrue from his services. He (Mr. Reesor) believed in disposing of every case upon its own merits; though he had supported the general report of the Contingent Committee in regard to reducing salaries and dismissing officers, who were not required in the House, he did it because we were commencing under a new constitution, some of the officers not being required, and the labors of some others being of a trifling character, but they were not bound to keep those salaries down where an officer merited an increase of salary. He hoped the chairman of the committee would not consent to have the report amended, but would insist upon a vote being taken upon the report as it is.

Hon. Mr. SIMPSON said he had told the Postmaster-General that he did not wish him to press the amendment in reference to the salary of Mr. Hartney, therefore he should not be accused of acting treacherously in not agreeing to have the report amended. Mr. Hartney had never asked for one penny's increase to his salary, but he (Mr. Simpson) thought this increase was due to him, because this work for the joint committee was outside of his regular duty, and kept him here for months after the close of the Session. In regard to the other objection concerning unexpended balances, they could not know perhaps until the first of August the exact sum which would be required, and we only say we will charge ourselves with any balance which there may be, and it will be put to our credit for the succeeding Session.

Hon. Mr. CAMPBELL said his hon. friend was advocating a principle which would not enable Parliament to have control of its expenditure from year to year, and which was opposed to the principle which had always been adopted in this country. Suppose Parliament appropriates six thousand dollars for printing one Session, and of that money there remained ten thousand dollars unexpended, and this same calculation would go on from year to year, it would give the Printing Committee a power which they should not have; or suppose they appropriate to the Department of Public Works the sum of five hundred thousand dollars this Session, and a balance remains on hand, this will have passed out of the minds of the members when they come to make another appropriation, and consequently they will lose control of the public money. This would be acting upon a wrong principle, it is in the interest of Parliament that the Government ask that this report shall be amended, and its object is to keep this expenditure constantly in the minds of the members of Parliament. It was a great improvement upon the old system of allowing these balances to remain over, which was the cause of great irregularities, and to remedy which the principle had been adopted which was now opposed by his hon. friend. He would now move to strike out of the report this paragraph "and should any balance of the appropriation remain unexpended, it should be carried to the credit of printing for the succeeding Session; or in case of deficiency to be likewise shown."

Hon. Mr. McCULLY thought as this was a joint report of both Houses, if they amended it, there would be a necessity for its going before the House of Commons where it might be thrown out. They were advocating economy, and he did not wish that object to be frustrated, therefore he thought it was better for the Postmaster-General to adopt this exceptional case than to run the risk of losing the report in the other branch.

Hon. Mr. CAMPBELL.—There is no risk of losing it.

Hon. Mr. McCULLY said his hon. friend exercised a very wholesome influence in this House, but he was afraid if the report went back to the other House his influence would not prevent its being lost. He thought it was a very valuable report, and it came from a committee who had practiced a system of economy which had saved the country a large amount of money. He agreed with the Postmaster-General that the appropriations to this committee should be voted annually, but if the amendment proposed would endanger the report he would vote against it.

Hon. Mr. STEEVES said the Postmaster-General had enquired into the matter, and the result of that enquiry was that these slight changes in the report would be consented to. He agreed with his hon. friend that these unpaid balances should not be allowed to stand over, and he would suggest to the hon. mover to make the proposition himself for this change.

Hon. Mr. ANDERSON expressed himself in favor of the report as it stood, but if the chairman of the Committee accedes to the amendments made by the Government, he would submit.

Hon. Mr. SIMPSON seconded the amendment made by the Postmaster General, although he thought he would have no difficulty in meeting his arguments.

The amendment was then carried.

Hon. Mr. CAMPBELL then moved, seconded by Hon. Mr. SIMPSON, "that the figure $300, in the scale of salaries, attached to the position of the Clerk, be struck out, and $200 inserted in lieu thereof."

Hon. Mr. TESSIER asked what would be the effect of the adoption of this report, so far as these salaries are concerned, if the report was not to be adopted in the other House? Would not these salaries have to be paid by this House?

Hon. Mr. MITCHELL said there would be no difficulty, as the mover proposed to strike out the increase of salary and leave the report as it stood.

After some further enquiries were made by Hon. Mr. TESSIER, and explanations given by Hon. Mr. CAMPBELL, the amendment was carried and the report adopted.

The House then adjourned until to-morrow at three o'clock.

Friday, May 1, 1868.

The SPEAKER took the chair at three o'clock.

After routine,

Hon. Mr. ALLAN from the committee on Standing Orders and Private Bills, reported that they had agreed to the Bill intituled, "An Act to authorize the carrying of gas pipes across the River Niagara, in order to facilitate the lighting of the town of Clifton with gas," without amendment.

The Bill was then read a third time and passed.

Also, "An Act to incorporate the Clifton Suspension Bridge Company," to which they had made several amendments.

The Bill as amended was then agreed to by the House and passed.

Hon. Mr. ALLAN from the Select Committee to whom was referred the Bill entitled, "An Act for the relief of Joseph Frederick Whiteaves," reported the said Bill without amendment.

On motion of Hon. Mr. ALLAN it was ordered that the Bill be read a third time on Monday next.

The Bill intituled, "An Act to continue the charter of La Banque Nationale, &c.," was on motion of Hon. Mr. TESSIER postponed until this day eight days.

INLAND REVENUE DEPARTMENT BILL.

Hon. Mr. REESOR did not rise to make any objection to the Bill, because it may be necessary to pass it, but he desired to say that the Bill had just been distributed, and they had not yet had a great deal of time to judge of its merits, in order to know whether it should be passed or not. The Postmaster General was pressing the matter too rapidly; Bills should be printed at least one day before the second reading, so that members would be prepared to discuss them.

Hon. Mr. CAMPBELL said the discussion would take place when the Bill was before the committee, but if the House desired it he would postpone the second reading until Monday, although he did not think there was anything in the Bill to call for any lengthy remarks.

Hon. Mr. STEEVES desired to express his opinion upon the Bill, either now or when it was before the committee. He was decidedly of opinion that the Government had more departments than was necessary, and he would suggest that the number of departments be reduced if it was found that there were too many. They might be excused for commencing with a large number of departments, until they ascertained that the machinery could be managed with less, but after this no excuse could be given for retaining them. In connection with the Revenue Department, there were the four Departments of Finance, Customs, Receiver-General's, and Inland Revenue Departments. This arrangement was based upon principles adapted to govern a country with much more extensive resources than we have. This large number of Departments can, and ought to, be reduced, but if the Government have decided upon retaining them, they can carry these bills through Parliament, but upon them will rest the responsibility. If the Government are desirous of making this Union a success, and of satisfying the public mind that the administration of the Government will be carried on in the best possible way, it will be their duty to economise, and reduce the number of Departments, if it can be done without being detrimental to the public interests. There may be reason for the Privy Council to consist of thirteen members, because we cannot have less than two in each of the Lower Provinces, on account of the various interests to be represented; in proportion to this, Quebec would be entitled to four, and Ontario five; but it is not necessary that all these Privy Councillors should have Public Departments. Suppose there were nine heads of departments in the Government, this would leave one member of the Government for each Province who would not be compelled to reside at the Seat of Government, and these coming each from his Province to attend the meetings of the Council would bring valuable information with them in regard to the state of the public mind in their respective Provinces. These men should be paid a reasonable amount for their labor and attendance at the meetings of the Council. He hoped the Government would look at the matter in this light and endeavor to reduce the number of Departments; he was not opposing this particular one, but he felt it to be his duty to make these remarks inasmuch as the question was now before the House.

Hon. Mr. LETELLIER de St. JUST said from the delay we had to endure in this House in getting the long promised Bills from Ministers, it would appear [illegible] to be two Ministers for each Department in place of one. He advocated the reduction of Ministers and Departments, and could see no reason why the Speaker of the House should not be a member of the Government, and endeavor to reduce the expenses of the Government, which are entirely excessive and disproportioned to the wants and requirements of this country. He said it was rather strangely for Ministers to be practicing economy on a few poor miserably paid employees whilst they winked at the great evil of the present system. The large number of Ministers and their numerous staff in departments, were arousing public [illegible] and alarm from one end to the other of the Dominion. Though he did not expect that any remedy would be adopted now, he thought the day was not far distant when the public voice would make itself heard in no mistakeable terms.

On motion of the Hon. Mr. CAMPBELL the Bill was read a second time and ordered to be referred to a Committee of the whole House on Tuesday next.

STATIONERY OFFICE ESTABLISHMENT BILL—SECOND READING.

Hon. Mr. CAMPBELL said this Bill would enable the Government to exercise more control over the contingencies of the various departments, and prevent extravagance in reference to that item of public expenditure, which it had always been difficult to check, as no uniform system had been pursued. In reference to the charges for those items, there had been a laxity in the old Province of Canada, and to some extent in the Dominion, since the passing of the Constitutional Act. The Chairman of the Contingent Committee mentioned a case of overcharge for stamping envelopes; he had made enquiries but could not ascertain the office it occurred in. Some better check should be provided against overcharges than has been heretofore. The responsibility of this bill will be on the Head of the Department, who will be required to examine every account and certify it. The matter will not even rest here, but will have to go before the Committee on Contingencies, who will examine it, when it will ultimately be placed under the Finance Department. This will result in a proper supervision being kept over these items of expenditure. He could see no reason why the economy which has been the result of the course pursued by the joint Committee on printing should not be general and exist in all the Public Departments. (Hear, hear.) He could speak for the Department with which he was connected, that a due course of economy had always been pursued.

The Bill was then read a second time and ordered to be referred to a Committee of the whole House on Monday.

CURRENCY BILL.

Hon. Mr. CAMPBELL moved, seconded by Hon. Mr. Kenny, that the Bill intituled "An Act respecting the currency" be now read a second time.

Hon. Mr. CAMPBELL said this measure had been much changed since the Bill was first printed under the auspices of the other branch of the Legislature. At that time it was proposed that this Bill should be a double system; one part of the Bill to go into force in case the United States did not establish their currency on the basis of the report of the International Monetary Conference, held at Paris, and the other to be put in force in case they did establish their currency in accordance with the basis there agreed upon. It had been considered that this double system would be attended with a great deal of inconvenience, therefore it was thought best to submit the measure to the House, which was based upon the report of the Conference; if the United States adopt that system it will be common to the United States, Great Britain, France, and one or two other powers who were represented at the Conference held at Paris. It fortunately happens that the currency of Nova Scotia will not be seriously affected by the new system, while it will be a convenience to all the inhabitants of the Dominion.

Hon. Mr. WILMOT said this Bill should have been so prepared that it would have established one uniform currency for the Dominion, instead of continuing two systems, one in Nova Scotia and the other in the rest of the Dominion. According to his judgment and experience the system in use in Nova Scotia was by far the most simple, and as to fixing the price of gold that was an arbitrary enactment. It would be far more sensible to have the value of the sovereign fixed at [illegible] at $4.86⅔, because when fixed at $5 the aliquot parts were in decimals, whereas if fixed at $4.86⅔ it commenced with fractions and carried it out through all its aliquot parts. The sovereign at the former value was [illegible] of exchange at a premium of 12½ per cent, while at the latter value it was [illegible] of exchange at 9½ per cent, trade regulating itself so far as the rate of exchange was concerned. In Nova Scotia they found no difficulty in trading with Great Britain, United States, or any other country, and suffered no loss in consequence of thus fixing the basis of the circulation. In New Brunswick the notes of Nova Scotia are actually circulating 2½ per cent. discount, while the rate of exchange is nearly 3 per cent; so Nova Scotia really gains by that.

Hon Mr. ROSS stated that Nova Scotia really lost 3 per cent. by fixing the value of the sovereign at $5.

Hon. Mr. WILMOT said he differed with his hon. friend, and could assure him they did not require to be taught by persons from any part of the Dominion, even from Ontario itself, with regard to the practice or principles of trade, for they had a keen eye to their own interests. He (Mr. Wilmot) thought that the fact that the Government had left their currency as it was, showed they had been convinced by the arguments of the gentlemen from Nova Scotia. When Sir Robert Peel attempted to apply his currency measure to Scotland, the people rose in their might and refused to abandon a banking system that had done so much for the country. As to unsettling all accounts this very Bill has provided that liabilities or debts existing before the new system comes into operation shall be paid in the currency now existing. It would be a great inconvenience to have to re-coin all the sovereigns in the Dominion to carry out this new system. Their value is altogether arbitrary, therefore it would be better to fix the value of the sovereign at $5, according to the Nova Scotia system, which comes so near to the value fixed by the Conference at Paris, and which was the most reasonable and advantageous way, and leave trade with other countries to regulate itself, which currency regulations in this Dominion could not affect.

Hon. Mr. McCULLY said that when the Government introduced this measure it was with another connection, which was to authorize the Governor-General, by proclamation, to establish a uniform system of currency in the Dominion, and then it stated that in case the monetary arrangement made by the Conference in Paris, should be adopted in England, and also in the United States, the second part of the Bill should come into operation. As the Bill had been changed, he thought it might not be amiss to say he felt it to be his duty to urge the undesirableness of making any change in the monetary matters of Nova Scotia, particularly at the present time. Nothing would so irritate them at this time as to have the whole system of their money changed and altered. In making this change, they would only be changing the name and not the value of money; and he held the principle that a debt should always be discharged in the currency in which it was contracted. If the currency was changed old debts must be paid in old currency. The sovereign passes in Nova Scotia for five dollars, and the consequence of this is, the English shilling passes for a quarter of a dollar, and twenty of these make a sovereign. It it had been the policy of the Government to change this currency, every merchant in Nova Scotia would have had to re-mark all his goods; the article marked at five dollars would have to be taken down and marked in the new currency. Every quarter of a dollar goes there for twenty five cents, but under that Bill it would have had to be put down to twenty-four, and the impression would have gone abroad that the people had lost the difference between the old value of the money and the new. The Government have taken that view of it, and acted very wisely in not passing that part of the Bill. He referred to the facility with which calculations could be made with the Nova Scotia currency: by adding one fourth, sterling money was brought into currency, and by subtracting one-fifth, currency, was reduced to sterling money, but if the sovereign was valued at $4.86⅔, it required pencil and paper to make calculations. It would not have been seemly for him to have asked that the currency of the Dominion should be assimilated to that of Nova Scotia, unless that was the policy of a neighboring country, or perhaps of the empire, but all he had asked was that their currency should remain in the meantime, without change. In travelling in Belgium, France, and he believed in Italy, he found the money was counted precisely as it was counted in Nova Scotia. The currency of Nova Scotia is the most convenient that can be introduced, although there was some inconvenience attending the use of the English sixpence which was 12½ cents, and the English half crown, which was 62½ cents, but when those two were put together, there was no difficulty at all. He was not surprised to find that the bankers of Nova Scotia had sent up a remonstrance against changing their currency, and expressing a desire to have the currency of the Dominion made identical with that of Nova Scotia if changed at all.

Hon. Mr. ROSS said it was very gratifying to know that some of the powerful nations of the world were determined to arrange their currency according to a uniform standard. He then referred to the loss sustained by the merchants of Nova Scotia in consequence of having to take sovereigns at a higher rate of value than they were worth elsewhere.

Hon. Mr. ANDERSON argued in favor of the Nova Scotia currency. He said though they managed their transactions with a sum of money nominally greater than its value in other countries, yet they sustained no loss in their mercantile transactions with those countries in consequence.

Hon. Mr. REESOR said every one must know that the value of money depended upon the intrinsic value of gold, as this was the standard of value in every civilized country. A man in Nova Scotia sends fish or lumber to the West Indies, or to England, and he gets paid in British sovereigns, or in gold, which is the measure of value in the commercial world; then whether the sovereign is called four dollars or five dollars is a mere matter of convenience in his own country, and makes no difference in the amount he can buy with it. It is very desirable for every country to regulate their currency so as to correspond with the currency of other countries, and with this view a Conference met at Paris to decide upon some basis of a decimal character for the currency, as that was the most convenient currency in keeping accounts. Everyone must recollect the time when books were kept in the old style of pounds, shillings and pence, causing a great deal more labor in counting money than now. The difference between the two systems might be compared to the difference between single rules in arithmetic and compound rules. He quite agreed with his hon. friend from Nova Scotia (Mr. McCully) that there were some very good features in this measure, but he thought the members should have more time to look over these Bills, in order to discuss them properly, and ascertain whether the changes made will be for the benefit of the country. He then referred to the Bill relating to the contingent expenses of the Government, and said they had to take it for granted that it was a good Bill, as the Government had promised that an important reform would be effected by it. He had no hesitation in saying to the Government that if they did not effect a reform, public opinion would call them to account. He then referred to the vast increase in the expenses of the Civil Government since the organisation of the Dominion Parliament, and unless by some new arrangement, for which the Government will be held responsible, a large reduction is made in the expenses there will be a great deal of dissatisfaction created throughout the country.

Hon. Mr. DICKEY said he had some reason to thank the Government for the course they had taken in this matter, and he hoped it would only be an earnest of other legislation which would have similar effects.

The Bill was then read a second time and ordered to be committed to a Committee of the whole House on Monday next.

The House then went into Committee (M OLIVIER in the chair) on the Bill intituled "An Act respecting accessories and abettors of indictable offences," which they agreed to without amendment.

The Bill was then read a third time and passed.

The House then adjourned until Monday at three o'clock.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

The Florence Nightingale of the Nursery.—The following is an extract from a letter written by the Rev. C. Z. Weizer, to the German Reformed Messenger, at Chambersburg, Penn.:

A BENEFACTRESS.—Just open the door for her, and Mrs. WINSLOW will prove the American Nightingale of the Nursery. Of this we are sure, that we will teach our "SUSY" to say "A Blessing Mrs. Winslow," for helping her to survive an escape the griping, colicking and teething ege. We confirm every word set forth in the prospectus. It performs precisely what it professes to perform, every part of it—nothing less. Away with your "Cordial," "Paregoric," "Drops," "Laudanum," and every other "Narcotic," by which the babe is drugged into stupidity, and rendered dull and idiotic for life.

We have never seen Mrs. Winslow—know her only through the preparation of her "Soothing Syrup for Children Teething." If we had the power, we would make her, as she is, a physical saviour to the infant race. 25 cents a bottle. Sold by all druggists. Be sure and call for "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup." Having the fac-simile of "CURTIS & PERKINS" on the outside wrapper. All others are base imitations. 709d14w2m

Mothers Read This!—Holloway's Worm Lozenges are a certain and safe remedy for Worms in Children and Adults.—As it is a well-known and melancholy fact that one great cause of death among children is from Worms alone, it cannot be too deeply impressed upon the minds of parents the necessity of closely watching their children. By so doing; and, understanding the symptoms and true cause of the disease, thousands of children might be saved from early graves. SYMPTOMS OF WORMS.—The following are a few of the very numerous symptoms and diseases which are caused by Worms:—deranged appetite, emaciated extremities, offensive breath, frequent picking at the nose, grinding of the teeth during sleep, hardness of the belly, with frequent slimy stools, and sometimes convulsive fits; itching of the arms, pain in the head and stomach, unquiet sleep, faintings, tremblings, coughs, indigestion, low spirits, frightful dreams, and a gradual wasting away of flesh.

They are palatable and self-administered to the child—drive out the worms thoroughly without pain and completely cleanse the stomach—thereby doing away with the necessity of administering Castor Oil or other unpleasant cathartics—as in the use of other Worms.

Please send me a chest of Young Hyson at same price, viz., at 75 cents per lb. Address as before. Your obedient servant,

JNO. T. DAY.

COBOURG, January 8, 1868.—Montreal Tea Company: Gentlemen, I beg to inform you that the two boxes of Tea you sent me are of excellent quality, specially the Young Hyson at 60 cents. Please send another box, or 20 lbs., at same price, and oblige yours, &c.,

F. OLIVER.

The contributors to the Medical Journal have frequently declared that one-half the nervous diseases are caused by drinking impure Tea. The Company have carefully selected and imported a supply of Teas that can be warranted pure and free from poisonous substances, in 50, 25, 20, 15 and 12 lb. boxes.

BLACK TEA.

Common Congou, Broken Leaf, Strong Tea, 45c, 50c; Fine Flavoured New Season, do; 55c, 60c and 65c; Excellent Full Flavored do, 75c; Sound Oolong, 45c; Rich Flavored do, 60c; Very Fine do, do, 75c; Japan, Good, 50c, 55c; Very Fine, 60c; Finest, 65c, 75c.

GREEN TEA.

Twankay common, 38c; Fine do, 55c; Young Hyson, 50c, 60c, 65c and 70c; Fine do, 75c; Very Fine, 85c; Superfine and Very Choice, $1.00; Fine Gunpowder, 85c; Extra Superfine do, $1.

All orders for 20 or 25 lbs., or two 12 lbs., sent carriage free to the country. Teas not mentioned in this circular sent equally cheap. The Company having determined to take a stand in the Montreal market, weight, quality and circular may be implicitly relied on. Where a 20 lb. box would be too much, two or three clubbing together could divide. An excellent mixed Tea could be sent for 60c to 70c; very good for common purposes, 50c. Buyers living beyond Railway Stations will please send Post Office order or enclosed notes. The carriage will be paid to the nearest station. Tea will be forwarded immediately on receipt of the order by mail containing money, or the money can be collected on delivery by express-man where there are express offices. A trial solicited.

THE MONTREAL TEA COMPANY,
6, Hospital-street, Montreal.

All boxes sent from this establishment have the Company's name printed on them.

CANADIAN PAIN DESTROYER

de, Back and Head, Coughs, Colds, Sore Throat, Sprains, Bruises, Cramps in the Stomach, Cholera Morbus, Dysentery, Bowel Complaints, Burns, Scalds, Frost Bites, &c., &c.

THE CANADIAN PAIN DESTROYER HAS now been before the public for a length of time, and whenever used is well liked, never failing in a single instance to give permanent relief when timely used, and we have never known a single case of dissatisfaction where the directions are properly followed; but on the contrary, all are delighted with its operations, and speak in the highest terms of its virtues and magical effects.

We speak from experience in this matter, having tested it thoroughly, and therefore those who are suffering from any of the complaints for which it is recommended may depend upon its being a Sovereign Remedy.

The astonishing efficacy of the Canadian Pain Destroyer, in curing diseases for which it is recommended, and its wonderful success in subduing the torturing pains of Rheumatism, and in relieving Nervous Affections, entitle it to a high rank in the list of Remedies for these complaints. Orders are coming in from Medicine Dealers in all parts of the country for further supplies, and each testifying as to the universal satisfaction it gives.

The Canadian Pain Destroyer never fails to give immediate relief. All Medicine Dealers keep it; Physicians order and use it; and no family will be without it after once trying it.

The Hon. J. S. Macdonald, who was expected here in the beginning of this week, has gone to Toronto. It is probable that on his return the question of issuing a Special Commission for the trial of certain prisoners now in custody will be finally determined.

Our Toronto despatch, narrating the arrest of several parties connected with the Irish Canadian and the Toronto Hibernian Society, will show the public that those now conducting the investigation in this city are resolved upon using every endeavour to make a clean sweep of the infamous pest of Fenianism from the country. For this prompt proceeding none should be more grateful than those most exposed to the danger of becoming its dupes; for though it has been a source of much expense, and the cause of no little sorrow, to the whole community, it is evident that those who get entangled in its meshes are in the end its surest victims.

In an article published in the Toronto Globe of 10th April last, some remarks were made about the decision of the Speaker of the House of Commons on the motions made by Dr. Parker and Mr. McDonald of Antigonish on the Nova Scotia question, in the debate in which, on the 6th of April, the lamented Hon. T. D. McGee made his last speech in Parliament. The Globe attacked the Speaker with great virulence, as will be found from the following extract:

> "Mr. Holton gave his opinion that Mr. Morris was right, as he undoubtedly was. To the amazement of most persons, the Speaker decided that this totally irrelevant amendment was in order, and might if adopted by the House, be properly incorporated in the original motion for papers! We can hardly conceive that Mr. Cockburn is so dull as not to comprehend the absurdity of his decision, and yet we do not like to put faith in the opinion which has been expressed, that the decision was given simply to suit the purposes of Sir John A. Macdonald, who thought a division upon Dr. Parker's amendment would be a good thing for the Government, and consequently wanted it kept before the House. We do not believe Mr. Cockburn would sacrifice his reputation to so little purpose as that. Be that as it may, the decision allowed the debate to continue, and the whole night was spent in it."

The facts are these: Dr. Parker having come too late to propose his motion, Mr. McGee objected to its introduction, and the Speaker consequently ruled it out of order. In the evening Mr. McDonald, of Antigonish, moved for copies of address of Nova Scotia Legislature, &c., on the subject of Repeal. I amendment to this, Dr. Parker then moved Dr. Tupper's recall (the subject of the motion to which Mr. McGee objected in the afternoon.) Mr. Morris objected to this amendment as irrelevant, and consequently out of order. The Speaker decided that the amendment was in order, and the debate was continued. This decision was the subject of the Globe's attack on the Speaker.

On Friday last, 1st May, however, Hon. Mr. Holton moved an amendment to going into Committee of Supply. Mr. Dunkin objected that the motion was complex, and therefore out of order. The Speaker ruled it in order and Hon. Mr. Holton took that opportunity of stating that having looked into the points of Mr. Speaker's decision on 6th April last, he felt satisfied that in principle it was correct then, as it was on Friday.

This effectually disposes of the Globe's calumnious attack on the Speaker of the House.

Our local contemporary, the Citizen, attempted to set the Leader right yesterday morning with respect to the course of the three Opposition leaders, Messrs. Dorion, Holton and McKenzie on Mr. E. M. Macdonald's repeal resolutions; but in doing so did not certainly mend the matter. The Leader was quite correct in stating that the three gentlemen named avowed themselves "willing to "go into committee" on the alleged grievances of Nova Scotia under the Union Act, for that was the precise purport of Mr. Holton's amendment to Mr. Morris's; but it does not therefore follow that they were prepared to consider "repeal." On the contrary, the subsequent vote of Messrs. Holton and McKenzie in favor of Mr. Morris's amendment affirming that Confederation was both in the interest of all the Provinces and of the Empire shows conclusively that these two gentlemen were not prepared "to consider repeal." Mr. Dorion, on the other hand, voted in both cases with Mr. E. M. Macdonald, and so far as his course that evening is any indication of his sentiments, he is just as much of a "repealer"—with respect to Nova Scotia—as any representative from that Province; while on the other hand, as shewn by the division lists, both Messrs. Holton and McKenzie were equally ready to go into Committee to consider "the "alleged grievances of Nova Scotia," and to affirm at the same time that Union was for the interest of the Provinces and the Empire; or, in other words, to endorse Mr. Morris's amendment, which was worded as strongly in favor of the maintenance of Union, as it possibly could have been.

In the face of these facts the Citizen says:

> "The Leader has entirely misapprehended the nature of the action which Messrs. Dorion, Holton and Mackenzie took on the debate. We do not suppose that Messrs. Holton and Dorion have yet thoroughly accepted the situation, at all events, we are not aware that they have publicly avowed their intention of 'accepting it and making the best of it.'"

Our neighbor then goes on to applaud the member for Lambton for his devotion to Union, which is all right enough; though we are not aware of his ever having risked a party advantage in its service. But when the Citizen expresses its surprise that the Leader should have fallen into "error" regarding the member for Lambton's course on this particular occasion, it draws rather a long bow, as the records of the House show that Messrs. Holton and McKenzie voted together throughout: first for Mr. Holton's amendment, and next for Mr. Morris's; while on the other hand (with Messrs. Cheval and Fortier) voted on both occasions with the Nova Scotia members. "We make "these remarks in justice to" all parties concerned; and submit further, that Mr. Holton's amendment was merely one of those displays of parliamentary tactics, in the practice of which he is admitted on all hands to be an adept.

The London Times of the 18th ult., has a very complimentary leading article on the late Hon. T. D. McGee, of which the following is the concluding paragraph:—

> "The feature in his character, however, which is to be especially noticed, is the strong loyalty which influenced him in his later days. There have been many instances of rebellious Irishmen who have attained wealth or political distinction in the Colonies, and have become acquiescent, if not very loyal subjects of the British Crown. The most eminent example is, perhaps, Mr. Duffy, the poet of Irish insurrectionary patriotism and a conspicuous member of the Young Ireland party twenty years ago. Since those days Mr. Duffy, turning his talents to better account, has become an important personage and a Minister of the Crown in Australia; and it may fairly be assumed that he has been fully reconciled to the Imperial system which he formerly denounced. But Mr. Duffy never became so enthusiastic a convert as the late Mr. McGee. The latter, from his residence in Canada, was probably subjected to influences which developed his loyalty rapidly and fully. The schemes of the Fenians and the lawless character of their outrages filled him with indignation, which he did not fear to express; and it is possible that his known championship of the rights of the Crown may have instigated the assassin, who has cut short his useful and honorable career. As Englishmen and loyal subjects, we must look kindly on one who, working his mind free from perverse fancies, became a firm friend of our country and Constitution, and the natural regret for his death is increased by the conviction that his example would have been especially beneficial to Irishmen at the present time."

In speaking of the seizure of Fenian newspapers yesterday we mentioned Detective Cullen, of Montreal, instead of Sergt.-Major Cummings, of Toronto. It was the latter who accompanied Detective O'Neill to the news depots.

Seizure of Fenian Literature and Papers —Clean Sweep of Fenianism, &c.

Special to THE TIMES.

Toronto, May 4, 1868.

Patrick Boyle, editor and proprietor of the Irish Canadian, the Fenian organ in this city, and who is also President of the Hibernian Society, has been arrested under the Habeas Corpus Suspension Act and lodged in jail, charged with Fenianism. Hynes, the printer and part proprietor of the Irish Canadian, John Nolan, Secretary of the Hibernian Society, and Owen Cosgrove, one of the marshals on St. Patrick's Day, and Pall Bearer at the funeral of the late Mike Murphy, Fenian Head Centre of Canada, have also been arrested and committed to Toronto jail. A quantity of papers and manuscript have also been seized by the police, which are being sent to the authorities at Ottawa for examination. A raid was also made on the Fenian literature for sale in this city, and from what appears the Government have been aroused, and are determined to make a clean sweep of Fenianism in Canada. So let the Fenians look out and the guilty ones beware.

LOCAL NEWS.

Auction Sale this Evening.—Remember the great auction sale of dry goods this evening at 7 o'clock, at Prud'homme's store, Sussex-st. Great bargains may be had.

Auction Sale To-day.—Mr. McLean, auctioneer, will sell to-day at 12 o'clock, noon, at his room, Sparks street, six very fine city lots the property of Mr. Grassett. The six lots form a block. The sale was advertised for Thursday, but should have been Tuesday, 5th May. See advertisement.

Cricketing Goods.—E. K. MacGillivray & Co., of the Sheffield House, advertise in another column their immense stock of cricket goods, croquet, &c. Parties in quest of such articles would do well to give them a call. Cricket clubs at a distance should send for price list.

Celebration of the Queen's Birthday.—We are informed that Capt. Morgan, assisted by other gentlemen, is making preparations to celebrate the Queen's Birthday at Metcalfe in an appropriate and right loyal style. Three or four companies of volunteers are expected to take part in the proceedings. After the usual military display through the day fireworks will be set off, and a soiree be given in the evening. This is worthy of imitation, and Capt. Morgan and those gentlemen whom he will be assisted by deserve great praise.

Rideau Canal.—We regret to learn that a breach in the masonry of the lower lock at Hogsback, has occured, which will we are told interrupt navigation at that point for nearly a month. It appears that the water found its way through and behind the chamber wall, forcing out the ashler, and so loosening the stone, as to render the further working of the locks dangerous. Navigation on all other parts of the canal will be maintained as usual. It is to be hoped that the breach will be repaired with all possible haste, so as to complete the navigation of this end of the canal, so necessary and important to the inhabitants of this city.

Police Court.—A woman, whose name was not learned, a stranger in the city, was sent to jail for one week.—Joseph Monroe was fined $2 and costs for being drunk on the streets.—George Phillips, a young man not known in the city, and a youth named Chevrier, were charged with setting off fire-crackers on the public street, on Saturday night. Philips did not know that he was doing wrong and said Chevrier did not set any off. The Magistrate warned them against a repetition of the offence, and discharged them.—James Keys (sable) was brought up for keeping pigs in a filthy condition; defendant made a lengthy explanation, and his case was adjourned till Wednesday, to give him time to clean up.—A person was charged with beating his wife; she did not appear against him, and he was discharged, with the assurance that if she ever should appear against him he would be punished.—Julis Trepanier, whose case was adjourned from last week, was brought up, charged with committing an indecent assault on Mrs. Perillard. The evidence showed that the prisoner had attacked the complainant on three several occasions, that they reside in the same house, that the bed room occupied by prisoner and his mistress, and complainant and her husband, though separated by a wall, has but one door. Prisoner had on one or two occasions dragged Mrs. P. into his room. The last time, it appears, prisoner's infant child was lying dead in the house. The evidence in the case is hardly fit for publication. It was sent to the Recorder's Court for trial.—John Stanton, the soldier charged with stealing a pair of pants, was remanded, for want of the principal witness, who could not be found.

CITY COUNCIL.

City Hall, May 4, 1868.

General meeting of the City Council.

Present—His Worship the Mayor and all the members of the Council.

A number of petitions were presented complaining of Assessment, and also a number for improvements of various kinds which were referred to the proper Committees by His Worship the Mayor.

The Mayor also presented a volume from the Hon. Mr. Seward, Secretary of the State of the U.S. of America, entituled "The Tributes of the Nations to the memory of the late Abraham Lincoln," and acknowledging the resolution passed by the City Council shortly after the assassination of the late President of the United States. His Worship was requested to acknowledge the receipt of the book and the communication of Mr. Seward in a suitable manner.

A petition was presented from John Yielding, and a like one from Henry Whitside, for liberty to construct and finish brick buildings on Rideau-st., south, under the directions of the City Engineer. Referred to City Engineer to grant permission if not contrary to By-law.

A number of accounts were presented and referred to the Finance Committee, and Board of Works and Printing Committee.

His Worship the Mayor presented a long report from the Directors of the Street Passenger Railway Company, containing the ultimatum of that body. A long discussion ensued for and against the Street Railway.

A motion was carried authorising the Street Railway Committee to institute such legal proceedings against the Street Railway Committee, as may be necessary to protect the interests of the city.

A Finance Committee report, recommending the payment of a number of accounts elicited a good deal of discussion, which, however, did not effect an alteration in any of the accounts, and the report was finally received and adopted.

The Board of Works presented their report.

Ald Featherston offered a resolution in favor of at once proceeding with macadamizing the main thoroughfares of the city, to be paid for from the general fund, and that $500 be appropriated for that purpose. This was opposed by some of the members.

Ald. Cunningham said the City property was assessed this year 5 per cent. lower, than last year, and if proportionally reduced by the Court of Revision, it will be 12 per cent. lower. Members would therefore find, that they would not able to make large ward appropriation.

A motion was then made to extend the time one hour which was carried, and the report of the Board of Works was received and adopted. Ald. Featherston's motion for the appropriation of $500, for repairing the main thoroughfares, was then put and carried.

Ald. Traversy moved, seconded by Ald. Heney, that His Worship the Mayor, Ald. Rochester, Abbott, Mosgrove, Goulden, and the mover be a Committee to make preparations for the celebration of the Queen's Birth Day, and that $400 be placed at their disposal for that purpose.—Carried.

The Mayor stated that a number of citizens contemplated entertaining, the member of the Legislature on the Queen's Birth Day.

On motion the Council adjourned at a quarter after eleven.

DR. PYNE'S LECTURE ON "ENGLAND'S MISSION."

The subject of this lecture is of such a comprehensive character that its proper treatment may require greater powers than I possess, but as it is one which if properly handled may be said to point with peculiar application to the present state of the times, and particularly to this portion of the Empire, now organising under the sanction of England's laws to form the nucleus of a great power on this continent, I trust that on this occasion I may be excused for introducing it to your notice. To detail England's mission fully, would be a stupendous undertaking, it would present an almost measureless field for discussion, and all that I can expect to do in one lecture upon so enlarged a theme will be to present before you in as concise a form as possible a few of the most obvious achievements towards the fulfilling of her mission, which may occur to me as the most prominent in England's action up to the present time. I shall in the first place endeavour to lay before you what I conceive is meant by a nation's mission, and in this particular instance England's mission. A nation's mission I conceive to be the accomplishment by her actions in the world's history of the establishment of certain principles. The national will can always be discerned in the nation's efforts, the tendency of these efforts establishes in the world's estimation a fixed idea as to what that nation wishes to do, and all her efforts being adjuncts to the establishing of that principle the idea becomes confirmed that this nation's mission is to accomplish that object, whatever it may be. Thus the world believes that the mission of Russia is to overcome all Europe, if not the world itself, by gradually enlarging in every direction the boundaries of its already enormous dimensions. This has been its traditional policy, and this we conceive to be its mission, and although it was predicted years ago by a great warrior, Napoleon Buonaparte, that in fifty years Europe would be either Cossack or Republican, yet the results, though not impossible, do not seem at present likely to verify this remarkable prediction of this singular man, and whether Russia shall ever be able to accomplish her mission is a question at all events in which the rest of the world will be inclined to take a deep interest, and already her annexing efforts in her endeavours to accomplish her mission have produced such alarm in the minds of different neighbouring nations as to have led the way to stupendous efforts, and to wars of gigantic proportions for the purpose of checking Russian endeavours to carry out its traditional policy or mission. Now the mission of Russia, which is only mentioned here for the purpose of easy illustration, is a mission antagonistic to the spread of enlightened opinion, and incompatible with the march of intellect, improvement, and reason; it seeks to enslave and promote the spread of despotic principles not in harmony with the spirit of the age, dangerous alike to the progress of its own people and to the liberties of other nations. This therefore is allowedly a mission unsafe to the rest of mankind, and opposed to the onward march of progress and ultimately, let us hope, will end in disappointment and discomfiture to the Russian Nation. Now what may appear to be the missions of France, Austria, Spain, Prussia, or other European nations, we shall not in this brief lecture, be enabled to enlarge upon, and it must suffice for the present to state that each nation has its well understood policy, and based upon its policy its mission.

England's mission, in the extended sense, must be found in the history of all the performances for good, carried out by her subjects, no matter where they are found, as long as they obey her laws; and her mission in the past must be sought for in the deeds of her sons, and in the records of those deeds placed upon the pages of history; and also in the effects produced by these actions in the great arena of the world's struggle, and if in the past England has done aught towards ennobling, elevating, harmonizing, or christianizing the sentiments and feelings of her own subjects, or towards teaching the value of these elevating sentiments to the world at large, let the object of this lecture be honestly to declare the truth, and without prejudice to the claims of other nations, fairly to measure her influence in the effort to inculcate the value of these elevating and civilizing sentiments. I claim as a portion of her mission in the past, that England has been the cradle in which popular rights and civil liberty began their recognized existence, feeble indeed and precarious at first. She has also been the field in which despotic power has had gradually to submit to have its limits defined, until these principles of civil liberty and popular rights became accepted and conceded principles—the property of the people never again to be invaded by the hand of power, or tampered with, or frittered away by ministerial trickery. And in order to arrive with certainty at this conclusion, it is only necessary to appeal to the pages of history, and these from the days of Alfred to the present time, we find in the records of this nation, the dauntless sons of this indomitable race struggling through darkness, death, suffering, and blood for these great, these glorious principles, and through her people, her barons, her patriots, and her great statesmen, perseveringly clamoring for and advocating these principles, until she eventually wrings from the reluctant grasp of despotic power, the first public recognition of popular rights, that great record of our liberties, the sacred and renowned "Magna Charta." And even here the struggle in this great cause did not rest from its labors. Much had yet to be accomplished, much had yet to be done, and the resolution and perseverance of a long succession of England's greatest sons continued to enlarge the proportions of this the first charter, until these principles finally triumphed and eventuated in the production of what is now denominated the English constitution, a form of administrative law that has successfully withstood and survived the shocks of anarchy, infidelity, confusion, and revolution, to the terror of some, but the admiration of all civilized nations; and the lovers of law, order, and truth, who have written on the subject agree that as far as our present light enables us to judge, we have attained a degree of perfection in our mode of government, and the administration of our laws never hitherto attained by any nation in either ancient or modern times. But we must not forget in describing the gradual attainment of our liberties, through what suffering, loss of life and privations of every description, our glorious ancestors attained this great consummation. Let us not forget the martyrs who have had to lay down their lives upon the scaffold in the assertion and furtherance of these great principles, and let us not forget the deeds of these men, sealed by their blood, for we are the inheritors of their glories: we are the heirs of their fame. Then let us keep brightly in our remembrance the pages of history which record the efforts by which we inherit these blessings, and let the estimate of rational and reasonable loyalty in our day retain the vitality and truth it attained, and was described as having attained, in the days of the poet Cowper, whose admirable description of rational and patriotic loyalty, written by his powerful and vigorous pen, in his day and ever since has been held to be applicable to the expression of sound attainment and loyalty to our chief magistrate or king, when he performs his part of the contract, and what an equally sound loyalty will denominate his crime, should he dare to tamper with our liberties, bought with such a price, dearer than our lives. The poet says:

"We love
The King who loves the law, respects his bounds,
And reigns content within them; him we love
Freely and with delight, who leaves us free;
But recollecting still, that he is man,
We trust him not too far. King, though he be
And King in England too, he may be weak
And vain enough, to be ambitious still.
May exercise amiss his proper powers,
Or covet more than freemen choose to grant;
Beyond that mark is treason. He is ours,
To administer, to guard, to adorn the state,
But not to warp, or change it. We are his
To serve him nobly in the common cause,
Free to the death, but not to be his slaves.
Mark now the difference, ye that boast your love
Of Kings, between your loyalty and ours:
We love the man, the paltry pageant you;
We the chief patron of the commonwealth,
You the regardless author of its woes,
We for the sake of liberty, a King—
You chains, and bondage, for a tyrant's sake,
Our love is principle, and has its root
In reason, is judicious, manly, free:
Yours a blind instinct, crouches to the rod
And licks the foot, that treads in the dust.
I would not be a King, to be beloved causeless,
And daubed with undiscerning praise,
Where love is mere attachment to the throne,
Not to the man, who fills it, as he ought."

YESTERDAY'S DESPATCHES.

London, May 3.—It is said to-day that Prime Minister D'Israeli tendered his resignation yesterday, but that it was not accepted. Mr. Gladstone on Monday will move to suspend all orders and take up the resolutions introduced by him relative to the Irish Church. If the resolutions are carried it is thought that an address to the Queen will follow.

THIS MORNING'S DESPATCHES.

London, May 4—Midnight.—There was a very full house at the opening of the session of the House of Commons to-night. The Prince of Wales and Princess Christian, of Schleswig Holstein, were among the distinguished visitors present. Great interest was manifested in the proceedings, and much excitement was apparent among the members. The Premier and Mr. Gladstone were loudly cheered as they entered and took their seats. After some unimportant business had been transacted, Mr. D'Israeli rose, and was greeted with cheers from the Ministerial benches. He reviewed the course of the Tory Administration, which at its onset was without a majority of supporters in the House, and spoke of its uniform success; so entire, indeed, that even its opponents acknowledged it, and on two occasions when Lord Derby expressed a wish to resign, had urged him to remain in office. Financially its record was faultless. In foreign affairs Lord Stanley had raised the prestige of the nation vastly, preserving peace, not merely with the continent, but with the great republic of the west. In Ireland the Ministry had triumphed at every point, while at the same time conciliating the people.

In Abyssinia a great deed of arms had been achieved for humanity, and had done credit, not only to the officers and soldiers engaged, but also to the ministry who planned it.

On Thursday last on a vote upon the first of a series of resolutions, the Ministry encountered a new and sudden question which threatened confusion to Ireland, and ultimately the overthrow of the English Church, the effect of which would be the absorption of all sects in the Church of Rome. To this measure he could not assent, and he had asked of the House time to advise with the Queen on the new attitude of affairs. Her Majesty had heard his statement, and had not only declined his tendered resignation, but had urged him not to dissolve Parliament in the present anomalous circumstances, until an appeal could be made to the new constituencies, and this he hoped to be able to do with the aid of the House. He depreciated the urgency with which Mr. Gladstone had pressed the resolves, and hoped that a suspension of the orders of the day would not be pressed now, as he was ready to give some other Government the right to carry on the discussion.

Mr. Gladstone said, the Premier's praise of the Tories was not only in bad taste, but untrue, especially that portion respecting finance. Lord Derby, he remarked, was not asked to start an office in 1859, and he (Mr. Gladstone) doubted whether the eulogium passed by the Premier, was a challenge to the Opposition or a sop to the Tories, to persuade them to remain in office. He laughed at the cry of danger to the Established church of England, and at that of the Church of Rome absorbing all the other sects. He said it was unprecedented, that a Ministry which had been beaten by sixty-five of a majority, should talk of dissolving Parliament. It might be right to elect a new Parliament to settle the question of the Irish Church, but its first duty when chosen, would be to settle the Ministry itself. The Premier's course was unconstitutional, and the House was hostile to the Ministry, and he wanted to govern the country till the fate of Ireland and other great questions were settled.

THE CANADIAN PARLIAMENT.

1st PARLIAMENT. 1st SESSION.

THE SENATE.

Monday, May 4, 1868.

The SPEAKER took the chair at three o'clock.

After routine,

The SPEAKER reported that the period for receiving petitions for Private Bills had expired to-day.

On motion of Hon. Mr. CAMPBELL, seconded by Hon. Mr. Hamilton, the period for receiving petitions for Private Bills was extended to the 11th inst.

Hon. Mr. REESOR enquired,

Whether it is the intention of the Government to adopt any particular route for the Intercolonial Railway, without first submitting the same for the approval of Parliament?

Whether it is the intention of the Government to let the contract for building the said railway without first submitting such contract to Parliament for its approval, or whether it is the intention of the Government to grant a subsidy to aid a responsible company in building said road, and, if so, upon what conditions the subsidy will be granted?

Hon. Mr. REESOR said that he might state in connection with this enquiry, that a Bill was passed during the first part of the Session giving the Government power to adopt any particular line of railway which they might find upon due enquiry to be the most suitable. He had noticed in the newspapers that a canvass had been going on as to the proper line to be adopted, and he had also learned that some time was likely to elapse before the surveys now being made were likely to be completed, therefore he made the enquiry in order to obtain information as to what course would be adopted by the Government.

Hon. Mr. CAMPBELL said nothing had occurred since the passing of the Act in the first part of the Session to induce any change in the intentions of the Government. It was the intention of the Government to adopt a route having first submitted the same for the approval of the Imperial Government. He would state in reference to the latter part of the enquiry that it was the intention to let the work by contract in pursuance of the Act of Parliament, and therefore it was not the intention of Government to grant any subsidy to aid a company in building this railroad.

In answer to an enquiry by Hon. Mr. STEEVES, it was stated by Hon. Mr. CAMPBELL, that he had received a design of a medal that was now being cast at a cost of £500, to commemorate Confederation.

WHITEAVES' RELIEF BILL.—THIRD READING.

Hon. Mr. BUREAU said the Bill came before this House in an irregular way. No witnesses were produced before this House, nor the parties themselves to convince them that all was right, or that no collusion or deception was attempted to be practised on this branch of the Legislature. It was their duty to be jealous of the rights and prerogatives of this House, and also to guard carefully against the possibility of doing any wrong. A reconciliation may have been effected between the parties. The courts could grant him (the husband) a judgment of seperation de corps et de biens, but divorces were dangerous modes of redress. The more facilities are given for procuring them, the more frequent will be the demand on this House. This case will be invoked as a precedent, and a dangerous one it will be. He would ask the hon. mover to delay a few days until further information might be offered, and so justify, in some measure, the undue haste with which the majority of this House hurried on this measure. This was the province of a Superior Court of Justice, which this House was arrogating to itself, and he yet hoped they would delay the final passage of the Bill for a few days for these reasons, and so avoid the great danger of hasty legislation in a case of this complicated and delicate character. The following are the authorities cited by Hon. Mr. Bureau, in support of his proposition:

"The law of divorce and marriage in the Divorce Court, and in the House of Lords—By Macqueen."

1st. Page 46–47, "With reference to these eleven bars, a heavy responsibility is created by sections 29, 30 and 31 of the Divorce Act, 1857, for the full court is "to satisfy itself," so far as it reasonably can, not only as to the facts alleged by the complainant, but also whether or no he or she is subject to any of the bars. Suppose a suit is undefended—it is certain, generally, that in such case, both parties are willing—nay, anxious, that the remedy should be granted. The Legislature intended that ex parte suits be inspected with a jealous eye. The court, therefore, is not to decide simply on the evidence adduced. The Act requires the Judges to sift the proofs, and call for more, until they are satisfied, not only that the respondent's delinquency is established, but also that the petitioner is shown to be meritorious. This the House of Lords always did.' * * * * * * * * "Why? Because marriage was an holy estate, emblematical of the mystical union of Christ with his church; because, to use the language of a Judge distinguished in this branch of learning, 'the genius and tendency of the law is in favor of the permanence of marriage; it encourages the duration of marriage union, and discourages the dissolution of it. In certain circumstances the dissolution of the marriage contract is, indeed, permitted, but the law of divorce is barely permissive, not imperative. It tolerates what it neither commands nor approves. The remedy of divorce is, in truth, but a mournful remedy, and it is one which the law dispenses with an unwilling hand. This is manifest from the principle which runs through the whole proceedings. Hence, every obstacle that presents itself, is eagerly laid hold of, to support the marriage and prevent its dissolution, as condonation, collusion, connivance, and all other personal bars."

Hon. Mr. ALLAN said he would be one of the last to agree to increasing the facilities for disannulling the matrimonial bond, in order to enable married persons more easily to obtain a divorce, but in this present case the principal objection of his hon. friend (Mr. Bureau) would have been done away with if the matter had come before the House, in the same manner as those cases had formerly been taken before the Legislature of Canada. This evidence has been taken before the courts of Lower Canada, and he had no hesitation in saying that they needed no stronger proof than they had elicited from the witnesses, to induce them to recommend the House to grant the petition. If they deferred this matter until power was given to the House to examine witnesses under oath, it was more than probable that some of these witnesses who were now here would not then be in the country. In regard to any arrangement taking place between the parties, there was not the slightest grounds to suppose any such reconciliation would take place. Under these circumstances, he could not see that anything would be gained by postponing this matter for three days, as had been suggested. If his hon. friend would show any advantage to be gained by postponing it he (Mr. Allan) would consent to it.

Hon. Mr. McCULLY said he had listened with much interest to the hon. gentleman (Mr. Bureau), who had taken such an active part against this measure, and he (Mr. McCully) agreed with him that there was nothing more undesirable than to have these matters brought before this Senate. He hoped the action of this Senate in taking the functions of a court of law in relation to divorce would never be repeated in this Legislature, as there could be no tribunal so unfitted to enquire into those delicate subjects relating to husband and wife, especially where the appeal for divorce is on the ground of adultery. He hoped the Government would take the matter into consideration, and bring in a Bill to establish a court to deal with those cases. He would feel that the House was degraded if they were obliged to listen to such testimony as was sometimes brought forward in these cases. As a general rule the evidence that is required in order to justify the court to deal with cases of this character is of such a nature that no tribunal like this ought to hear it. He was not speaking of this case, because it was not of that revolting character that many cases are, but he hoped this would be the last application of this kind, and that the Government would provide, as in other countries, a tribunal to hear these indelicate matters, which must of necessity be investigated before a tribunal of justice. The testimony in this case was not taken under oath, as we had not the power to administer an oath, but as the Union Act had conferred upon this Legislature the power to deal with these subjects, and it having been referred to a committee we dealt with it as best we could, and we came unanimously to the conclusion that the evidence was ample to justify the proceedings that have been taken. If there had been seen any sign of collusion or condonation between the parties to justify us in withholding our approval of this Bill, he (Mr. McCully) would have been one of the first to have resisted it.

Hon. Mr. LETELLIER de ST. JUST expressed himself decidedly opposed to this hurried mode of dealing with the question. If it must be passed into law, why do so with so much haste before hon. members have time to read over the evidence taken before another tribunal. He thought the parties and their witnesses ought to have been properly produced before this House, so that we would feel in conscience we were doing our duty, and not hold out such unheard of facilities to all others to come before this Dominion Parliament and accomplish their purposes with little or no trouble. This House was bound in honor and duty to protect the interests of society, and he felt satisfied that this was only the commencement of many other similar applications, and this case would be cited as precedent.

Hon. Mr. CAMPBELL said the evidence in the case went to show that the husband and wife had had no personal intercourse whatever since the wife had left her husband's house, and it had been shown that from the time the evidence was taken up to the time the Committee were sitting she was absent from him, and the letter she had written to him had been unanswered. There had been no intercourse between them, either personal or by correspondence, in any way, from the time the wife had left her husband's house. The evidence of guilt had been produced before the Committee in the most clear and distinct way in which it could be taken until this Senate has the power to examine witnesses under oath. The House indicated its wish not to have this matter brought before them, and they deputed their power to a committee, who having heard the evidence which had been taken under oath, and having heard the witnesses, they have intimated there was no collusion between the parties, and report in favor of the Bill. He did not quite agree with his hon. friend, (Mr. McCully) that they should create a court to deal with cases of marriage and divorce, because he thought the establishment of such a court would create too great a facility for the dissolution of the matrimonial bond, and would tend to increase the number of applications for divorce, while the present course tended to check these applications. These were the opinions he had formed for the moment on the subject. The Bill now before the Legislature, so far as he had formed an opinion, had been established by such evidence as he thought justified the House in adopting the report of the Committee and passing the Bill.

Hon. Mr. LOCKE gave notice of enquiry for Wednesday next, relating to filling up the vacancy caused by the death of the late Senator Weir.

The first report of the joint Committee on the Library was read and accepted.

The House then resolved itself into Committee of the Whole on the Bill from the House of Commons, intituled: "Stationery office establishment Bill,"

Hon. Mr. DICKSON in the Chair,

The said Bill was reported without amendment.

CURRENCY BILL.

The House went into Committee of the Whole on the Bill intituled "An Act respecting the Currency,"

Hon. Mr. McCREA in the chair.

Hon. Mr. STEEVES said the provisions of the Bill did not carry out its object, as stated in the preamble, that there should be a uniform currency throughout the Dominion.

Hon. Mr. CAMPBELL said that to prevent making changes in the currency too often it was thought desirable to submit to present evils, and wait until they ascertained whether the monetary arrangement agreed to by the Conference at Paris would be adopted by the United States.

Hon. Mr. WILMOT said if the recommendation of the Conference at Paris was not adopted, we should adopt the Nova Scotia system, and one advantage to be derived from it would be, it would relieve the silver nuisance by reducing its value compared with the sovereign.

Hon. Mr. TESSIER said legal tender notes were legal tender in Nova Scotia, as well as in other parts of the Dominion, therefore a person in Montreal with £1,000 in gold could get one thousand pounds in legal tender notes for it at the rate of 2¼, but if he went to Halifax he could buy up legal tender notes with his gold and reap a profit. If this was carried on to any extent the Province of Nova Scotia would certainly lose by it.

Hon. Mr. McCULLY said there would be no advantage gained in that way as the notes would not be of the same value in Montreal as in Halifax.

Hon. Mr. CAMPBELL said this Bill would provide a remedy for this difference of currency, in case Congress agrees with the recommendation of the Conference held at Paris, because then the Bill would introduce a uniform currency with the United States and some of the principal powers of Europe, but in case Congress does not accede to that recommendation, then some other Bill will have to be presented for the consideration of Parliament, having for its object the assimilation of the currency of the Dominion alone. In the prospect of Congress adopting that Bill it was thought best not to make any change in the meantime. Correspondence has been going on between the chairman of the Committee having that subject under consideration in Congress, and the gentleman who is at the head of the Finance Department here, and there is every reason to think that Congress will adopt that measure, and we will have a uniform currency which will be the same all over the Continent and in the United States. In reference to the objection made by his hon. friend (Mr. Tessier) he did not think anything would occur to interfere with the value of Dominion notes; those notes so far as issued in the Lower Provinces were marked redeemable there, and those issued here are redeemed here. They did not purpose to take sovereigns for more than they were worth.

His hon. the SPEAKER said they were mixing up the question of currency with the question of gold. If they took gold as the standard they might divide it into seven parts in one place, and into four parts in another, and call those four parts as good as the seven, but still the gold would always remain of one value. The sovereign at $5 in Nova Scotia was worth no more than 2 4-4 here, and the same rule would apply to the legal tenders which were as good as gold.

Hon. Mr. REESOR said though duties on customs had to be paid in gold, it was not so in regard to duties paid as internal revenue; this was an advantage in favor of Nova Scotia which, taken in connection with other concessions to that Province, would, he was afraid, stir up something like dissatisfaction in the far west.

Hon. Mr. MITCHELL explained that the question of the value of the sovereign and bank notes had been worked out in business connections for years past. The bank notes of St. John had always commanded a premium in Nova Scotia equal to the difference between $5 and $4.86⅔.

Hon. Mr. WILMOT said his experience in regard to the conference held at Paris was, that they should establish a coin to pay the balances between nation and nation; bills of exchange were often sold in St. John, and in Quebec, at four or five per cent. less than the value of the sovereign; then the gold went out and the banks lessened their accommodation. This measure recommended by the conference was not so much for the internal trade of these countries as the external trade.

The Bill was then agreed to, read a third time, and passed.

The House then adjourned.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.

Monday, May 4, 1868.

The SPEAKER took the chair at three o'clock.

PETITIONS.

On the question of the reception of the petition of Thomas Rigney (presented by Mr. Hilyard Cameron) praying for a settlement of his claim against the Government a long technical discussion arose, in which Hon. Col. GRAY strongly opposed the principle involved in the reception of any such petition, and was followed by Hon. Mr. JOHNSON, Mr. McKENZIE, Hon. Mr. HOLTON and Sir G. E. CARTIER, the Speaker reserving his decision on the point of order.

LIGHTHOUSES.

Mr. FORTIN presented the third report of the Select Committee on Fisheries and Navigation recommending the erection of lighthouses on the Bird Rocks, Green Island, White Horse Island, Telegraph Island and other places.

MONTREAL ELECTION.

The Montreal East Select Committee presented their final report, declaring that Sir G. E. Cartier had been duly elected, and that the petition against his return was frivolous and vexatious. (Cheers.)

Hon. Mr. CAMERON moved for leave to introduce a Bill to permit Bishops, Clergy and Laity, of the United Church of England and Ireland in Nova Scotia and New Brunswick, to be represented in Provincial Synod of said Church in Canada.

Mr. McKENZIE held that the Bill was a private one, and ought to be introduced as such.

Hon. Mr. CAMERON in reply said, if the Bill was ruled a private Bill, he was prepared to withdraw it and introduce it as a private Bill.

The Bill was withdrawn.

Hon. Sir JOHN A. MACDONALD introduced a Bill respecting copyrights, which was read a first time.

Mr. JONES (Grenville), seconded by Mr. Scatcherd, moved a "resolution declaring it for the interest of the Dominion that the number of His Excellency's advisers to whose offices salaries be attached should not at any time exceed nine," and in doing so said that he had felt that some one better able to do the subject justice, and to move in the matter with greater effect, should have done so; but as none such had appeared he could not allow the Session to pass without at least raising his voice against the extravagance which seemed to be the order of the day. The time of inaugurating a new system was the most favorable for the introduction of economy. The hon. Minister of Justice had said that even if we commenced on a cheap scale extravagance would creep in; but it must be much more alarming if the Government continued to organize departments, with the extraordinary expenses which they necessarily entailed. Two gentlemen from New Brunswick might be necessary to represent that Province in the Cabinet, and the same from Nova Scotia, and his resolution did not confine the number to that or even double that. It only provided that those to whom salaries should be paid should be limited to nine. When Confederation was carried the impression had gone abroad that the expenses of the General Government—all local matters being delegated to the Provincial Governments—would not be so great as in the old Province of Canada, but no one could look at the great increase in the public accounts since that event without alarm. The estimates were ingeniously got up. The salaries did not appear to be so greatly augmented; but the contingencies attached to the Departments were something enormous, and it was preposterous that 100 more employees should be made a charge upon this Dominion than were employed at Washington. The idea that the wisdom of New Brunswick and Nova Scotia in the Cabinet was necessary to represent the people of those provinces was falsified by the fact that with their advice, the legislation of the early part of the Session had only produced discord in the one and partially alienated the others. The Stamp Act, the tariff and the tax on newspapers had been utterly repudiated by the people of those provinces, who were supposed to be represented in the Cabinet, while the entire change of policy on the part of the Government during this part of the Session had gone far to alienate the people of Ontario, and it would not be surprising to see them follow the lead of the member for Lambton and join the members from the Maritime Provinces in Opposition. The same argument would apply to New Brunswick. The hon. and gallant knight at the head of the Government had, by way of illustration, referred to the action of two eminent English statesmen, Sir James Graham and Sir Charles Wood. He could not imagine how such an analogy could be drawn from such a direction, as would answer the purpose of the Government. For example, the hon. Finance Minister could scarcely plead that he needed any assistance to enable him to conduct control of a navy, a failure sufficient to invalidate his argument, and show that his cases were not parallel. The facts of English precedent were simply these: It had been found that there were two important Boards which were not responsible either to the Ministry or to Parliament, the Navy Board and the Indian Board, and it had been rightly judged that it was necessary to make them responsible. Here we had no Departments, not strictly responsible to the Ministry and the people, and the multiplication of offices had effected no object similarly called for. The head of the Customs is no more responsible than the Finance Minister, and it is to the House that the Minister for Inland Revenue also is responsible, not to the Finance Minister. But the Admiralty Board was responsible to the head of the Board, so that here the attempted analogy failed. There had, however, been one most important reformation introduced by Sir James Graham which was worthy of all imitation. He had effected such a reduction of salaried officers, (of 37 superior and 25 inferior officers; of 5 Commissioners, 3 Secretaries, and 54 clerks) as resulted in a saving of £49,000. This was a part of his administration to which the hon. and gallant knight had not chosen to allude, but it was one which was most important to the country at large. He had, however, made other allusion to Sir Charles Wood, Secretary for Indian Affairs. He (Mr. Jones) would ask any hon. member to say what analogy existed between the Secretary for India and our Finance Minister. The Secretary for India was not merely the head of a Department, he was the head of a great Empire: an Empire of 135,000,000 of population held by half the whole British army, by a standing force of 71,000 men. If the whole of the United States were to be joined to Canada, and the aggregate then multiplied by four, then indeed between the Governor-General, and the Secretary for India some comparison might lie, but the duties of His Excellency would require to be at least five times as great as they were at present before it could be fairly instituted. There was, however, one remark of the hon. knight, which was worthy of attention, and might be regarded as the only practical one really touching upon the question. It had been thrown out by way of encouragement to the leaders of the Opposition, and was of such encouragement that he scarcely expected their support upon the present motion. The hon. gentleman had told leading members opposite him, that if they were to be blessed with a continuance of good health, (and he might indeed have added with long life, for a long time would apparently be necessary for such a result) they might expect to hold office themselves, and that with this consideration they could not wisely consider it advisable to touch the Departmental arrangements by which they would one day find themselves relieved from all small business of detail. He might be permitted to suggest that if Ministers were not to be expected to familiarize themselves with points of detail, and to give information upon them when asked for it, it would be well to form a Board of Clerks, perhaps one Board of Minor and one of Major Clerks, to whom reference might be made upon subjects of greater or less importance. The Minister of Militia had pursued a different argument, and he must agree that if he (Sir George) could not make a question clear, it must be from the weakness of his position, and from no fault of his own, whose industry and capability were exhaustive. The Minister of Militia had told him that in perfecting the departmental arrangements the territorial element must necessarily be taken into consideration. If so, it had not been observed closely. Two members of the Cabinet had been taken from Montreal, while there was not one to represent the eastern townships. Quebec had furnished one, but from between Quebec and Montreal there had not been any. It was the same in Ontario. In the little town of Kingston, a city he believed, but certainly a very small one, there were to be found two, and in Toronto one, but in the whole Ottawa district and through the whole western peninsula and the Georgian Bay district, the most productive section of the West, there had not been one Cabinet Minister selected. Then it had been urged that the element of nationality must be regarded, and he (Mr. Jones) might say that he would never like to see any Cabinet where the French population were unrepresented. They were the worthy descendants of a noble race. Nor, he might add, would he wish to see the Minister of Militia occupying any lesser place. But there was more than one very important nationality overlooked altogether. England and Wales had no Cabinet representation, while the smallest of the component sections of the United Kingdom had no less than four. The Irish element was similarly disregarded. That element numbered 600,000, or nearly half the population of Ontario. How was it that the principle maintained in Quebec had been abandoned in Ontario? Was it that the Irish element possessed no members worthy of such position, or was it by accident. By the latter perhaps, but, if so, by an accident regularly recurring when a particular person was at the head of the Government. (Laughter.) Coincidences of so constant a character acquired the dignity of natural laws. (Laughter.) He had, however, hoped that from the Dominion Government we should have heard less of national distinctions. We had hitherto been always necessarily a heterogeneous people, but he had hoped that we might have now at least begun to assume homogeneous character. Referring to the great increasing expenses of the Government he went on to compare the outlays of recent years. The civil list of 1851 had amounted to $132,412, and that of 1867 to $375,179, while in 1868 it had come up to $605,169, and for 1869 was to be swelled to $651,366, showing since '67 an increase of $188,269, entirely independent of the large subsidies to Quebec and Ontario. What was to be the goal of such a progress? The cost of governing three and a half millions of people amounted to more than the whole expenses of the Government at Washington. It might be said that we should not look to Washington for examples, but he considered that we were right to look in any direction where economic Government was being carried on. Then in the Militia Department we had an increase of 1868 over 1867 expenditure of $18,045, and on this point he could assure hon. gentlemen opposite that much dissatisfaction prevailed in Ontario. Volunteers were willing and were able to do all the duty, but they were badly paid, and large sums which should properly go to them had been used up in the maintenance of a useless staff at Ottawa. Then again in the Finance Department, there was greatly increasing expenditure (Hon. Mr. HOLTON, Hear, hear.) $59,091 in 1867, had been swelled to $75,012 in 1868, an excess of $15,921; that would be bad enough in itself, but contingencies had to be considered in addition, and indeed, he thought the Government might as fairly and more conveniently propose every contemplated increase under one lump contingent sum. These with customs $41,622, and Inland Revenue $25,000, made a total increase of $93,000 in the Finance administration. Then the Secretary of State, including $25,000 for contingencies, absorbed $60,809. The hon. member went on to refer more particularly to the Ordnance Lands and Indian Branch of the Department, and after some explanation from Hon. Mr. LANGEVIN, maintained that their charges showed, as a matter of fact upon the estimates, an increase of $4,641. He then proceeded to show the amount of saving to be expected by the abolition of four departments, and though for convenience of calculation, he would individualise these, he would not be understood as suggesting to the Government which might be most profitably dispensed with. However taken the following pro forma. The abolition of Customs would give $64,622; of Inland Revenue $49,486; of Secretary of State $60,089; and of Public Works $63,611, making a total saving of $237,806. He might fairly include the latter, for, while not desirous to reflect upon its present head, he must say that if there had been one department more injurious to the country than another it had been that of Public Works. Every work with which they ever had to do had been a total failure. They were just competent to initiate, but never to complete. In every case it had been necessary to call in arbitration. The Grand Trunk Railway had been constructed under the supervision of the Government, and every difficulty under which it had been since found to labor had been the result of its defects of construction. Ignoring the two most important railway considerations, straightness and evenness of grade, the engineers, of whom one was the Department's, prolonged the line for which they were payed per mile by running round every obstacle they encountered, till the road ran altogether in Hogarth's line of beauty, while the gradients of Government supervision were so steep as to make it necessary for engine drivers to back up one hill to gain momentum to carry them forward on the next. The department was also responsible for the Chats Canal, the most extraordinary work of any country, a mere hole in a rock without outlet or inlet, out of the line of the Ottawa Ship Canal, and the cost of which might as profitably have been sunk in the St. Lawrence. The Houses of Parliament, also constructed under Board of Works supervision, and the cost of which had been estimated at $678,000 had involved an outlay of close upon $3,000,000, the contractors having been paid $48,000 in excess, and arbitration having amounted to $30,300. The Public Works Department had therefore, he contended, squandered more money, and exhibited more incompetence than any other. In conclusion, the hon. member would not go on at any greater length to enlarge upon his subject, but would appeal to hon. members to say whether it were possible for the country to maintain such a rate of expenditure much longer. He did not bring his motion with any desire to displace Ministers; it was the system not the administrators that he objected to, and, if there were to be 13 offices maintained, would as soon see them filled as at present as by any gentlemen from his own side. He believed, however, that seven or even five might be made sufficient, but allowing as many as nine, had so indicated the means of saving to the public Treasury $237,800 yearly. In the time he had occupied, he had endeavored to touch as many points as he could pertinent to the object he had view, which was in the interests of the country; and thanking the House for the amiable manner in which they had listened to him, he took his seat.

Amid cries of "question," "divide," &c., the Speaker declared the resolution lost on a division.

Hon. Mr. BLANCHET moved an address for a statement of claims submitted for the decision of the Provincial Arbitrators of the former Province of Canada, consequent upon the appropriation of land required for military defence in the county of Levis, &c. In doing so, he claimed that the people ought to have the right to appeal from the decisions of the Arbitrators.

Hon. Mr. McDOUGALL said it was scarcely necessary to defend a law deliberately passed during a part of the session, and went on to show in defence of not allowing appeals, that large sums had been wrongfully recovered from the Government by the decision of judges who could not be expected to know more of questions of land than four gentlemen of high character, appointed by the Government for the special purpose of deciding such questions. The Arbitrators would form a court, and members of it would take evidence on oath in such parts of the Dominion as they might reside, and give their decisions. This, however, might be appealed from to the full Court. His experience of many years, was that cases decided against the Arbitrators, in nine cases out of ten, had no merits.

Mr. McKENZIE agreed with the Minister of Public Works, saying that awards and damages in appeals of this kind had grown into a frightful abuse. In the Beauharnois canal case the country had paid in costs and damages more than fifty times the value of the land taken. He hoped the Government would be careful in appointing proper arbitrators, and they should have his support in the attempt to establish a better system.

Mr. KIRKPATRICK, as a member of the old Provincial Board of Arbitrators, said they had given no decision in the case of the Beauharnois canal.

Hon. Mr. BLANCHET in reply instanced a case of great hardship, and said that the people in his part of the country were strongly in favor of the right of appeal to juries, as was the case in France and England. Even if the Government should lose £100,000, it was better so than that a private person should be wronged out of a single cent. (Laughter). At any rate he expected the present Government to be more reasonable than gentlemen opposite had been when they were in power.

Hon. Mr. HOLTON thought that in the peculiar sense meant the hon. gentleman would find the Government exceedingly reasonable. In the case of hardship spoken of, the person probably tried to speculate on the necessities of the Government, by purchasing land he knew they must have. He had known such cases.

Hon. Mr. JOHNSON said juries invariably gave decisions against governments and corporations, whether right or wrong.

After a brief reply from the mover in explanation, the motion was carried.

It being six o'clock the SPEAKER left the chair.

After Recess.

Hon. Mr. HOLTON in moving an address, praying His Excellency the Governor General to withhold his sanction from the Bill to incorporate the St. Lewis Hydraulic Company, passed by the Legislature of the Province of Quebec, said he knew the difficulties in separating the general and local jurisdictions in such matters. The Government seemed to desire not to bring such questions before the House, but as the Governor General had power to disallow, which he must exercise on the advice of Ministers, and as all the Provinces were represented in this House, he thought it should be taken into consideration, especially as it had not been sanctioned by the Lieutenant Governor of Quebec, probably because the Government of that Province shrunk from advising its rejection, but preferred to reserve it for the decision of the Governor General. As to the principle of the Bill, he contended that the Dominion Government should not allow any of the Provinces to put their hands upon any of the navigable waters of the Dominion, which the Company seemed desirous of doing.

Hon. Mr. JOHNSON said for this House to interfere with what was simply the right and duty of the Governor General and his advisers, would be an unwarranted interference.

Hon. Mr. GALT objected that the Bill was not before the House, and contended that they could not discuss it intelligently without it.

Mr. SHANLY hoped the address would be granted, giving several reasons, which were inaudible in the gallery.

Sir JOHN A. MACDONALD said that after what had fallen from his hon. friend (Mr. Shanly) who was an authority, he was glad the question had been brought before the attention of the Government. He thought it extremely inadvisable that the Acts of Local Governments should be supervised by the General Government, except in very extreme cases, and these only two viz., when there was an excess of jurisdiction, or when, though the jurisdiction was undoubted, the act would be monstrously prejudicial to the interests of the people as a whole.

Mr. BLAKE rose to echo every word that had fallen from the leader of the Government, and argued that only extreme cases would warrant interference with the acts of the Local Legislatures.

Hon. Mr. HOLTON was indebted to the leader of the Government for the able and courteous manner in which his suggestions had been met, and would withdraw the motion.

Hon. Mr. MACDOUGALL said in case of the overflow of water in consequence of the erection of works, the question of jurisdiction became a serious one.

Hon. Mr. CHAUVEAU followed in French, after which the motion was withdrawn.

Mr. BLANCHET moved for an order of the House for return of state of fisheries of the river St. Lawrence from Rimouski to head of tide on the south shore, &c.—Carried.

Hon. Mr. HOLTON—That the answer of the Hon. the Secretary of State to an enquiry respecting the incompleteness of the return to an address of the House for copies of correspondence in reference to the honors conferred by Her Majesty on certain members of this House be entered in the journals.

In making this motion he merely now desired that the correspondence should be entered on the journals of the House.

Sir G. E. CARTIER said there was no precedent for such a proceeding, and it would, if granted, open the journals to all questions.

The motion was lost on a division.

Mr. WALLACE moved an address for return of employees receiving annual salaries who are paid for extra or other services.—Carried.

Mr. RYAN, (for Montreal West), was introduced by Sir George E. Cartier and Mr. Workman, and took his seat.

Mr. MACDONALD (Lunenburg), in the absence of Mr. Croke, moved an address for copies of reports, &c., relating to the St. Peter's canal (Cape Breton).—Carried.

Mr. McKENZIE moved an address for the return of items of work, Parliament Buildings.—Carried.

Mr. McKENZIE moved an address for the return respecting McGreevy contracts.—Carried.

Hon. Mr. CARLING moved an address for the reports made by Surveyors or other officers employed to construct roads and other works for the purpose of opening communication between the head of Lake Superior and the Red River.—Carried.

Mr. McKENZIE moved to refer returns to address for papers relative to the forcible abduction of Allan Macdonald to Special Committee.

Sir JOHN A. MACDONALD said that to-morrow he would be in a position to give positive information relating to the case, and the motion was therefore withdrawn.

SALARY OF GOVERNOR GENERAL.

Mr. OLIVER moved, seconded by Mr. BODWELL, that the House would, on Friday next, go into Committee of the Whole to consider a resolution declaring it expedient to alter the provision made on the 105th section of the British North American Act, 1867, and to fix the salary of His Excellency the Governor General at $35,000 per annum.

Mr. DUFRESNE moved in amendment the substitution of the amount $32,000 for $35,000.

Mr. MASSON (Soulanges) referring to recent newspaper statements, asked if the Dominion Government were about to defray the expenses of a residence for the Governor-General at Spencer Wood in addition to maintaining Rideau Hall.

Sir J. A. MACDONALD replied that it was not the intention of the Government to furnish two viceregal residences, and speaking to the motion and amendment, said that in making appropriation for his Excellency's remuneration, they were merely handing back money which formerly belonged to the Sovereign, and had been resigned to the Local Government on condition of maintainance of a sufficient civil list, out of which the Governor-General had for many years been paid £7,000 stg., and this when the population of the colony was barely 1,000,000. The limits over which his Excellency now administered government had increased in population to 4,000,000, had embraced a large additional territory, and would, as they hoped, eventually cover the whole area of British North America. He did not think that the consequent increase of £3,000 was under the circumstances, unreasonable, and he feared that any hesitation in voting would not redound to the honor of the Dominion in the estimation of the English people. He went on to refer to Earl Grey's protest in 1851 against the insufficiency of the £7,000 allowance to tempt our English gentlemen of the requisite stamp and standing to undertake the office. Few of the Governors who had yet accepted the administration of the province had been men of great mark, and, with all respect to the present noble occupant, it could not be denied that he had never held that diplomatic or official station which they would desire to see in the representative of our Sovereign here. Comparing the salaries of the Governors of several British Colonies, he instanced that paid by the Cape Colony as £6,500, by Hong Kong as £5,000 and by Victoria as £10,000 stg., arguing therefrom the admission of these dependencies of the principle he advocated with regard to the necessity of offering suitable inducements to competent Viceroys.

Hon. Mr. JOHNSON said he did not desire to see any provisions of the B.N.A. Act, which were in the nature of a contract, to be altered. With regard to this salary he had in London voted for a smaller amount, but the delegates had to yield the point and he thought they ought to be sustained in so doing.

Dr. PARKER thought it natural that the delegates, with all the surroundings of the Court of London, should propose the amount in the Act, but he thought it too much, and ought never to have been put in the Act at all. The sum should be such as should satisfy our own people.

Hon. Mr. CAMERON was confirmed in his opinion that the salary was not too large by the arguments of the Minister of Justice, and the only reason for a feeling to reduce it was the miserable pittance given to the Lieutenant-Governor's of the Provinces. He did not think when all the circumstances were taken into consideration, that the sum could be called too large. He hoped the notices would be withdrawn.

Mr. BLAKE said that the Act gave us the power to act in this matter, and he utterly denied that we should not use our judgment in settling the question. If other pecuniary advantages were added to the sum named by the member for North Oxford, it would swell it to $50,000, which was a very respectable sum. He thought we should offer a man a good career by improving our country, rather than holding out a money bribe.

Hon. Mr. ROSE said any interference with this portion of the Union Act would be very ungraceful on our part, and would tend to wound the sensibilities of the Imperial Government towards us, as showing a disposition on our part to cavil, and to treat the only imperial officer among us with indignity.

Hon. Col. GRAY opposed the reduction as impolitic, and calculated to create in England undesirable opinions of Canadian parsimony. A Governor compelled to maintain the dignity of the Crown, would be unable to support, without adequate remuneration, the heavy expense of his necessary public hospitalities, and any interference with His Excellency's salary, would lead to the belief that we did not know our own minds for one year together. He hoped that the motion, by the discussion of which the public mind would be fairly directed to the question, would be withdrawn.

Mr. BODWELL could not consent to the withdrawal and entered into arguments in support of the propriety of the proposed reduction.

Hon. Sir GEO. E. CARTIER replied, defending the action of the members of the Conference in fixing the salary at the amount proposed by the Government. The Union Act had dealt most liberally with the civil list liabilities of the Dominion, in refraining from insisting upon its claim as a first charge upon their revenues. He would earnestly request gentlemen from both sides of the House to pause before coming to such a conclusion as the motion embodied.

Hon. Mr. HOLTON combatted the argument that a salary of £10,000 was necessary as likely to induce gentlemen or noblemen of high standing to accept our vice-royalty. Statesmen of rank would not be induced by such small pecuniary considerations to leave England for a Government that promised no possession of power. The large Australian salaries had never succeeded in attracting men of calibre. He would vote for the amendment of the member for Montcalm, if pressed, although preferring the original motion. His desire was for a reduction, the precise amount of which he did not consider of so much consequence.

Hon. Mr. GALT replied, showing that the increase was not really so great as had been supposed, many incidental changes which had swelled the previous salary of £7,000 being omitted from connection with the present allowance. He endorsed the argument that it was necessary to indemnify the occupant for the expenses unavoidable in his position as upholder of monarchical state on this continent. We required a Governor who was either the representative of one of the great aristocratic families, or had made such a mark in the House of Commons as would carry personal and political weight for exercise in behalf of the Dominion with the Imperial Government. A lower rate would deter first class applicants, and leave the office to be scrambled for among the hundreds of inferiors who knew that they desired the remuneration, and believed that they could fill the dignity. He hoped that the House would not agree to the motion which would, if carried, be degrading to the country.

Mr. F. JONES did not believe that it was altogether necessary to secure the very best men of England, but, if it were, he would not seek to tempt them by mere mercenary inducement. (Laughter.) Royalty and its representatives harmonized most affectually with free institutions when not gifted with the most transcendant powers. Of this we had example equally in Lord Elgin's administration, and in the reigns of some English Sovereigns. Nor did he regard it as a necessity of the country to place at its head any scion of aristocracy merely as such. He would rather have one of nature's noblemen, but could scarcely be expected to offer to a nature's nobleman, the temptation of $50,000. And, as it had been admitted that the salary was proposed in view of territorial extension from the Atlantic to the Pacific, he thought that might be deferred until the extension had been perfected. (Hear, hear.)

Mr. McKENZIE found that all gentlemen who visited London returned with notions of extravagance. He denied the attempted analogy between our circumstances and those of remote Colonies, and censured the Government for not having invited consideration of this item in committee.

Mr. SCATCHERD had no confidence in professions of economy from the members for Chateauguay or Lambton, finding that they were inclined always to deal with such questions only with reference to the side of the House from which they came.

Mr. J. RYMAL could not understand the justice of paying an English Governor so much more largely than a Canadian Minister. There were nine or ten gentlemen opposite him who were working might and main, and taxing their brains in the service of their country, so much so that they were always behind in their work, (great laughter,) for a miserable pittance of $5,000. They were he supposed first class men. They would at least object to being rated as second class, (laughter,) and yet it seemed that they were rated at only the tenth part of the value of some second rate old country aristocrat. It took ten Ministers to make one Governor, just as he had heard that it took nine tailors to make one man. (Loud laughter.) He would vote for the amendment.

The amendment was then put, and the House divided with the following result: yeas 90; nays 45. The announcement of the numbers being received with Opposition cheers.

The motion was then put as amended, viz., that the House go into committee to consider the propriety of amending the British North America Act so far as to provide for the reduction of the salary of the Governor-General to $32,000; and was carried on a division of 108 to 27. Mr. Savary (for) pairing off, with Mr. Wood (against) on both votes.

The House then went into committee, Mr. STIRTON in the chair, and Mr. OLIVER'S resolution being put and carried, the reception of the report was ordered for to-morrow, and the House rose at seven minutes to one this morning.

NEW EDINBURGH PENNY READINGS.—The last of these popular entertainments for this season will be given at New Edinburgh this evening at eight o'clock, and special preparation has been made to render the last night of the season worthy of remembrance. The readers who have promised to assist are Rev. T. D. Phillips, President, and Messrs. Macaulay, Lett, Carrier, Johnson, and Ryan. The ladies whose musical talents have so largely contributed to the popularity of the readings in time past, will also be present, and Messrs. Sinclair and Foster have kindly promised to lend their aid on this occasion. The New Edinburgh readings have been held twenty-two evenings during the winter, and among the results, the little society can now show about 200 volumes of good standard works, and a melodeon. In addition to which they have afforded intellectual pleasure and improvement to hundreds of people.

To the Editor of THE TIMES.

SIR,—With your permission I beg leave to request of you to be kind enough to insert in a small space of your respectable journal the following remarks I have made to the memory of my late lamented good friend, the Hon. Mr. McGee. When I first had the honor of getting acquainted with him, was at Montreal, on his return from Quebec, after the last Session of Parliament in that city. I had a letter of introduction to him from my countryman and his bosom friend, Walter McFarlane, Esq., of Montreal, requesting his late friend to use his influence in my behalf to get me employment in the Government service in Ottawa, and he told me then that he would see the Speaker, and do all he could for me, and I believe that he had done so, consequently I have great reason to regret the awful manner that he met with his death, and the present Government I believe has lost one of the brightest statesmen among them and can never be replaced with the like of him again. Certainly the Dominion of Canada, as well as Great Britain and Ireland, have cause to lament the loss of such a great and useful man. He was always for peace, and to do good to people of all denominations; he is gone, I trust, to another and better world than this. Peace to his ashes.

DARLEY'S

Arabian Heave Remedy

AND CONDITION MEDICINE

IS POSITIVELY SUPERIOR TO ANY or all other preparations for the cure of Heaves, Coughs, Thick and Broken Wind, and all diseases which affect the Wind of Horses; also, as a Condition Medicine, surpassing everything of the kind is easy to give, sure to cure, and safe in all cases and at all times, and does not prevent the horse from being worked while using it.

It cleanses the breathing apparatus, by removing from the air-cells the coagulable lymph, or that secretion which in heaves clogs them, causing a difficulty in breathing, and by its action on the diseased part, causing the mucous membrane to resume its natural dimensions, thus equalizing the circulation of the blood, and restoring the distended vessels to their natural size; by its use the horse's appetite is improved, all derangements of the digestive organs corrected, softening the skin, and giving to the coat a sleek and shining appearance.

GOVERNMENT HOUSE, OTTAWA,

27th April, 1868.

PRESENT:

HIS EXCELLENCY THE GOVERNOR GENERAL IN COUNCIL.

HIS Excellency was pleased to lay be-fore the Council a Memorandum from the Honourable the Minister of Inland Revenue, submitting for approval and adoption a draft of certain Regulations respecting the Bonding and Warehousing of goods subject to duties of Excise.

Whereupon His Excellency in Council was pleased to order, and it is hereby ordered, that the Regulations so submitted and hereinafter specified, be, and they are hereby approved, under the provisions of the 88th section, of the Act 31 Vic., cap. 8, intituled: "An Act respecting the Inland Revenue."

REGULATIONS.

1. Application for the establishment of a warehouse for excise purposes must be made in writing by the person requiring it, and every such application must fully and minutely describe the premises with their exact locality.

2. On receipt of such an application the collector of Inland Revenue will survey the premises, and if satisfied that they are suitable for the purpose, and that they afford the requisite protection to the revenue, and on their being supplied with suitable locks, he will report the facts to the department, whose authority will be required to use such warehouse as a bonding warehouse for excise purposes.

3. The principal door of ingress and egress of every such warehouse shall be provided with two locks at the expense of the owner of the goods warehoused, one of which shall be selected by the collector or by other competent authority, the key of the last named lock to be kept by the officer, and the key of the former by the owner of the goods; and should there be more doors than one all such other doors and all windows and other means of ingress shall be fastened on the inside in a secure manner to the satisfaction of the surveying officer.

4. When any warehouse has been surveyed and accepted as an excise warehouse it shall be designated by a letter commencing with A, and so on in alphabetical sequence for each succeeding warehouse surveyed within that division.

5. Over the principal entrance to every warehouse approved for excise purposes there shall be placed the following designation:

V. R.

EXCISE

BONDED WAREHOUSE.

With the proper letter, the whole being in legible characters in black, not less than three inches in height, painted on a white ground.

6. Goods subject to duties of excise may be warehoused in any customs warehouse within the limits of the Inland Revenue Division in which they have been manufactured, or to which they may be removed in bond under these regulations; in every such case they must be received into warehouse by the customs locker on the warrant of the collector of Inland Revenue, countersigned by the collector of customs for the port.

7. With the exception of malt no goods shall be entered for warehouse unless the duties accruing thereon amount, under one bond, to at least one hundred dollars.

8. Every package entered for warehouse must (in addition to all other marks and numbers) be distinctly numbered, in red paint mixed with oil, with the number of the entry and the date at which it was entered. The date will be sufficiently indicated by the number of the half month and the last two numerals of the year in which the entry was made;—thus, goods entered on the 20th January, 1868, may be dated 14-68; shewing that the entry was made in the fourteenth half month of the current fiscal year.

9. All entries are to be numbered consecutively, and the bonds relating to them will bear corresponding numbers.

10 Collectors of Customs having charge of bonded excise goods will keep a debit and credit account of them; and the warrant of the Collector of Inland Revenue will be the only sufficient discharge for their delivery.

11 If any goods, after having been received into warehouse, and before their actual delivery ex-warehouse, be altered in quantity, quality or strength, except by leakage, unavoidable waste, or accident, they shall be forfeited, and may be seized by any officer of Excise or Customs having a knowledge thereof.

12 In case the quantity of goods bonded in any warehouse shall, at any time or by any means, fall short or be deficient of the actual quantity which ought to be or remain warehoused, after deducting the quantities entered ex-warehouse, the owner thereof shall be subject and liable to the full duties on the balance of goods with which the warehouse stands debited, after taking an account of the ex-warehouse entries; and the goods remaining shall be subject to the duties on the quantity deficient, and shall and may be sold for payment thereof, by order of the department; the surplus, if any, to be payable to the person who warehoused such goods or his assigns.

13 No goods shall be warehoused or ex-warehoused upon any authorized holiday nor before the hour of nine o'clock in the morning or after four o'clock in the afternoon.

14 All entry papers, bonds, notices and other documents herein required shall be made out by the owner of the goods to which they relate or by his duly accredited agent, and all packages shall be marked and numbered as herein required by the owner or his agent.

ENTRY OF GOODS FOR WAREHOUSE.

15 Every entry of goods for warehouse must be preceded by a written notice from the person desiring to warehouse them, which notice must be given to the collector in the prescribed form, at least one day before the goods are removed to the warehouse and must set forth fully the quantity and description of the goods.

16 Entry of goods for warehouse must in all cases be made on the forms sanctioned by the department, and every such entry shall contain a full and complete specification of the goods so entered, stating.

a The number and description of packages.

b Marks and numbers.

c Contents of each in lbs or gallons, and in the case of spirits the contents are to be stated in gallons of the strength of proof.

d The duty to which the goods would have been liable had they gone into consumption.

Every cask or barrel of spirits, and every package of tobacco shall be full and whole at the time it is warehoused.

17 Every such entry shall be made in duplicate.

18 The collector of Inland Revenue will in every case take bonds with each entry as required by sec 91, 31st Vic., Cap. 8; and on the prescribed form. These bonds must contain a general description of the goods warehoused, and also a reference to the entry papers by number and date. The bond will bear the same number as the entry and they will be filed together.

ENTRY OF GOODS EX-WAREHOUSE FOR EXPORTATION.

Nova Scotia	Ha
New Brunswick	St. John.
Quebec	Quebec. Montreal.
Ontario	Prescott. Kingston. Toronto. Hamilton. Clifton. Windsor. Sarnia.

And only to British or Foreign Ports of Entry where there are Collectors of Customs or other officers of the Government having similar functions.

20 Goods can only be entered for exportation ex-warehouse from a warehouse within the limits of the Port at which they are actually laden on the ship or other vehicles in which they are to leave the country.

21 As soon as any person owning goods warehoused under these regulations shall be desirous of exporting any quantity of such goods, he shall deliver to the collector of Inland Revenue, in whose charge such goods are, a notice in writing specifying the full particulars thereof as set forth in section 16 of these regulations, and also the name of the ship or vessel, and the name of the master of such ship or vessel, or the line of railway, as the case may be, by which such goods are intended to be exported.

22 All casks, boxes, bales or other packages of goods entered for exportation shall, before leaving the warehouse, be conspicuously marked, branded or stamped, as the case may be, by the collectors of Inland Revenue or other proper officer with the letters EXPN.

23 Entry of goods for exportation ex-warehouse, must be made on the forms sanctioned by the department, and must contain an exact specification of the goods for warehouse. (Vide sec. 16.) With every such entry an export bond shall be taken in the prescribed form.

24 Export bonds shall be conditional for the due delivery of the goods bonded at the place designated in the entry within a specified time, which time shall not in any case exceed the time usually necessary for the performance of the voyage or journey by the conveyance adopted, and for returning the vouchers by the next mail; and in no case shall the period allowed for the cancellation of the bond exceed one year, unless special authority has been granted by the department.

25 The cancellation of an Export Bond shall only be considered complete on the receipt of a duly authenticated certificate from the collector of customs or other government officer having similar authority, at the Port of Entry to which the goods were bonded, certifying that the goods described in the Export Entry have been landed and duly entered for consumption or warehoused at the place specified in the entry.

26 The entry for Exportation ex-warehouse shall in all cases be made in triplicate with the collector of Inland Revenue who shall also take the Export Bond.

27 Two copies of the Entry shall be sent to the collector of Customs at the Port whence the goods are to leave the Dominion, who, on receipt thereof shall grant a warrant for the lading of the goods described in the Entry on the Railway or vessel therein mentioned.

28 So soon as the goods have been duly laden the collector of Customs shall certify the fact on the entry papers, one copy whereof shall be filed at the Custom House and the other shall be returned to the collector of Inland Revenue.

29 Whether goods are entered for export from a customs warehouse, or from a warehouse used exclusively for excise, the collector of the port will in each case be charged with the responsibility of seeing them placed on board the ship, car or other vehicle in which they are to be exported, and he must make such examination of the goods as may be necessary for determining whether they correspond with the description contained in the entry, and especially with reference to spirits whether they are of the strength specified.

ENTRY OF GOODS FOR REMOVAL EX-WAREHOUSE IN BOND.

30 Entries of goods for removal, ex-warehouse are to be made in triplicate, with detailed specifications, as in export entries.

31 Goods can only be entered for removal ex-warehouse to another warehouse within the limits of a warehousing Port of Entry or to a Bonding warehouse previously authorized in another Inland Revenue Division

32 Bonds, in the form prescribed by the department, must, in every case, be taken for the due delivery of the goods at the place of destination.

33 When the goods entered for removal are bonded in a custom warehouse, the locker having charge of them will only deliver them for removal on receipt of a warrant signed by the Collector of Inland Revenue and countersigned by the Collector of Customs, which warrant must contain an exact transcript or abstract of the specification of the goods in the entry, and the locker is required to identify every package and check it by the warrant.

34 Collectors of Inland Revenue on receiving the copies of the entry as above (sec. 31), will at once notify the Collector of Customs of the anticipated arrival of the goods specified, giving him one copy of the entry; and on the arrival of the goods the Collector of Customs will examine them and ascertain whether they correspond with the entry.

35 As soon as they have arrived and are identified, the Collector of Customs will certify the fact on the entry paper and return it to the Collector of Inland Revenue. The goods are then to be rebonded by the owner in the division into which they are removed. Thereafter they are to be dealt with in the same manner as if they had been manufactured in that Division.

ENTRY OF GOODS EX-WAREHOUSE FOR CONSUMPTION.

36 Entry of goods ex-warehouse for consumption will be made in duplicate on the prescribed forms, and every such entry must contain a full specification of the goods, as in an export or removal entry.

37 On receipt of the duty accruing on the goods so entered, the Collector of Inland Revenue will make out a warrant for the delivery of the goods, which, if the goods are in a Customs warehouse, must be countersigned by the Collector of Customs, and must contain a transcript of the specification in the entry, and the locker in charge of the warehouse must identify every package with the description contained in the warrant before delivering it.

MALT.

38 Malt warehoused under the Act above cited may be removed in Bond from one Inland Revenue Division to another or from one warehouse to another, and may be exported in bond without payment of duty. But every such removal or export shall be under the same restrictions and conditions as to entry and bonds as are in force in respect of other goods liable to duties of excise, except that bags or other packages containing malt are not required to be marked or numbered, and except further that any duly licensed maltster carrying on business, when entering malt manufactured by himself for warehouse, may do so on giving a general bond in a form to be prescribed by the Department of Inland Revenue, for payment of the duty on the malt so bonded; which bond shall be for such a sum as the collector or officer, taking it, computes will be equal to double the amount of duty that will accrue on the largest quantity of malt that will be warehoused under such bond at one time, and if from any unexpected cause the quantity of malt shall at any time be in excess of the quantity so computed further bonds shall be taken for such additional quantity.

If any one supposed that the position of the Government was injuriously affected by the vote of the Governor-General's salary, his mind must have been very soon disabused of the notion, for the Hon. Mr. Holton, with true chivalric spirit, gave the House the earliest possible opportunity of renewing the expression of its confidence in His Excellency's advisers. By moving, in amendment to the motion for going into Committee of Supply, a series of propositions the affirmation or negation of which, as to their merits, was not of the least consequence, he gave the House in the most unmistakable manner an opportunity of voting, untrammelled by any side issues, the question, pure and simple, of confidence or non-confidence in the Government. The division on this issue gave 94 for the Government and 36 against it; or a majority of 58 in a House of 130.

We cannot say that we admire the decision at which the House of Commons arrived on Tuesday morning, respecting the amount to be annually paid to Her Majesty's representative in this country. Reasonable economy is very well in its place, but it is not reasonable economy, but a penny wise and pound foolish economy, which places the salary of the Governor-General of the Dominion of Canada, at a lower rate than that paid to the Governor-General of the old Province of Canada for many years. It cannot be argued that money is relatively worth more now-a-days than it was ten or fifteen or twenty years ago; on the contrary, it is steadily losing its purchasing capacity, and save but on exceptional occasions, will continue to do so perhaps to the end of the chapter. The Governor-General of Canada was paid seven thousand pounds stg. per annum at a time when money had a relatively greater value than it has to-day; before the general, so called, rise in wages—which was in fact only a re-adjustment of the relations between money and all other commodities—took place; before official and other incomes had risen to their present average: and now, by way of impressing the whole world with the increased dignity which Union has conferred upon the country, Parliament declares that several hundred pounds shall be taken from the sum which was ungrudgingly paid by the old Province, at a time when its population was less by at least two-thirds than that of the Dominion, and when its wealth and capacity to pay were perhaps less by four-fifths!

We do not pause to consider whether the duty of the office could not be efficiently performed for thirty-two thousand dollars, or even twenty thousand, because we cannot look upon the question as one of mere wages. It is one affecting the dignity of the country; its status as a dependency of the British Crown; its willingness to sustain the position of the man whom Her Majesty may honor with the high commission of representing her crown and dignity in the administration of the Government of the Dominion. No doubt an honorable, high-minded, painstaking man, in every way competent to perform all the official duties devolving upon the Governor-General could be found to undertake their performance for even half the sum now fixed by the House of Commons, but then the status of the Dominion would be affected accordingly. And it is just because we think that Canada will be belittled by this vote that we question its wisdom.

We should not forget how much we are yet dependent on the Mother Country; how much of its active assistance and its sympathy may be needed ere we can succeed in carrying out Confederation to its designed conclusion; how much upon the good will of all political parties at home will turn our chances in the future of carrying out the many great enterprises, the fulfilment of which are essential to the growth and consolidation of the "New Nation;" and if we keep these in view, it may perhaps be safely concluded that the saving, in hard cash, of some sixteen thousand dollars per annum is hardly worth the risk we run of losing something of the prestige which recent events have gained for us in the public mind of the British Empire.

However, let it be said that thirty-two thousand dollars per annum is a handsome income in this frugal community; amply sufficient to sustain the modest dignity which would seem best to comport with the tastes and habits of our public men; and such, we think, as no public man of distinction would at all dishonor himself by accepting. Had the Union Act fixed the salary at that figure, we should not have had a word to say, but we regret to see that the sum fixed by that Act, and which we may reasonably suppose the Imperial authorities assumed would have been confirmed by the Canadian Parliament, has been set aside for a little less than two-thirds of its amount, at this early stage of our new career.

The following is the division upon which Mr. Olivier's motion, reduced from thirty-five to thirty-two thousand dollars, by a vote of 90 to 45, on Mr. Dufresne's amendment to that effect, was sent to committee:

Yeas:—Messrs. In order that the matter may be the better understood we give a more full note of the Mayor's observations on Monday night, when alluding to the celebration of the Queen's Birthday, than the space at our disposal permitted yesterday morning:

The Mayor said that it was in contemplation to organize a citizen's demonstration in honor of the occupation of this city by the Dominion Government. A variety of circumstances having transpired delaying the project up to the present sitting of the Legislature, it was proposed to have this demonstration during the Session, and Her Majesty's Birthday had been suggested as an appropriate occasion. The project had been mentioned to our representative and other citizens of high standing, and had been received with marked approval. The melancholy event which had so shocked the public mind recently, necessarily forced aside consideration of this social proposition, and the alleged intention of prorogation before the Queen's Birthday had placed further difficulty in the way. The intention was to have invited the members of the Legislature and Government to a civic ball in the Skating Rink Building, which it was proposed to fit up for that purpose. It, however, this portion of the programme had to be abandoned under the circumstances, it was to be hoped we should not neglect this courtesy when next the Legislature was in Session, and an annual recurrence of such would not be an unworthy means of encouraging social harmony, and the rational entertainment of the distinguished men who are here assembled from all parts of the Dominion.

THE INVESTIGATION.

Though the investigation was prosecuted yesterday as usual and some witnesses examined, no facts of importance have been permitted to transpire.

We understand that G. McMicken, Esq., proceeded westward from Toronto yesterday, with the view of making some other arrests under the Habeas Corpus Suspension Act, of parties suspected of, or rather known to be connected with, Fenianism.

The arrests in Toronto on Monday created no little sensation, but, we believe, were generally approved by the public.

It is not improbable that the parties arrested in Toronto will be removed from that city for safe-keeping, as according to the provisions of the Habeas Corpus Suspension Act they may be detained in custody until the end of the next Session of Parliament, should circumstances call for such a proceeding. The papers seized there on Monday will reach Mr. O'Reilly to-day, but it is not probable that their contents will be made public at present.

DETECTIVE O'NEILL FOILED BY AN OLD IRISHWOMAN.

Mrs. H——, a widow woman residing lately on the corner of —— and —— streets in this city, had a passage-at-arms with Detective O'Neill. It appears that on Saturday night week before last, between twelve and one o'clock, information was conveyed to the police that a well known character, who happened to be under the surveillance of the police, had made several attempts on the night in question to enter the house of widow H—— unobserved. He at last accomplished his object (as he thought) but on his opening the door of the widow's mansion several persons were seen inside. Detective O'Neill, who is lynx-eyed, was around, and spotted the company in the widow's house. He subsequently paid a visit to Mrs. H—— for the purpose of obtaining information, when the following colloquy took place:

Detective O'Neill, loquitor—Good day, mother H——.

Old Woman—Good day boys. (The old woman is almost blind).

Detective O'Neill—What is the news? What about the Fenians?

Old Woman—Boys; are they coming?

Sergeant Davis—This is O'Neill Mrs. H——.

Old Woman—No; it is not. Don't you think I know O'Neill, the d—n scoundrel.

Detective O'Neill—Are you a Fenian, old woman?

Old Woman—Yes, and a d—d good one, too. You (addressing the Detective) have a Frenchman who murdered the Minister's sister, and have got him to swear against poor Whelan that it was he that murdered Mr. McGee. You could not get an Irishman to do it. You are feeding him with all the good stuff in the city, to swear against the decent man!

The detectives thought it time to make themselves scarce, but old Mrs. H—— would have a parting shot, and shouted at the top of her voice as O'Neill made for the door, she would get plenty to eat when the boys came over, "they would drive in the cattle before them, poor laddies!"

FROM NOVA SCOTIA.

[The following letter, received some time ago from a friend in Nova Scotia, has been held over till now for want of space.—Ed.]

To the Editor of THE TIMES:

We have just been startled from our propriety by the astounding telegram announcing the fact that the brilliant orator, the astute statesman, the well read lecturer, the admired scholar, Thomas D'Arcy McGee, had fallen by the hand of a base assassin. What is our country coming to? Dare not men express their ideas freely upon the great questions of the day? Must they be pusillanimous enough to stop in the heat of debate to weigh their words, least they may perchance give personal offence to some individual opponent who in revenge thereof uses the pistol of the base, cowardly assassin? If so, then let might be right, and let our beloved free institutions cease forever, and our liberties be merged in the ipse dixit of one, and perchance that one a tyrant.

What effect the sudden death of this brilliant statesman may have upon the noble scheme of Confederation I am not prepared to say. Probably none. But strange to say among those who style themselves anti-Confederates, the news, startling as it was, was received either with stolid indifference, or apparent exultation.

Now, when I contemplated writing from this humble quarter of our glorious Dominion, a Dominion that is yet destined to leave the marks of its footprints on the shores of time malgre the opinions of time-serving mendacious politicians, I had not heard of the above startling occurrence, and had taken up my pen merely for the purpose of enlightening you as to the true merits of Confederation from our stand point, as viewed by the well-thinking, the Conservative (and I use the word advisedly in its full and true sense) portion of the community. And first let me premise that the ex-parte statements of a venal press, of a press languishing in what they so pathetically describe, or were wont to do, as the "cold shades of the Opposition," should by no means be relied upon. Hear them, "Nova Scotia is unanimous for repeal." "If repeal is not granted our loyalty is sapped, and we will have to throw ourselves into the arms of a foreign power, to maintain that independence denied us by the mother country." Words tantamount to these have been freely indulged in by those styling themselves "the Antis," and the press at their command. Could the worst Fenian use stronger language? But look at the case as it stands. Look at the cause of the result of our last elections.

In 1867 the House of Parliament, elected by the constituency of our little Province in the year 1863, ceased under the quadrennial Act.

In the previous House elected before those who had gone out of power in the year above named, an Act was passed by the radicals altering very materially the Franchise Act. It provided certain qualifications for voters, that were not to take effect until after the election not of 1863 but the next general election. This Act was an amendment of the celebrated Act introduced by the Hon. Joseph Howe for the shilling rate paying suffrage, an Act fraught with injustice and corruption. It provided a stand point of which I shall not enter into the particulars, wherein the qualification of voters was particularly defined. But mark you this was not to take effect until the year 1867, the year when the House of Assembly was dissolved, or ceased to exist by its own acts. This was canvass No. 1 for the Radicals. Crowds rushed around the various polling booths through the Province with the cry, "We are disfranchised." "Who would vote for the policy of a Government that would be guilty of such a retrograde step as the disfranchisement of hundreds of voters at one fell sweep?" They did not stop to consider the authors of the act. When the Radicals held the reins of power from 1859 to 1863, it was by a lean majority of four. An Educational Act was loudly clamored for, but with such a small majority at their backs, the Solons of the day feared to risk their tenure of office by submitting such a measure.

When the Conservatives obtained power in 1863, they boldly brought down the School Bill now existing. It passed the House by an overwhelming majority, its promoters consisting of men of every Christian creed and shade of politics. But yet at the late election this was canvass No. 2, and a capital canvass it was. "What," cries the grey-headed sinner, "Am I who have already brought up a large family and given them all the education the common schools of the day afforded; am I to be taxed in my declining years for the education of paupers?" "What!" cries the crusty old bachelor, "am I to be taxed to educate other men's brats?" "Down with such a Government."

The late Government passed an Act for the construction of a railway from Windsor to Annapolis. This was canvass No. 3. "Look here," says the stump orators of the shore counties east and west, "of what benefit is this Annapolis railway to us?" "My friends, pause before you record your votes for a party who expend the public funds so lavishly."

In the meantime the expiration of the Reciprocity Treaty threw that arch-agitator Joe Howe once more upon his own resources. "Othello's occupation's gone." Like the old man of the mountain in Sinbad the Sailor, he has hung an incubus upon the shoulders of Nova Scotia since the year 1838. All the time the measure against which he has entered upon his crusade was being matured, he, with many others, stood aloof. Nay, further than that. He was one of those who invited "the tight little Island" to come in out of the cold and join us. He met the late lamented D'Arcy McGee at the memorable meeting in Temperance Hall, in Halifax, and was one of his most eulogistic admirers of the day. He said to the Hon. Mr. ———, of New Brunswick, when he remarked, "Why, Howe, why do you oppose this measure; I always thought you advocated Confederation." "Yes, my boy, so I do. But do you think that I am going to allow the glory of the pet scheme of my life to be wrested from me by my most bitter political enemy, and he to obtain the fame? Nay. Oust the present Government of Nova Scotia and then I will show you Confederation." So acted all the party who claimed him as their champion and leader. All the time this important measure was in its incipient stages, all the time it was being matured, while the delegates were on their important mission to England, on their return while it was in debate, the country was silent. But when the first day of July, 1867, arrived and the proclamation of Her Majesty was publicly enunciated then came canvass No. 4. And this, too, was a capital canvass. Our fisheries had failed. Our farmers had suffered from the effects of an almost unprecedented wet season. The prospects of gaunt famine stared our operatives in the face.

Starvation, Oh! Starvation,
I hate the dreadful sound.

Men looked on each other with dismay. Mercantile confidence was sapped. Banks were very chary about discounting even the best of paper. Times became harder and yet harder. The neighboring Republic was still staggering from the effects of that cruel war. Everything was at a stand. Our own little Province was laboring beneath the pressure of a heavy debt, contracted for internal improvements. The tariff had to be raised to meet the interest thereon. But Confederation was a capital canvass. All our difficulties, all our shortcomings, all our distresses, whether agrarian, mercantile or piscatory, were thrown upon the shoulders of the Confederation Bill. "I am short of the necessary provision for the support of my family," pleads the poor fisherman. "How can you expect to be otherwise," replies the stump hero, "while this cursed Confederation Act disgraces our statute book." "We are sold." "Homesteads, parents, children, all, all sold to those cursed Canadians thousands of miles away." "Execrate, hand down their names to posterity; tell your children to pronounce execrations on those who bartered away your freedom!" The true state of the case is kept in the background. The simple, unsophisticated fisherman is not informed that the Dominion Government pays all the interest on our railway debt, pays our Judges, keeps up our lighthouses, &c., and after all it is merely throwing our funds into a common stock, for the ultimate benefit of the whole. No! No! That would not suit their designs. So the poor fishermen rushed to the polls last September, gnashed their teeth, and recorded their votes in favor of whom? Why their worst enemies.

So much for the cause of the much boasted majority of the anti-Confederates. Now for the effect. Our pretty little town of Liverpool was at one time the principal port in the Province. We could boast of our tonnage, our enterprise, and our foreign trade. How is it now? Our trade languishing, our fisheries unproductive, our facilities for interchange of communication and commodities cramped. No steamer touches at our port; we feel deeply the want of speedy communication with the flourishing city of St. John, N. B., where we could always obtain goods cheaper than in Halifax. Our old and respectable inhabitants, those true Conservatives, who always had the real interests of their country at heart, lying prostrate at the feet of a clique of Radicals who would, to forward their own selfish ends, to-morrow, hold up both hands for annexation, and we forced to trade with Halifax, whose every barrel of flour costs us a dollar more than we could purchase the same article in St. John, N.B. And what did our Local House of Assembly do at their recent session? Verily, "They have done those things which they ought not to have done, and left undone those things which they ought to have done." They commenced with the howl of an empty treasury but could find the means to send green delegates across the water to advocate repeal. They could find cash to send the big beggarmanto "prepare the way and make their paths straight."

They could in their parsimony curtail our necessary allowance for the road and bridge service, but they could in their munificence, spend week after week, debating a subject upon which their minds were already made up.

It was openly asserted on the floor of the House of Commons, by the hon. member for Digby, N.S., "That Dr. Tupper could not traverse his own Province with personal safety." But I assure you, Mr. Editor, that if Sir Charles Tupper saw fit to give a series of lectures through this Province, defending his policy and position, not only would his person be free from injury, but he would be listened to by admiring thousands.

I am, yours, &c., LOYALIST.

Liverpool, Nova Scotia, 7th April, 1868.

THE LATE HON. THOMAS D'ARCY McGEE.

The following, which appeared in a London weekly newspaper, of the 11th ult., is from the pen of Doctor Charles Mackay, who was intimately acquainted with the deceased statesman, and re-echoes the feeling of horror with which the fearful announcement of Mr. McGee's assassination was everywhere received:—

"The Atlantic cable flashes to Europe the painful news of the assassination, in the streets of Ottawa, of one of the most eminent and most justly-esteemed Irishmen of his time—Mr. Thomas D'Arcy McGee, late Minister of Agriculture in the Canadian Cabinet. No details are given, beyond the bare fact, and the escape of the assassin. Mr. McGee was so genial and kind hearted a man, so much the idol of his friends, and the delight of every society into which he entered, that it is difficult and all but impossible to believe that any private vengeance could have prompted the cowardly hand of his murderer. We are thus forced to the conclusion that political hatred was the incentive to the crime. In his early youth Mr. McGee, with all the ardor of an Irishman and a poet, indulged in romantic dreams of Irish republican liberty and independence, and became one of that able but impracticable band of young Irishmen who, after the influence of Daniel O'Connell had faded into nothingness, established what was at the time called the party of the "Nation." This party, strong in genius, but weak in experience and statesmanship, merged more or less completely into that of Mr. Smith O'Brien, which took to arms against the power of Great Britain, and came ignominiously to a collapse in the widow's cabbage garden in Ballingary, or some such place. Among others who escaped from British justice on that occasion was Mr. McGee. He found his way to the United States—an ardent, sincere, and conscientious republican. A few years, however, wrought a change in his convictions.* He had seen but the bright side of republican liberty before he went to Boston and subsequently to New York. A more extensive acquaintance with and experience of the workings of ultra-Democracy—its gross corruptions, its systematic decrial and denial of eminent virtue and unselfish patriotism, the mean ends of party leaders, and the dirty but only possible avenues to power and position in a Republic based upon universal suffrage, together with the danger every fourth year that the whole political edifice would be pulled about the ears of the people by the struggle for the Presidency, convinced him that, however perfect a republican form of Government might be in theory, it was in practice a system very greatly inferior to that of the limited and constitutional monarchy of Great Britain. Finding no real liberty, such as he understood it, in the United States, he resolved to seek it in Canada. The search was not made in vain. Free to govern themselves by the voice of the majority, owing only a nominal allegiance to the British Crown, and spared by the allegiance from the perpetually recurring and painful nuisance of electing a Chief Magistrate by the votes of the whole people, Mr. McGee discovered that the inhabitants of the British North American Provinces derived nothing but advantage from their connection with the mother country, and that they enjoyed a far greater amount of broadly-based and well-secured liberty than the people of the United States. Thenceforward Mr. McGee became a devoted loyalist, and a staunch friend of the British connection. He speedily made his way into the Canadian Legislature as representative for the city of Montreal; and in due course became one of the most prominent statesmen in Canada, and a member of the Administration. His influence over his countrymen was great, and was uniformly directed against Fenianism and every other form of disaffection to the British Crown. He was an able as well as a fluent speaker—in fact, he may be described as a true orator. He could move his audiences to tears or laughter as his fancy suited him; and, better still, he could convince alike the uninformed and the prejudiced, and alter the opinions of his opponents. His failings, like those of his countrymen, of whom another eminent Irishman so beautifully sang, "leaned to virtue's side;" and he was so wise as well as so witty in his cups that his society was sought somewhat too keenly by convivialists, who had all his capacity for enjoyment, but little of his capacity for creating it. Thus, like many other men of genius, he was led into company and into habits that were prejudicial to his health, and in some degree unfavourable to his reputation among more staid and methodical people.* He was not only a statesman of a class far above the Colonial and American average, but he was a poet of no small power, an excellent prose writer, and a sound thinker; a representative Irishman of the very best class. The polish of Thomas Moore, the wit of Sheridan, the eloquence of Burke, the patriotism of Grattan, the persuasiveness of O'Connell, were all more or less represented in his gifts and character. Above all, he had the courage to admit that he had been greatly wrong when he became a rebel, and the political virtue to adhere to the right course with unflinching zeal and earnestness as soon as he had discovered it. His loss is a severe one to the Canadian Dominion; and if the crime which has deprived the country of his services be attributable, as seems most probable, to all who know his habits, to the hand of some fanatical and bloodthirsty Fenian from the American side of the Canadian frontier, Fenianism will have committed the worst crime yet laid to its charge. Whatever the cause of the deplorable event may be, the Canadian Dominion has lost a very eminent citizen, and the British crown a very faithful and distinguished subject, in Thomas D'Arcy McGee.

* Dr. Mackay is probably not aware that for more than six months before his death Mr. McGee had completely overcome the frailty alluded to, and established himself in the estimation of the most "staid and methodical" as a true hero, by conquering his own weakness; and that, too, without abating a jot of his wisdom or a tittle of his wit, or detracting in the slightest degree from "his capacity for creating" enjoyment and true convivial feeling. This by many is esteemed the greatest triumph of his life.—Ed. Times.

LOCAL NEWS.

McGee Testimonial Fund.—An adjourned meeting of the Committee will be held at 11 o'clock this morning at the City Hall.

Auction Sale this Evening.—Remember the great auction sale of dry goods this evening at 7 o'clock, at Prud'homme's store, Sussex street. Great bargains may be had.

New Dominion Base Ball Club.—The regular monthly meeting of the N. D. Base Ball Club will take place this evening at eight o'clock. A full attendance is requested.

The Canal Lock at Hogsback.—The break is not as bad as was expected, and instead of three or four weeks it will probably not take more than three or four days to repair the damage. This will be gratifying to those interested.

Supposed to be Stolen.—A young girl having the appearance of a servant, was about yesterday offering some silver spoons for sale, marked W. M. G. Any person having lost such articles can learn the particulars from Sergeant Davis, at the police station.

A County Case.—An aggravated breach of the peace came before Mr. Langrell yesterday at the Court House. The circumstances were that on Sunday evening last, a private soldier named Evans, was in company with John Simmons, at Beauchamp's tavern, at the head of the Deep Cut, where they drank the landlord's liquor, smashed up the bar and the door, and took the money from the till, and made general havoc. Simmons, who has made himself notorious for all sorts of misdeeds, was proved to have been the principal in the transaction, but unfortunately cannot be found. One of the officers of the Rifle Brigade said that the soldier's character, up to the time complained of, was good. He was committed to jail for three weeks, in default of a fine of ten dollars and costs.

Building Society.—The annual meeting of the Ottawa Union Building Society will be held at the usual place to-morrow, (Thursday) evening at seven o'clock, for the transaction of important business, when the members and the public are respectfully invited to attend.

Major's Hill.—The Rifle Brigade Band will play the following programme on the Major's Hill to-day, from 3:30 to 5:30 p.m.:

1	March	The Blue Bells of Scotland	N. N.
2	Overture	Cheval de Bronze	Auber
3	Waltz	Violante	D'Albert
4	Operatic Selection	Le pre aux Clercs	Herold
5	Quadrille	Bon Jour	Zikoff
6	Comic Fantasia	The Derby Day	Basquit
7	Galop	Flick and Flock	Hertel

The Rifle Brigade Marches.
National Anthem.

Lacrosse—Ottawa vs. Montreal.—We understand that the preliminaries of the return match for the one played here last Queen's Birthday have been arranged, and twelve of ours are to proceed to Montreal for that purpose this year. Whether they expect to win the day, we cannot tell, but we are satisfied they will fight hard for the victory. With such men as Montreal can array against them, however, defeat would be no disgrace. There is some talk of getting up a steamboat excursion for the occasion, when several companies of volunteers might accompany the Lacrosse men to celebrate the day in Montreal, and leave for home the same evening. As we are advised that this is the desire of many of the volunteers as well as of other citizens, we recommend that a committee be formed without delay, and proper arrangements made in good time.

Police Court.—William Aspinall, for being drunk and disorderly, was fined $2 and costs. —The adjourned case of John Stanton, the private soldier charged with larceny, was again called; and the case sent over to the Recorder's Court.—Archibald Brown was charged by Mr. Lapierre with taking every occasion of his passing, and whenever or wherever he met him, of using insulting language, with the evident view of provoking a breach of the peace. After complainant had given his testimony to the above effect, defendant was asked if he wished to put any questions, to which he answered that he did, and then instead of asking questions made a statement of considerable length and incoherence which very much damaged his case, and the magistrate imposed on him a fine of ten dollars and costs, against which Mr. B. protested and said he could not afford it. He then went to the door to leave the Court, and on his way made some demonstrations of an offensive character for which he was called back and desired to take a seat, and after some other business was settled the magistrate reprimanded him and sent him away with a caution as to his future behaviour.

CABLE NEWS

THIS MORNING'S DESPATCHES.

London, May 5.—Several German States threaten to leave the Diet if the address on the party of German unity is debated upon.

In the House of Commons this evening Mr. Gladstone, in some remarks, referred to the Duke of Richmond's assertion in the House of Lords last night, that Her Majesty, the Queen, had entrusted it to the Ministry to dissolve Parliament whenever they pleased. Such a power, said Mr. Gladstone, was unconstitutional, as it left the Ministry at liberty to deal with cases which have not yet arisen. He asked for an explanation of that statement, and contradicted the one made in the House of Commons by the Premier.

Mr. D'Israeli, in reply, said there was no discrepancy between the statements made in the two Houses. He had offered to resign, but the tender was declined by Her Majesty. His advice to the Queen was to dissolve Parliament when the state of public business permits. This was without any reference to the new constituencies, but if the work of the House was soon completed a new House would be elected by them.

Sir Stafford Northcote, made some remarks to the effect that the Ministry had no intention to menace the House.

Mr. D'Israeli, again rising, said the right to dissolve Parliament was only reserved by the Ministry in case the issue upon the Irish Church question was pressed to a division.

After speeches by other members, the debate ended.

London, May 3.—A despatch says that Cravelli, the Austrian ambassador at Rome, died in that city yesterday.

AMERICAN NEWS.

YESTERDAY'S DESPATCHES.

Jeff. Davis.

Richmond, Va., May 4.—Jeff. Davis' bail was renewed yesterday. Chief Justice Chase will be ready to try Davis ten days after the trial of President Johnson.

From Mexico.

New York, May 3.—The special despatch to the Herald from Mazatlan, April 22nd, via San Francisco, May 2nd, states that Governor Rubi had called on merchants for a voluntary loan of thirty thousand dollars to pay troops. Gen. Corona called a meeting of merchants for a loan of a hundred thousand dollars for the immediate payment of the army, which was granted. Two thousand five hundred troops entered the city at noon. Gen. Martinez issued a final proclamation on the 15th, announcing his abandonment of the revolutionary army, and retirement to private life. He is being closely pursued by Gen. Solentin with a cavalry force, with orders to capture, kill or drive the rebellious chieftain out of the State.

From Havana.

New York, May 4.—The Herald's Havana special of the 2nd says a great conflagration occurred at Naporima. The town was reduced to ashes.

Terrific Hurricane in Illinois.

Chicago, May 4.—At Shanghai, Ill., fourteen houses were blown down by a tornado yesterday. Two churches were unroofed, four persons killed, and forty wounded, a number of whom will probably die.

Rumors Regarding D'Israeli's Ministry.

New York, May 5.—The Herald's London special says that during a discussion in the Cabinet, Lord Stanley, Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, the Right Hon. the Earl of Malmesbury, Keeper of the Great Seal, and the Right Hon. Gathorne Hardy, Secretary of the Home Department, openly seceded, and refused to serve longer under Mr. D'Israeli's lead. Subsequently it was rumored the Premier had induced Lord Stanley, Earl Malmesbury, and Mr. Hardy, to withdraw their secession, resolve and agree to hold office in his Ministry.

Later.—The dissenting members of the Ministry still disagree as to the propriety of a further retention of office, but agree to remain in the Cabinet, particularly as the Queen would not accept the resignation. Mr. D'Israeli is consequently still Premier. Parliament will be dissolved in autumn, and a general election will be held perhaps when the new Reform Bill comes into operation.

Will the President be Convicted?

New York, May 5.—The Herald's special says a new and most important phase has occurred in the impeachment matter, which apparently places the acquittal of the President beyond a doubt. Senator Fessenden, it is reported, has prepared a legal opinion, expressing the belief that there are no just grounds shown in evidence for the conviction. Several other Republicans are firm against the conviction, and it is conceded among Radicals that conviction is a failure, and the case gone. There is in consequence serious demoralisation among Republicans, and it was reported that a new party, headed by Chase, for the next Presidency against Grant, was immediately to be formed. The Tribune and Sun's specials consider conviction of the President certain.

THE CANADIAN PARLIAMENT.

1st PARLIAMENT. 1st SESSION.

THE SENATE.

Tuesday, May 5, 1868.

The SPEAKER took the chair at three o'clock.

After routine,

Hon. Mr. McCULLY said he had received an assurance from the Government that they intended to bring in a Bill on the subject of interest; therefore he would allow his motion in reference to uniformity of interest to drop for the present.

Hon. Mr. REESOR moved,

That an humble address be presented to His Excellency the Governor-General, praying that His Excellency will be pleased to cause to be laid before this House copies of agreements, contracts or orders in Council relating to mail or coasting service on the inland waters of the Dominion, or on the coasts of Quebec, New Brunswick or Nova Scotia, entered into or made since the first of July last.

Hon. Mr. REESOR said he would state in connection with this motion, that if any objection could be raised on account of the amount of work which would be necessary to get those returns, he would be satisfied to have the returns of the amounts paid for each contract, and the service each was required to perform. He did so not with a view of finding any fault with what has been done, but because parties who were interested in the matter have represented that certain mail routes received pretty large pay for mail service that was unnecessary, and that other lines of steamers had done the service for a less sum. One gentleman had declared that there should not have been any large sum for this service upon Lake Superior. How much truth there might be in the truth of these reports, he did not know, but he was inclined to think that the Government had made the best terms which they could under the circumstances. He thought by having the papers brought down, the public would have a better knowledge of the matter, and, perhaps, it might enable the Government to make better terms next year.

Hon. Mr. CAMPBELL said the production of those papers would not involve any considerable labor as the contracts were very few.

The motion was then carried.

Hon. Mr. SANBORN said he would have to be under the necessity of pressing the question which he had the honor to ask the Government some three weeks since, with reference to the law relating to patents for inventions.

Hon. Mr. CHAPAIS submitted an Act relating to patents for inventions, which was read a first time, and the second reading fixed for this day week.

Hon. Mr. SANBORN said this question ought not to be put off so long as this day week, as that would bring it near the time Parliament would be prorogued. It had been announced by some of the members of the Government in another place that Parliament would be prorogued about the fifteenth or twentieth of this month, therefore he thought a Bill of such importance should not be delayed to so late a period in the Session. The Bill was now printed in English, and there would be no difficulty in having it translated and before them in a few days. If it did not come up until this day week, it would be almost impossible to get a consideration for it, and he feared it would be lost. Then again a great many of the members would be leaving before that time, therefore he hoped his hon. friend would fix an earlier day for the consideration of the Bill.

Hon. Mr. CHAPAIS said he would move the second reading for Friday, but if the Bill was not then ready, he would move to postpone the second reading until Tuesday. He would try to have it ready so that the members could have the Bill before them for at least one day before it was read. The second reading was then ordered for Friday.

Hon. Mr. ALLAN presented the second report from the Joint Library Committee, which report was ordered on the motion of Hon. Mr. Allan, seconded by Hon. Letellier de St. Just, to be taken into consideration to-morrow.

ORDERS OF THE DAY.

The second reading of the Bill from the House of Commons, the Dominion Bank Notes Substitution Bill, was postponed until to-morrow.

INLAND REVENUE DEPARTMENT BILL.

Hon. Mr. CAMPBELL said in reference to this order of the day, that he desired to incorporate in the Bill the management of a branch of the public service which properly falls within this Department. They had in Canada a Culling Timber Department which involves some expenditure; this ought to be attached to one of the public departments, and as it would properly come within the category of internal revenue, it should be managed by that Department. He would therefore move that the order of the day be discharged, to enable him to insert a clause in the Bill with that object, and the Bill be referred to a Committee of the whole House to-morrow.

The motion was then carried.

The SPEAKER then announced the return from the Commons, of "Clifton Suspension Bridge Bill," that the amendments of the Senate to said Bill had been agreed to.

Also, the Bill entitled, "Publication of Parliamentary Papers Bill," which was agreed to, with amendment in the French version only.

The 14th report of Joint Committee on printing was then taken into consideration, which upon motion of the Hon. Mr. BURNHAM, seconded by the Hon. Mr. SKEAD, was adopted.

Hon. Mr. RYAN gave notice for Thursday next of an address to the Governor-General, on the subject of immigration for the year 1868.

The House then adjourned until 3 o'clock p.m., to-morrow.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.

Tuesday, May 5, 1868.

The SPEAKER took the chair at three o'clock.

Sir JOHN A. MACDONALD moved the House into Committee on the Act respecting Penitentiaries,

Mr. KIRKPATRICK in the chair.

The House rose and reported the Bill as amended, which was read a second and third time and passed.

WANT OF CONFIDENCE.

On the motion that they again go into Committee of Supply,

Hon. Mr. HOLTON said, in relation to the vote of last night, that he protested against such motions being taken as votes of want of confidence, and concluded by moving the following resolution in amendment:

That all the words after "that" in the original motion be omitted, and the following inserted instead thereof: "That the recent constitutional changes have rendered it necessary to complete the organization of all branches in the public service throughout the Dominion; that in the organization, the strictest economy should be observed; that all unnecessary executive departments and all superfluous offices should be abolished; that all excessive salaries should be diminished; that all unnecessary or inefficient officers be removed; that the salaries of all officers of the Dominion Government of similar grades, in the various Provinces, should be equalized; and that payment of salaried officers for special service should be forbidden by law."

Mr. McKENZIE having seconded the amendment,

Sir JOHN A. MACDONALD said the House had given the subjects of this resolution due attention, and they had been fully discussed, and he could not accept it in any other way than as a vote of want of confidence, introduced by a side wind.

Hon. Mr. JOHNSON amid cries of "question, question," and the stamping of feet and slaming of desks, could not make himself heard.

Mr. McKENZIE said the motion was to give those on the Government side of the House, who objected to the policy of the Government, and at the same time did not wish to vote want of confidence. If the motion was taken as a vote of want of confidence, he would take it as, trifling with the business of the House in favor of economy.

Sir G. E. CARTIER (in French) resisted the motion, stating that it did not meet the general interests of the country.

Mr. DUFRESNE said that he hoped that they had had enough of motions of this kind, and he would vote against it.

Hon. Mr. CHAUVEAU said he congratulated the Government on the manly stand they had taken on this motion, and on motions of this kind. What he considered a nasty thing was spasmodic cries of economy, not real attempts, as taunted by the hon. member for Lambton.

Dr. PARKER charged the Government with extravagance. He complained that the Government with all their loyalty had not taken the vote on the Governor-General's salary, as a vote of want of confidence, while they were quick to do so when the patronage of the Government was endangered.

Hon. Mr. FISHER said there was a feeling in New Brunswick that they were not treated precisely as Canadians, instancing the salaries of judges, and there was one point which he found it difficult to vote against, and would vote for the amendment.

Mr. BOLTON pursued the same argument, but would vote against the amendment in the hope that the Government would equalize the salaries of judges, and pursue the same course towards all parts of the Dominion.

The vote on Mr. HOLTON'S amendment being taken, stood as follows:

Yeas.—Bodwell, Bourassa, Bowman, Burpee, Cameron (Huron), Connell, Coupal, Dorion, Ferris, Fisher, Geoffrion, Godin, Holton, Kempt, Kierzkowski, Macdonald (Glengarry), Macfarlane, McKenzie, McConkey, McMonies, Mills, Morrison (Victoria, O.), Oliver, Paquet, Parker, Redford, Rymal, Scatcherd, Senecal, Snider, Stirton, Thompson (Haldimand), Wallace, Wells, Whitehead, Young.—Total 36.

Nays.—Ault, Bechard, Bellerose, Benoit, Bertrand, Blanchet, Bolton, Bowell, Bown, Brown, Burton, Caldwell, Cameron (Peel), Campbell, Carling, Caron, Cartier, Cartwright, Casault, Cayley, Chamberlin, Chauveau, Cheval, Cimon, Colby, Costigan, Crawford (Brockville), Crawford (Leeds), Dessaulniers, Dobbie, Drew, Dufresne, Dunkin, Fergusson, Fortin, Galt, Gaucher, Gaudet, Gendron, Grant, Gray, Graver, Hagar, Holmes, Howland, Huot, Hurdon, Irvine, Jackson, Johnson, Jones (Leeds and Grenville), Keeler, Kirkpatrick, Langevin, Langlois, Lawson, Macdonald Sir J. A., Macdonald (Middlesex), Magill, Masson (Soulanges), Masson (Terrebonne), McCarthy, McDougall, McMillan, Merritt, Morris, Morrison (Niagara), Munroe, Perry, Pinsonneault, Pope, Pouliot, Pozer, Renaud, Robitaille, Rose, Ross (Champlain), Ross (Dundas), Ross (Prince Edward), Ryan (King's, N.B.), Ryan (Montreal W.), Simard, Simpson, Sproat, Stephenson, Tilley, Tremblay, Walsh, Webb, White, Wilson, Wood, Workman, Wright.—Total 94.

Majority for Government 58.

The House then went into Committee of Supply,

Hon. Col. GRAY in the chair.

On the item of $22,500 for the Carillon and Grenville Canal,

Hon. Mr. MACDOUGALL, in reply to Mr. McKENZIE, defended the appropriation

Mr. McKENZIE stated that there was no sanction of Parliament for the outlay, and he did not see how the Minister of Public Works could deem it consistent with his honor to endeavor to smuggle it through in the way proposed.

Hon. Mr. JOHNSON thought the Government should either have a vote, or ask the House for indemnity for expenditures made without previous sanction as soon as practicable.

Hon. Mr. MACDOUGALL pointed out that there was an authority for Government's dealing with such public works, in cases of emergency, without Legislative sanction, and defended the mode in which the administration dealt with public tenders, and the careful supervision which they exercised over the works under their control. The work in question was most necessary, and had been covered by the general vote of credit of the early part of the Session.

Mr. CURRIER thought that if there ever was a case that justified the prompt self reliant action of the Government, it was the one in question. The water had been so low as to necessitate the frequent lightening of barges to enable the traffic to proceed. There had been talk of closing the canal on Sundays, but although he was as much opposed as anybody to Sunday traffic, he could not help pointing out that the effect of such a regulation would be to occasion so great an accumulation of barges waiting at the different locks, as to interfere most prejudicially with the week's trade.

Mr. F. JONES found in the case in question another instance of the incompetency of the Public Works Department.

Mr. A. WRIGHT thought that too much fuss was being made about a very trifling matter.

Mr. D. A. MACDONALD had every confidence in the judgment of the engineer who had reported on the works executed, and was satisfied that, if in accordance with his recommendation, over payments had not been allowed.

Hon. Mr. DORION thought the action of the Government wholly irregular, and the defence of the Minister the lamest to which he had ever listened.

Hon. Mr. HOWLAND having replied, after some remarks from Hon. Mr. HOLTON in opposition, the item was passed, and the House having resumed, the Committee reported progress, when it being six o'clock, the Speaker left the chair.

After Recess.

The House having again gone into Committee of Supply, the following items were passed without much discussion, viz.: Rideau canal, $10,000; Newcastle District and river Trent, $3,000; Lake Huron harbors, $8,000; Digby pier, $3,000; slides and booms, $10,000; Parliament and Departmental Buildings, $55,000; Rideau Hall, including purchase of property and furniture, $122,000 (Hon. Mr. MACDOUGALL explaining that this amount covered also the purchase money of eleven acres between Government House and the river); Montreal Post Office and Quebec Custom House, $3,000; Light Houses, $21,500; roads and bridges, $15,500; arbitrations and awards, $65,000; rents and repairs of Public Buildings, $58,000; Halifax Quarantine Station, $10,000; surveys and inspections, $7,000; miscellaneous public works, $10,000; arrears of 1867, $6,720; lighthouses and coast service, $192,501; and ocean and river steam service, $136,600.

On the item of $5,000 for indemnity to fishermen who have acted under faith in existing laws,

Hon. Mr. ROSE said that this item would be struck out in conformity with the decision of the Government to discontinue the bounty system.

Mr. JONES (Halifax) considered that this would be a direct breach of faith, as the people of the Lower Provinces had been invited to return Union candidates, on the promise of the extension of the system, and referred to a despatch received by a Nova Scotia official from the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, giving assurance to that effect.

Mr. BLAKE reminded the hon. member that he had not been elected as a Union candidate, and could not therefore fairly maintain the complaint set forward. (Laughter.)

Mr. McKENZIE having expressed some curiosity regarding the despatch alluded to,

Sir J. A. MACDONALD stated that he had been informed that it ran thus: "I will press upon the Government the extension to Nova Scotia of the Canadian bounty system."

The item was then struck out, and the balance of the Fisheries appropriation of $43,263 agreed to, as also were those of $144,648 for indemnities under Seignorial Acts, $8,400 for Indians, and $70,500 for culling timber.

Upon the appropriation of $12,142 for railway and steamboat inspection.

Mr. JONES remarked that he was unable to understand the beneficial character of the services performed by such inspectors. When an accident occurred an inspector went along and made a report upon it, but he never heard of any calamity having been prevented by the action of these gentlemen. (Loud laughter.)

The item was then passed, as also was those of $50,368 for miscellaneous services, $520,016 for collection of Customs, (with $41,622 for arrears of 1867).

Hon. Mr. TILLEY, in reply to the Hon. Mr. Holton, explaining that the comparatively greater cost of collection in the Lower Provinces, where the officers were paid lesser salaries, arose from the large number of ports which it was then necessary to guard, some of them yielding very small returns. In Ontario and Quebec the great bulk of customs entries was made at one port—Montreal.

PRESENT:

HIS EXCELLENCY THE GOVERNOR GENERAL IN COUNCIL.

HIS Excellency was pleased to lay before the Council a Memorandum from the Honorable the Minister of Inland Revenue, submitting for approval and adoption a draft of certain Regulations respecting the Bonding and Warehousing of goods subject to duties of Excise.

Whereupon His Excellency in Council was pleased to order, and it is hereby ordered, that the Regulations so submitted and hereinafter specified be, and they are hereby approved, under the provisions of the 8th section, of the Act 31 Vic., cap. 8, intituled: "An Act respecting the Inland Revenue."

REGULATIONS.

1. Application for the establishment of a warehouse for excise purposes must be made in writing by the person requiring it, and every such application must fully and minutely describe the premises with their exact locality.

2. On receipt of such an application the collector of Inland Revenue will survey the premises, and if satisfied that they are suitable for the purpose, and that they afford the requisite protection to the revenue, and on their being supplied with suitable locks, he will report the facts to the department, whose authority will be required to use such warehouse as a bonding warehouse for excise purposes.

3. The principal door of ingress and egress of every such warehouse shall be provided with two locks at the expense of the owner of the goods warehoused, one of which shall be selected by the collector or by other competent authority, the key of the last named lock to be kept by the officer, and the key of the former by the owner of the goods; and should there be more doors than one all such other doors and all windows and other means of ingress shall be fastened on the inside in a secure manner to the satisfaction of the surveying officer.

4. When any warehouse has been surveyed and accepted as an excise warehouse it shall be designated by a letter commencing with A, and so on in alphabetical sequence for each succeeding warehouse surveyed within that division.

5. Over the principal entrance to every warehouse approved for excise purposes there shall be placed the following designation:

N. R.

EXCISE

BONDED WAREHOUSE.

With the proper letter, the whole being in legible characters in black, not less than three inches in height, painted on a white ground.

6. Goods subject to duties of excise may be warehoused in any customs warehouse within the limits of the Inland Revenue Division in which they have been manufactured, or to which they may be removed in bond under these regulations; in every such case they must be removed to the warehouse by the customs locker on the warrant of the collector of Inland Revenue, countersigned by the collector of customs for the port.

7. With the exception of malt no goods shall be entered for warehouse unless the duties accruing thereon amount, under one bond, to at least one hundred dollars.

8. Every package entered for warehouse must (in addition to all other marks and numbers) be distinctly numbered, in red paint mixed with oil, with the number of the entry and the date at which it was entered. The date will be sufficiently indicated by the number of the half month and the last two numerals of the year in which the entry was made;—thus, goods entered on the 20th January, 1868, may be dated 14-68; shewing that the entry was made in the fourteenth half month of the current fiscal year.

9. All entries are to be numbered consecutively, and the bonds relating to them will bear corresponding numbers.

10 Collectors of Customs having charge of bonded excise goods will keep a debit and credit account of them; and the warrant of the Collector of Inland Revenue will be the only sufficient discharge for their delivery.

11 If any goods, after having been received into warehouse, and before their actual delivery ex-warehouse, be altered in quantity, quality or strength, except by leakage, unavoidable waste, or accident, they shall be forfeited, and may be seized by any officer of Excise or Customs having a knowledge thereof.

12 In case the quantity of goods bonded in any warehouse shall, at any time or by any means, fall short or be deficient of the actual quantity which ought to be or remain warehoused, after deducting the quantities entered ex-warehouse, the owner thereof shall be subject and liable to the full duties on the balance of goods with which the warehouse stands debited, after taking an account of the ex-warehouse entries; and the goods remaining shall be subject to the duties on the quantity deficient, and shall and may be sold for payment thereof, by order of the department; the surplus, if any, to be payable to the person who warehoused such goods or his assigns.

13 No goods shall be warehoused or ex-warehoused upon any authorized holiday nor before the hour of nine o'clock in the morning or after four o'clock in the afternoon.

14 All entry papers, bonds, notices and other documents herein required shall be made out by the owner of the goods to which they relate or by his duly accredited agent, and all packages shall be marked and numbered as herein required by the owner or his agent.

ENTRY OF GOODS FOR WAREHOUSE.

15 Every entry of goods for warehouse must be preceded by a written notice from the person desiring to warehouse them, which notice must be given to the collector in the prescribed form, at least one day before the goods are removed to the warehouse, and must set forth fully the quantity and description of the goods.

16 Entry of goods for warehouse must in all cases be made on the forms sanctioned by the department, and every such entry shall contain a full and complete specification of the goods so entered, stating:

a The number and description of packages.
b Marks and numbers.
c Contents of each in lbs or gallons, and in the case of spirits the contents are to be stated in gallons of the strength of proof.
d The duty to which the goods would have been liable had they gone into consumption.

Every cask or barrel of spirits, and every package of tobacco shall be full and whole at the time it is warehoused.

17 Every such entry shall be made in duplicate.

18 The collector of Inland Revenue will in every case take bonds with each entry as required by sec. 21, 31st Vic., Cap. 8, and on the prescribed form. These bonds must contain a general description of the goods warehoused, and also a reference to the entry papers by number and date. The bond will bear the same number as the entry, and they will be filed together.

ENTRY OF GOODS EX-WAREHOUSE FOR EXPORTATION.

Nova Scotia	Ha
New Brunswick	St. John.
Quebec	Quebec. Montreal.
Ontario	Prescott. Kingston. Toronto. Hamilton. Clifton. Windsor. Sarnia.

And only to British or Foreign Ports of Entry where there are Collectors of Customs or other officers of the Government having similar functions.

20 Goods can only be entered for exportation ex-warehouse from a warehouse within the limits of the Port at which they are actually laden on the ship or other vehicle in which they are to leave the country.

21 As soon as any person owning goods warehoused under these regulations shall be desirous of exporting any quantity of such goods, he shall deliver to the collector of Inland Revenue, in whose charge such goods are, a notice in writing specifying the full particulars thereof as set forth in section 16 of these regulations, and also the name of the ship or vessel, and the name of the master of such ship or vessel, or the line of railway, as the case may be, by which such goods are intended to be exported.

22 All casks, boxes, bales or other packages of goods entered for exportation shall, before leaving the warehouse, be conspicuously marked, branded or stamped, as the case may be, by the collector of Inland Revenue or other proper officer with the letters EXPN.

23 Entry of goods for exportation ex-warehouse must be made on the forms sanctioned by the department, and must contain an exact specification of the goods for warehouse. (Videsec. 16.) With every such entry an export bond shall be taken in the prescribed form.

24 Export bonds shall be conditional for the due delivery of the goods bonded at the place designated in the entry within a specified time, which time shall not in any case exceed the time usually necessary for the performance of the voyage or journey by the conveyance adopted, and for returning the vouchers by the next mail; and in no case shall the period allowed for the cancellation of the bond exceed one year, unless special authority has been granted by the department.

25 The cancellation of an Export Bond shall only be considered complete on the receipt of a duly authenticated certificate from the collector of customs or other government officer having similar authority at the Port of Entry to which the goods were bonded, certifying that the goods described in the Export Entry have been landed and duly entered for consumption or warehoused at the place specified in the entry.

26 The entry for Exportation ex-warehouse shall in all cases be made in triplicate with the collector of Inland Revenue who shall also take the Export Bond.

27 Two copies of the Entry shall be sent to the collector of Customs at the Port whence the goods are to leave the Dominion, who, on receipt thereof shall grant a warrant for the lading of the goods described in the Entry on the Railway or vessel therein mentioned.

28 So soon as the goods have been duly laden the collector of Customs shall certify the fact on the entry papers, one copy whereof shall be filed at the Custom House and the other shall be returned to the collector of Inland Revenue.

29 Whether goods are entered for export from a customs warehouse, or from a warehouse used exclusively for excise, the collector of the port will in each case be charged with the responsibility of seeing them placed on board the ship, car or other vehicle in which they are to be exported, and he must make such examination of the goods as may be necessary for determining whether they correspond with the description contained in the entry, and especially with reference to spirits whether they are of the strength specified.

ENTRY OF GOODS FOR REMOVAL EX-WAREHOUSE IN BOND.

30 Entries of goods for removal, ex-warehouse are to be made in triplicate, with detailed specifications, as in export entries.

31 Goods can only be entered for removal ex-warehouse to another warehouse within the limits of a warehousing Port of Entry or to a Bonding warehouse previously authorized in another Inland Revenue Division.

32 Bonds, in the form prescribed by the department, must, in every case, be taken for the due delivery of the goods at the place of destination.

33 When the goods entered for removal are bonded in a custom warehouse, the locker having charge of them will only deliver them for removal on receipt of a warrant signed by the Collector of Inland Revenue and countersigned by the Collector of Customs, which warrant must contain an exact transcript or abstract of the specification of the goods in the entry, and the locker is required to identify every package and check it by the warrant.

34 Collectors of Inland Revenue on receiving the copies of the entry as above (sec. 31), will at once notify the Collector of Customs of the anticipated arrival of the goods specified, giving him one copy of the entry; and on the arrival of the goods the Collector of Customs will examine them and ascertain whether they correspond with the entry.

35 As soon as they have arrived and are identified, the Collector of Customs will certify the fact on the entry paper and return it to the Collector of Inland Revenue. The goods are then to be re-bounded by the owner in the division into which they are removed. Thereafter they are to be dealt with in the same manner as if they had been manufactured in that Division.

ENTRY OF GOODS EX-WAREHOUSE FOR CONSUMPTION.

36 Entry of goods ex-warehouse for consumption will be made in duplicate on the prescribed forms and every such entry must contain a full specification of the goods, as in an export or removal entry.

37 On receipt of the duty accruing on the goods so entered, the Collector of Inland Revenue will make out a warrant for the delivery of the goods, which, if the goods are in a Customs warehouse, must be countersigned by the Collector of Customs, and must contain a transcript of the specification in the entry, and the locker in charge of the warehouse must identify every package with the description contained in the warrant before delivering it.

MALT.

38 Malt warehoused under the Act above cited may be removed in Bond from one Inland Revenue Division to another or from one warehouse to another, and may be exported in bond without payment of duty. But every such removal or export shall be under the same restrictions and conditions as to entry and bonds as are in force in respect of other goods liable to duties of excise, except that bags or other packages containing malt are not required to be marked or numbered, and except further that any duly licensed maltster carrying on business, when entering malt manufactured by himself for warehouse, may do so on giving a general bond in a form to be prescribed by the Department to Inland Revenue, for payment of the duty on the malt so bonded; which bond shall be for such a sum as the collector or officer, taking it, computes will be equal to double the amount of duty that will accrue on the largest quantity of malt that will be warehoused under such bond at one time, and if from any unexpected cause the quantity of malt shall at any time be in excess of the quantity so computed further bonds shall be taken for such additional quantity.

THE Senate yesterday, on motion of the Hon. Mr. LETELLIER DE ST. JUST, discussed a proposition for changing the appointment of the Speaker by the GOVERNOR-GENERAL to his election by the Senatorial body, as the Speaker of the other House is elected by the Commons. At first sight the analogy between the two offices might suggest that they should both be filled in the same manner, but when the difference in the constitution of the two branches of the Legislature is taken into the account a reason is found to warrant the difference in the manner of choosing their presiding officers.

It cannot reasonably be argued that the Executive, being admittedly competent to choose the whole body of Senators, is not competent to appoint their Speaker; and since the Union Act has so provided, it is a pity that Senators should become restive under its provisions at this early period of its application. The country does not look to the second branch of the Legislature for "Constitutional" innovations, however trifling, and though it may readily be admitted that they have the right to discuss and suggest any changes that may contribute to the dignity and usefulness of their House, we cannot see that this particular change would do either. When the elective principle was introduced into the old Canadian Legislative Council, with it was introduced the elective Speakership, and when the elective principle was abandoned in the constitution of the Senate, it appeared quite in the ordinary course of events that the elective principle, as applied to the Speakership, should be abandoned also. And at this time, before the end of the first Session of the first Parliament, it cannot surely be said that the existing arrangement has had a fair trial. There has not, as yet, appeared, at least to outsiders, any disadvantage from the nomination of the Speaker by the Crown, and since it is desired that the Senate shall, as nearly as possible, represent the hereditary branch of the Imperial Parliament, it would only be decorous in members to allow the appointment of their presiding officer to emanate from the same source.

THE Citizen of yesterday contained a letter signed "W. H. WALLER," characterising the inquiry now being held by Mr. O'REILLY, Q. C., before the Police Magistrate and Mayor of this city, concerning the murder of the late Mr. McGEE, and the officers acting under their instructions, in terms strongly abusive; with a good deal of highfalutin denunciation of the partypresumed to have brought Mr. WALLER's name before the aforesaid gentlemen, as a "doubtful, if "not disloyal, citizen," and no little braggart nonsense about the writer's patriotic feeling towards Ireland; the letter winding up with some bits of advice to the magistrates and prosecuting counsel, for the impertinence of which we trust the youth and inexperience of the author may be held as an apology, if not an excuse.

What could have possessed the Citizen to have published such an epistle, we are utterly at a loss to conceive, unless it desired to injure the standing of its correspondent. The letter itself breathes not a word of sympathy or encouragement to the officers engaged in the difficult task of bringing the perpetrators of one of the most infamous crimes on record, to justice; not a syllable as to the necessity of ridding the country of every vestige of the Fenian conspiracy; nothing in fact but the praises of its author, and the denunciation of all and sundry engaged in the laudable effort of satisfying the demands of justice. Any one might have thought that the conductor of a public journal would have paused ere giving to the world such a compromising epistle from a correspondent; and especially from one, who but a short time ago, was extravagantly belauded in the same paper for his literary and other attainments, over the production of the very pamphlet which helped to bring his name to the notice of the authorities. The publication of Mr. WALLER's letter was a very "unkind cut" on the part of the Citizen; but when in the same issue appeared the following damning editorial comments, we think that Mr. WALLER might well have said yesterday morning, "Save me from my friends!" The Citizen thus testifies to the "loyalty" of Mr. WALLER's associations:

> "Mr. Waller complains that his name has been brought before the Magistrates conducting the investigation into the particulars attending the murder of the late Mr. McGee, as that of a doubtful, if not a disloyal, citizen who required looking after. He has thought fit to indulge in a strain of abuse, if not of defiance, which, in our opinion, for Mr. Waller's own credit, he should have abstained from, considering all the melancholy circumstances connected with the recent tragedy—the more particularly as it must be known to him that the gentlemen connected with the enquiry are aware that Mr. Waller's name has lately figured upon a Committee of Management with those of James Whelan, the supposed murderer of Mr. McGee, John Doyle and J. Kinsella, the suspected accomplices of the assassin, and with Peter A. Egleson and Michael Starr, now in the gaol of our city, charged with Fenianism!—and, furthermore, when he must be aware that there appeared in the Fenian organ, called the Irish American, extracts from a well known brochure of his introduced to the notice of the readers of the Irish American in laudatory terms, and with the attractive heading, in black letters, "Canada and Ireland: How the latter affects the former!"—clearly showing how Mr. Waller is appreciated by the enemies of this country in the United States, and how greedily his language as a 'loyal' British American is seized hold of to do us injury. The Fenian organ says: 'We give below a few extracts from a pamphlet [illegible] published in Ottawa, the seat of Gov-> a 'loyal' British American, and shows that the aspect of Fenianism in the United States is coercing a class of the quasi-aristocracy in the Colonies into allies of Ireland against the mother country.' The conclusions of the New York Fenian are fairly drawn, when we consider the language which Mr. Waller gave utterance to, and which has been spread broadcast through this country. Mr. Waller, in speaking of the supposed wrongs of Ireland, and that Canada should intercede with the Home Government to right their wrongs, says: 'Suppose the Canadian Government should remonstrate, and the British Government should give them a deaf ear or no satisfaction, something not at all probable, what then? What then? Just this: the sooner we cut loose from England's apron strings the better. If a connection with the mother country is to cost us henceforth—because of her sins—the sacrificing of precious lives and millions of dollars for protective purposes; if we must be driven into a vast Militia expenditure, which will prove an incubus on the Dominion and help to cripple its industry and improvement, and all because England will act the part of an unjust despot, the sooner we proclaim our independence the better for our peace and prosperity." Again, Mr. Waller exclaims in loyal strains: "Shall we, if she (England) remains obdurate, cut our connection and escape annual infliction from our enemies, or shall we rather hang to her skirt tails until bankruptcy and Fenian persistency force us into annexation with the United States? These are the alternatives between which we have to choose"!!! It would be rather strange, in view of these facts, if the authorities should loose sight of Mr. Waller. His letter can only tend to direct public attention more closely to him. We cannot, however, fail to remark the total absence of any expression of regret for the man that has fallen by the hand of the assassin, or the faintest expression of a desire to bring his murderers to justice."

With respect to Mr. WALLER, the Citizen has so far "settled his case," that the authorities will doubtless be compelled to take an interest in his movements for some time to come; but it is not our purpose to discuss that point in so far as he is individually concerned. There is a broad principle involved in the question, to which we desire to direct public attention outside of any mere personal considerations, and it is this: whether is it wise, or even fair, to the people of this country, that pro-Fenian literature, written and printed either in or out of Canada, should be permitted unrestricted circulation? We answer in the negative, and give in proof the very pamphlet of which Mr. WALLER prides himself in being the author. By whom was it utilised? By the loyal Irish residents of Canada? No! By the people of Ireland? No! But by the Fenians of the United States! The Irish American reprinted nearly the whole pamphlet, to prove what is affirmed in the extract quoted by the Citizen; but the Citizen stopped just where the pith of the logically drawn conclusion of the Irish American came in. Here is the concluding sentence of the Irish American's introductory, (omitted by the Citizen):

> "In view of this result how silly are the sophisms of 'Mr. D. Holland,' and those who, like him, argue that England cannot be reached, or Ireland benefitted, THROUGH CANADA."

In other words, the editor of the Irish American puts in Mr. WALLER's pamphlet as evidence that the Fenian movement for the "liberation" of Ireland is to be served by Fenian demonstrations against this country, while the pamphlet in question urges these very Fenian demonstrations as a reason why Canada should cut herself adrift from England's "skirt tails!" Could the argument have been better handled in pursuance of a common end? We refer to this only as illustrating the baneful effects of tolerating such kind of literature in Canada, which, though coming from the pen of one who may be neither a Fenian nor Fenian sympathiser, is yet the very food of Fenianism in the States, and calculated, more than anything which can be said or written on the other side of the lines, to inspire the Yankee Fenians with the mischievous notion that they can benefit Ireland by injuring Canada.

There is one point in Mr. WALLER's letter, published in the Citizen, which deserves more pointed explanation than our neighbor has given it. Mr. WALLER says:

> "I know not who my defamer may be, nor is it likely, I presume, I shall find out, but of this much, however, I am satisfied, that he is some contemptible scruff, without a character, and consequently ignorant of the value of such a delicate thing. Some cowardly fellow who skulks behind the secret service shield, and from his hiding place, assassin-like, aims a blow at the man whom he dares not boldly or openly confront."

We have made enquiries and can assure Mr. WALLER that he is no such "monument "of injured innocence." There was no "cringing sneak" to inform upon him as he imagines. It was the ball-card found on the person of WHALEN that introduced his name to Mr. O'REILLY. Of the seven persons immediately associated with him on that card, one has since left town; two are out on bail, and four are in custody. What more natural then than that Mr. O'REILLY, seeing also by the Irish American how he was regarded as a valuable ally, should have enquired—who was Mr. WALLER? or expressed a desire to see and have a chat with him?

Mr. WALLER must have heard that his name was before the authorities, in confidence, or through breach of confidence. In either case, if he felt aggrieved, it was his duty to have gone quietly to Mr. O'REILLY, and sought for an explanation, which we are quite sure would have readily been given. But instead of that he has rushed into print in a most ridiculous style of prurient patriotism, in a style calculated, if it had any weight at all, rather to frustrate, than to serve, the ends of justice; and has brought forth from his friend the Citizen, a dissertation on his associations by no means confirmatory of his own vaunted "loyalty." In so far as the letter itself is concerned, we regard it as superlatively silly; but in its effects at a distance, it will be even more mischievous than the pamphlet, for doubtless, it will be paraded by the Fenian organs in the United States as another evidence of their "coercing" Canada. It is just such stuff as the Fenian mind delights to feed upon, and for this reason, we regret that any Canadian journal should have been the means of giving it publicity.

THE FENIAN ARRESTS.

We learn that Mr. McMicken had two men, named Murphy and Mahon, arrested at Guelph on the 5th instant, on a charge of Fenianism.

The excitement existing among the members of the Toronto Hibernian Society, because of the arrest of their President and Secretary, is represented as being very great, though no demonstrations have been indulged in. As in Montreal, when Doody and others were arrested, so in Toronto, there has been a considerable exodus to the United States of parties presumed to be sympathisers with Fenianism, if not actually members of the order.

Peter Mahon is a farmer and township Councillor at Abertoyle, about twelve miles from Guelph. He was a delegate, under an assumed name, at the Cleveland Convention in 1866. He is supposed to be the leader, or Head Centre, of the Fenian organization in that locality. Letters have been discovered written by him to Col. Hoey, who was with the Fenians at Ridgway, in which Mahon invites the Colonel to pay a visit to Guelph, and mentions Murphy, the baggageman on the G.W.R. at Harrisburg, as a person to be relied upon. Other correspondence was also found with a party supposed to be still in Canada, and on whose track the Detectives are at present at work.

Murphy, the baggageman mentioned above, is compromised by Mahon's correspondence.

Another "Murphy"—John Murphy—who was recently employed in London as a clerk, but whose home is at Guelph, was also arrested, on account of the discovery of some compromising correspondence.

The papers of the prisoners arrested in Toronto are now here undergoing examination by Mr. O'Reilly.

The Toronto Telegraph of Tuesday evening contains some five columns of details of the proceedings in Toronto, on the arrest of the parties there, but the crowded state of our columns prevents our making any extracts this morning.

COURT OF CHANCERY.

The Court opened on Tuesday, Hon. Vice-Chancellor Spragge presiding.

The first case was White vs. Tremble. No counsel appeared for either of the parties.

The Court then proceeded with the case of Clemow vs. Converse, being a bill filed to set aside a judgment alleged to have been fraudulently obtained upon an ante-dated note, made by the insolvent herein, James Thomas Lamb. Several witnesses were examined on behalf of the plaintiff, and lengthy and learned arguments were made by counsel for both parties. The Judge has not yet decided the case.—George Kennedy, Esq., Solicitor, and Adam Crooks, Esq., Q. C., for plaintiff. Wm. H. Walker, Esq., and Edward Blake, Esq., Q. C., counsel for defendant.

WEDNESDAY.—Labelle vs. Rodden, being a bill filed to set aside a sale, made by virtue of a mortgage assigned to the defendant, William Rodden, and praying for redemption. Counsel during trial consented to set aside the sale, and gave leave to redeem.—Lees & Taillon, Solicitors, and Edward Blake, Esq., Q. C., counsel for plaintiff. A. I. Dunning, Solicitor, and Adam Crook, Esq., Q. C., for defendants.

Butler vs. Church was called upon a few minutes before the Court rose yesterday.

MANITOULIN ISLAND.

We learn that Charles F. Dupont, Esquire, Indian Superintendent at the Manitoulin Island, arrived in this city yesterday, with the view of conferring with leading members of the Government and Parliament, as to the reasons of his threatened dismissal from office. From our information, it would appear that a combination of various clerical influences has been formed to control the affairs of the Manitoulin Island, and Mr. Dupont, in carrying out his instructions from the Government, has erred in resisting undue pressure from certain local celebrities. An address on this subject was moved for by Mr. McKenzie on the 27th March last, and the papers were brought down on the 15th April. They contain a tissue of conflicting evidence with respect to the Rev. Jabez Sims, a missionary, reported upon by a Mr. Strong, of Toronto, who was sent to the Island to learn the various phases of Indian difficulty under the directions of two Ministers of the Gospel, who, of course, acted with strict impartiality. In two days Mr. Strong's mission was fulfilled. There is something in this matter which leads us to hope, that further enquiry and more temperate consideration may correct some very serious errors in the management of white men as well as Indians on that Island.

THE McGEE TESTIMONIAL FUND.

An adjourned meeting of the Committee of the McGee testimonial fund, was held yesterday at eleven o'clock a.m., in the City Hall.

On motion of the Mayor, seconded by Hon. James Skead, Dr. Hill was called to the chair. Mr. Ald. Hunter was appointed Secretary and Mr. Ald. Cunningham, Treasurer. After the settlement of some preliminary business, Ald. Cunningham moved, seconded by Mr. J. F. Caldwell, that the following gentlemen be appointed sub-Committees for canvassing the respective wards for subscriptions to the McGee Testimonial Fund:

OTTAWA WARD.

Aldermen Goulden and Martineau, and Messrs. J. Goodwin, Hiram Robinson, Dr. St. Jean, Dr. Tache and Moore Higgins.

BY WARD.

Aldermen Heney and Traversy, and Messrs. J. F. Caldwell, L. Duvernay, P. A. Eagleson Sr., J. W. Peachy and J. O'Brien.

ST. GEORGE'S WARD.

Aldermen Mosgrove and Featherston, and Messrs. A. Rowe, R. H. McGreevy, G. E. Desbarats, J. Langton and F. Badgley.

WELLINGTON WARD.

Aldermen Hunter and Bangs, and Messrs. J. Cotton, H. McCormick, A. Duff, J. W. Harper and G. H. Macaulay.

VICTORIA WARD.

Hon. J. Skead, H. Mears, J. R. O'Connor, A. Cambie, T. Worthington, and Aldermen Rochester and Cunningham.

It was then moved by Ald. Robinson, seconded by Mr. James Cotton, that it being desirable to have the subscription completed at as early a day as possible, therefore the sub committees be required to meet this Wednesday week at eleven o'clock, a.m., in the City Hall, and report progress.

After some conversation as to the best means of procedure in order to make the undertaking a complete success, the meeting adjourned to Wednesday.

It is earnestly to be hoped that the committees for each of the wards who did not meet last evening will do so to-day, and perfect their arrangements for canvassing their districts thoroughly. Thousands of people are no doubt anxious to contribute to the fund, and will feel disappointed if not called on.

Resolutions against the Dis-establishment of the Irish Church.

LONDON, May 6.—The entire domain belonging to the Hudson's Bay Company is to be ceded to the Crown.

A division is expected to take place in the House of Commons to-morrow night, 7th inst. On the remainder of the resolves proposed by Mr. Gladstone in reference to the Irish Church. A meeting was held in St. James' Hall to-day, in favor of the continuance of the Irish Church establishment. The Archbishop of Canterbury occupied the chair, and the platform was crowded with the most prominent of the Tory party. The Archbishop of Canterbury, on taking his position, made a speech in furtherance of the objects of the meeting. The Lord Mayor then rose and moved a series of resolutions in favor of the continued union of State and Church, which were seconded by the Bishop of Oxford. The Archbishop of York also presented resolutions to the effect that an attempt to overthrow the Irish Church was an attack upon the Church of England, and a movement towards the establishment of papacy upon the country. There was much tumult and confusion at this part of the proceedings, and throughout the meeting there was much disturbance.

PARIS, May 6.—It is authoritatively denied to-day that the French Ambassador at St. Petersburg had had a consultation with the Russian Minister of Foreign Affairs, in regard to the Eastern question.

LONDON, May 6.—France has suddenly broken off all diplomatic relations with the Government of Tunis. The reasons alleged is the repeated perpetration of outrages on French citizens resident in that country.

LONDON, May 6.—A nolle prosequi has been entered by the Attorney-General in the case of Mullaney, who becomes Queen's evidence against Burke and the other Clerkenwell explosion conspirators.

A telegram from Hong Kong states that the United States Minister to Japan has made a demand upon the Mikado for indemnity for damage occasioned to the property of American citizens in the late disturbance. He is supported in the demand by the French envoy.

LOCAL NEWS.

AUCTION SALE THIS EVENING.—Remember the great auction sale of dry goods this evening at 7 o'clock, at Prud'homme's store, Sussex street. Great bargains may be had.

BANK STREET PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.—The corner stone of the new Bank Street Presbyterian Church will be laid on Friday at half-past one o'clock, p. m., with appropriate ceremonies.

FINE coral jewellery, bog oak jewellery and a large collection of other goods suitable for wedding and other presents can be seen at Young & Radford's; all new and choice goods, and will be sold cheap.

OTTAWA ARTILLERY.—The officers, non-commissioned officers, and gunners of the Volunteer Garrison Artillery, are notified that there is to be a parade on Friday evening at 7:15, at which every effective man is expected to be present.

THE NEW POLICE APPOINTMENTS.—We learn that five new policemen were appointed last evening. It is to be hoped that the new men will prove to be as good as the old ones. We have not yet learned their names.

FIGHTING ON THE STREET.—Two soldiers indulged yesterday afternoon in one of the most savage fights we ever desire to witness. The encounter took place in William-st. A picket was sent out from the barracks, by whom they were taken into custody.

FLOUR DOWN.—Flour, which has not altered in price for nearly three months, fell yesterday twenty-five cents on the barrel. It is to be feared, however, that this will not affect the price of bread. Whether there will be a further reduction soon is not yet certain.

NEW EDINBURGH CHURCH.—The corner stone of the new Church of England now in course of erection in New Edinburgh will be laid on Saturday morning at 11 o'clock, by His Excellency the Governor-General of the Dominion. A special sermon will be preached on the afternoon following.

POLICE COURT.—James Keys, adjourned case,—keeping filthy piggery—was fined one dollar and costs.—Stewart Woodland, butcher, was brought up for building a house in a manner not conformable to the city by-law; defendant was also charged with selling meat, not having paid up his license. Both cases were adjourned till Saturday. Alex. Gibb, Esq., defended.—Alexander Macdonald was charged with depositing rubbish on George-st.

WHOSE WAS THE FAULT?—Last evening a respectably dressed elderly lady was passing along Clarence street, where the planks on the sidewalk have been taken up for repairs, when she fell into the pit and was seriously injured. She was quite unable to walk home and had to be taken in a cab. Her name we did not learn. It is too often the practice to have such places open all night without a guard or a light; and if the Corporation have to pay whose is the fault?

THE SILVER SPOONS.—The girl whom we noticed yesterday as being about offering some silver spoons for sale, supposed to have been stolen, applied yesterday to the police authorities for them as being her own property, stating that they were her own property, having been given her many years ago by her mother. She was detained in custody, but efforts were being made last night to effect her release, as up to the late hour the enquiries made for another owner had resulted in noth-

A DISTRESSING CASE.—Yesterday a person from New Edinburgh, applied to Mr. Langrell, as a Justice of Peace for the county, under the following circumstances: his wife had been laboring under mental abberation for the last two years, and at great sacrifice of comfort and expense, he had kept his trouble from the world by having her taken care of at home, but on Monday, she became unmanageable, and in one of her frenzied moments, had tried to cut the tongue of her child. Since then, her madness had manifested itself in other acts, of a nature to render it unsafe to keep her longer at home. Having procured a medical certificate therefore to this effect, application was made as above to Mr. Langrell, who committed her to jail according to the custom which has prevailed here, to remain until she could be admitted into a proper asylum. She could not be admitted to the jail however, and was returned home. This is certainly a case of great hardship.

NEW PLATFORM.—One of the best platforms ever built in the city has just been completed from Dr. McDonald's to Cumberland-st., and is to be continued to Laporte's store, and raised to meet the top of the inclined plane there so dangerous in the winter. The new sidewalk is raised through its entire length to the grade of the street, and a portion of Cumberland-st. will be graded to correspond with Rideau-st. It was proper that these improvements should be made in that part of the city where latterly quite a number of substantial edifices have been erected, the last of which is the handsome and commodious brick building put up by Mr. Starmer. The platform spoken of is being built by Mr. Donald Dow, contractor, and will serve as a pattern for future ones.

THE CANADIAN PARLIAMENT.

1st PARLIAMENT. 1st SESSION.

THE SENATE.

WEDNESDAY, May 6, 1868.

The SPEAKER took the chair at three o'clock.

After routine,

Hon. Mr. CAMPBELL brought in a Bill intituled "Evidence in Civil and Commercial Matters Bill," read a first and second time.

Hon. Mr. TESSIER gave notice of Contingent Committee Report for Friday next.

RESOLUTION FOR ELECTIVE SPEAKER OF SENATE.

Hon. Mr. LETELLIER DE ST. JUST moved his resolution, seconded by Hon. Mr. SANBORN, "That it is desirable that the Senate should have the selection of its own Speaker at the opening of each Parliament, and whenever a vacancy shall occur." In support of his resolution the hon. gentleman said, he wished to see the good old practices of the good old times observed, when the Legislative Council of Canada had the power of selecting gentlemen as Speakers of this House, remarkable for their polite demeanour, familiarity with its practices and customs and their high dignified social position. Such as the late Sir Allan N. McNab, the present Hon. Postmaster-General, and many others, whose election by the House always gave universal satisfaction. His present resolution was not aimed at the present occupant of the Speaker's chair, or in any way intended to give offence; but he thought the Constitution would not prevent this House from exercising the rights claimed by the smallest deliberative bodies in the land, viz., the right to choose the presiding officer over their deliberations, and he felt assured this House would sooner or later assert its right to elect their Speaker, and that at a very early date. Their self respect and dignity as an independent branch of the Legislature was at stake. He could not avoid alluding to the way in which also the present selection was made by the Government of a gentleman outside of the present Senate, until the appointment was decided on. When the selection had to be made the Government might have selected a gentleman well acquainted from his long experience with the forms and routine of this House—possessing all the advantages of the present incumbent. He did not wish to say more on this branch of the subject, though he might enlarge on it to a considerable extent. He was satisfied the present system would not give satisfaction in the future, no more than in the past; whereas if the House selected their Speaker the matter would be fully debated, and the best choice possible made, which would necessarily give entire satisfaction. Whereas by the present system it did appear as if this House was the only one under our system of Government that had neither the sense or the judgment to choose their own Speaker to preside over the deliberations of the Senate Chamber. He for one would raise his voice against the perpetuation of such an evil, and was satisfied the day was not far distant when this House would make its voice heard in no unmistakable tones. He would now move the resolution of which he had given notice, seconded by the Hon. Mr. SANBORN.

Hon. Mr. SANBORN said that in seconding this motion, he had only a few words to say upon the subject, as he had already expressed his views upon this point on a former occasion. The only objection which could be made to the Senate having the power to select its own Speaker was, that it did not conform to the course pursued in the House of Lords. In regard to this objection, he said this Senate was constituted under a particular statute, and there exists very little similarity in many respects between the House of Lords and our mode of procedure. This dissimilarity was intended by those who framed our Confederation Act: which specified that we should be guided by those parliamentary rules, and have attributed to us those privileges which attach to the House of Commons and not the House of Lords. The analogy fails also in the matter of the presiding officer of the House of Lords and the presiding officers of this House. The reason why the Speaker of the House of Lords is a nominee of the Crown is from the peculiarities of the British constitution, which has grown up little by little in the course of ages, and circumstances have created an officer, who, by custom, has been made Speaker of the House of Lords, although he may, or may not be a Peer of the realm. His right of addressing the House of Lords depends upon the fact as to whether or not he is a Peer, but that would not apply in this Senate. He (Mr. Sanborn) thought that every deliberative body possessed the inherent right to select a person to preside over them. That was a natural right, and would commend itself to the good sense of every one. It was a right which was exercised throughout every grade of society, from the highest to the lowest. There could not be found a debating club organised among a number of school boys without their having the privilege of electing their chairman, and this same principle is carried out in every organised society, whether political or otherwise, and in no case do we see a power beyond themselves putting a person over them to direct, govern, and restrain their deliberations. It is a very singular anomaly, and one which would never arise in the natural order of things, that the highest deliberative body of a political character in any land, having power such as this Senate possesses, should be dependent upon another independent power for the choice of their presiding officer. This appeared to him to be an anomaly which could not exist for the decision upon this motion, before many years this Senate will be convinced of the propriety of their selecting their own Speaker. Then again, according to the Union Act, the choice of Speaker is not given in an unlimited manner to the Government, the power is given to appoint a Senator only, and no other person. In this respect the appointment is not analogous to the appointment of Speaker for the House of Lords. There the Speaker has peculiar privileges, or rather the absence of privileges, which he (Mr. Sanborn) considered would be found necessary in the course of practice, to be given to the presiding officer of the Senate, that is the power given to the Speaker of the House of Commons for preserving order, which was given also to the Speaker of this Senate, but was not conferred upon the Speaker of the House of Lords. This then was another failure in the analogy between the presiding officers of those two Houses. Then why should not this appointment be made by the Senate? Does not every Senator feel that it is casting a reproach upon him, after having been called by Her Majesty to a seat in the highest deliberative body in the country, to say that this body cannot, in the exercise of its deliberative capacity choose its own presiding officer, but he must be chosen by the Ministers of the Crown who, for the time being, are entrusted with the administration of the affairs of the country? Was it right that twelve or thirteen men should deliberate together and advise the Governor-General to select this or that man to be the presiding officer of the Senate, instead of having him elected by the seventy-two members of this Senate, who were chosen from all parts of the country, and who, from their long experience in public life, high character, and well known ability and integrity, were well qualified to make that selection? Does not every member of this House feel that an imputation is cast upon this body, when the principle which is recognised in all other organisations of electing their own presiding officer, does not apply to the highest legislative body in the country. Under these circumstances he cheerfully availed himself of the opportunity of seconding this motion. If this power of appointing a Speaker is left in the hands of the Government for the time being, it may be made use of for party purposes. In consequence of the exigencies of party a man may be placed in the position of Speaker of this House that would not be acceptable to this body. He would first have to be appointed as a Senator before he could be appointed as Speaker, and this would create a feeling which would be disseminated over the country, that this Senate was made a convenience to the Government of the day for the purpose of obtaining a party advantage. This is calculated to lower the position of the Senate, and place us in a position which we ought not voluntarily to accept. It is only giving a fair and manly expression to our feelings when we say that it is desirable that this Senate should choose its own presiding officer.

Hon. Mr. CAMPBELL said it was impossible to find fault with the manner in which this resolution was brought before the House, or with the strong reasons given by the mover and seconder, why we should select our own presiding officer. He could only express his regret that his hon. friend had brought the subject under the consideration of the House at this period of the Session. It involved a very grave and important point, and it was one upon which every member of the Senate would desire to express an opinion, and they ought to have this opportunity, both of expressing their opinions and voting upon this question. Many of the members not being present, his hon. friend would see that the moment was not opportune for discussing so important a motion. It was also to be regretted that this motion was put forward now when we had for so short a time enjoyed the present constitution. This constitution has been framed after a great deal of deliberation. Gentlemen of experience from all parts of the Dominion had held consultations in regard to this Union, which consultations were repeated at Charlottetown and subsequently at Quebec and London, where the views of the members representing the different Provinces were canvassed, and no doubt, modified, and the result of this modification was our present constitution. He said it was impossible yet to form any sound opinion in regard to its merits or demerits, and he regretted that such a measure as this was put forward, particularly on account of the effect it would have, if carried, upon gentlemen in England, for what would be thought by those members of Parliament who gave their assistance to give us this constitution, if they see in a few months after, such a want of stability on our part, and what we desired one month we do not desire the next. Every means had been exerted for the purpose of procuring an authoritative expression of opinion from all parts of the country, and the constitution given us was framed upon that opinion. The British Government did not form this constitution upon any theories of their own, but they gave us the very things which we asked for, and what would be thought of our stability, and of our legislation for the government of our country, if we now asked a change to be made before having an opportunity of forming a sound opinion upon it. Then it was not to be expected that the legislation which has taken place in Great Britain at the instance of the whole Dominion would be altered at the instance of this particular branch of the Legislature. If there is to be a change, it must be a change sought for by the House of Commons, as well as this House, and he thought the House of Commons would not concur in the resolution, unless it went further and altered the right by which hon. members of this House held their seats. They would couple to it a resolution that this House ought to be elective, and this he thought would not be very desirable after the experience they had had with an elective Legislative Council. The present form was adopted after consulting with gentlemen from the different Provinces, who were able to judge of the comparative merits of the two systems; it received the sanction of the various Legislatures, and in New Brunswick it was sanctioned by the direct vote of the people. After such efforts as have been made to procure an expression of opinion, and after this constitution had been concurred in by the Legislatures of the several Provinces, it was impossible to believe that a change should take place, except for very grave and serious reasons. He did not apprehend that those grave and serious reasons had been adduced here, or that a great necessity for this change had been shown. He did not know of any practical evils arising from it, as the House had accomplished all it was formed for the purpose of accomplishing. If his hon. friend thought that some other course might have been pursued in reference to the choice of a Speaker, it was no reason why he should seek for a change in the constitution. His hon. friend (Mr. Sanborn) said it was an insult put upon the House that a gentleman was not chosen as Speaker from the members of the Senate; he forgets that the Speaker was made a member of the House not by any extraordinary means, but in the ordinary course of proceedings, by means provided by the constitution. He was appointed to take the place of one of those gentlemen who was named in the proclamation, and he was selected to fill the position of Speaker in the same manner that any other hon. member would have been selected. There was another reason why this motion should not have been brought forward at this time. Many of the members were of opinion that the number of Departments should be reduced, and he apprehended that the Speaker could occupy the position of head of a Department and presiding officer of this House at the same time, which could not be done if the Speaker was elected by the Senate. When the Speakers of the Legislative Council of the Province of Canada were appointed by the Crown, they were always members of the Government, and sometimes were charged with carrying on the affairs of the Government in the Upper House, and that course might be adopted again with advantage, but the change now contemplated would deprive us of this opportunity. If a change of this kind should ultimately be desired, when the time for discussing the measure came he would not think it wise to hurry a conclusion upon it as was sought by this resolution, but it should receive such consideration as the importance of the subject demanded. A measure of this kind should not be adopted until after we have had some experience to see whether the present system will work well or not, and whether the present Constitution is not best suited to the wants, habits, and wages of the country, otherwise we certainly shall be arriving at a hasty conclusion, which will afford evidence of a want of stability on our part which will not redound to our credit as statesmen, either at home or abroad. This matter having been brought before the House and the hon. mover and seconder having had an opportunity of expressing their views, he hoped they would not press the question to a division, but would allow the matter to remain in its present shape until hon. members have more experience in the present working of the Constitution.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.

WEDNESDAY, May 6, 1868.

The SPEAKER took the chair at three o'clock.

BAGOT ELECTION.

The General Committee on elections reported that the following members had been chosen to serve on the Select Committee for trial of the Bagot election petition, viz.: Messrs. Mills, Masson (Terrebonne), Masson (Soulanges), Merritt, and Wood, Chairman.

In reply to Mr. D. A. MACDONALD, who asked whether it is the intention of the Government to bring down this Session a measure respecting Patents for Inventions, applicable to the Dominion as a whole, or to the several Provinces thereof; and if so, will that measure affect in any manner the present law, Consolidated Statutes Canada, cap. 34, with respect to Patents for Inventions brought by Canadians from foreign countries, including the United States of America.

Hon. Mr. MACDOUGALL said that such a measure had been introduced in the other chamber, and would very shortly be printed when the hon. member could make himself acquainted with its provisions. With respect to the latter part of the question, the hon. member seemed to have misunderstood the law, which did not permit the introduction by Canadians of patents obtained in the United States.

SUGAR DUTIES.

On the motion of Mr. JONES (Halifax) an address was voted, asking for a return of all communications received from Boards of Trade and Chambers of Commerce, &c., on the subject of the sugar duties.

DEPARTMENT ORGANIZATION.

Hon. Mr. JOHNSON moved that a Select Committee be appointed, with power to send for persons and papers, to enquire into the organization of departments, and the nature of the duties devolving on the several employees therein.

The SPEAKER having called attention to the fact that the motion was without a seconder, Mr. RYMAL volunteered.

Sir J. A. MACDONALD showed that such a committee could effect no practical result within the present session, and urged the withdrawal of the motion, which would take the responsibilities of administration out of the hands of the Government, upon whom it was a direct vote of censure.

Hon. Mr. LANGEVIN (in French) took the same view.

Hon. Mr. HOLTON deprecated the consideration of such motions as involving any expression of want of confidence.

After some remarks from Hon. Mr. DORION (in French) the question was put and the House divided with the following result, Yeas 45; Nays 99.

Majority for Government 54.

IMMIGRATION.

On the motion of Mr. JACKSON the names of the Hon. Messrs. Dorion and Dunkin, and of Mr. Stephenson were added to the Committee on Immigration and Colonization.

POST OFFICE CONTRACT.

Mr. MASSON (Soulanges) moved an address for copies of contracts for conveyance of mails from this House and the Senate to the Ottawa Post Office, which he understood was being performed by a man charged with a grave crime.

Sir J. A. MACDONALD said that there was no formal contract, but that these mails were being carried under an arrangement of the late Speaker at the rate of $4 daily for the Commons, and $3 daily for the Senate.

Mr. MASSON thought that if the country went on at this rate of extravagance it would soon find itself in bankruptcy. (Laughter.)

Mr. BURTON censured the retention of Buckley, whom he stated to be still receiving messenger's pay in Government employment, as an insult to the House. He went on at considerable length to eulogize Mr. O'Reilly, and discussing Irish position and Irish character, severely denouncing Fenianism, and was unable to understand how Irishmen, who were in Canada admitted to a footing of social equality with other citizens, could be so ungrateful as to number among them any enemies to so beneficent a Government.

Mr. T. R. FERGUSSON said that this question pertained to the supervision of the Contingent Committee, who, while admitting the pay to be considerable, stated the arrangement to be the best that could be made at the time. He repudiated the notion that any man should be subjected to injury upon unproved suspicion, and maintained the justice of the principle by which innocence was assumed until guilt had been conclusively brought home.

QUEBEC PILOTS.

On the motion of the Hon. Mr. IRVINE, an address was voted, asking for a return of all correspondence regarding complaints against the Corporation of Pilots for and below the harbor of Quebec.

INTERCOLONIAL RAILWAY.

On the motion of Mr. BOLTON, an address was voted, asking for copies of petitions in reference to the selection of the route for the Intercolonial Railway.

ROYAL FAVOR.

Hon. Mr. CHAUVEAU moved a resolution to refer papers and correspondence respecting the marks of royal favor which Her Majesty has been pleased to confer upon members of this House to a Committee of seven members, which was seconded by Hon. C. DUNKIN, and carried; the following members being chosen to serve on the Committee, viz.: Messrs. Campbell, Gray, Cassault, Irvine, Parker, Dorion, and the mover.

GOVERNMENT MEASURES.

The following Bills were introduced by Hon. Sir JOHN A. MACDONALD, read a first time, and ordered for second reading to-morrow, viz.: An Act to regulate Lighthouses, Buoys and Beacons; an Act respecting relief to distressed Mariners; an Act securing indemnity to certain persons sitting and voting in Parliament, while holding office under the Crown.

STATUTES OF CANADA.

On the motion of Mr. MILLS, the Bill to amend the Act respecting the Statutes of Canada, was read a third time and passed.

GOVERNOR-GENERAL'S SALARY.

The report of the Committee of the Whole recommending the reduction of the Governor-General's salary having been concurred in on division,

Mr. DUFRESNE introduced a Bill to give effect to the resolution.

Hon. Mr. DORION thought that the responsibility of action should be left with the Government, who were not justified in ignoring the vote of such an overwhelming majority.

Mr. DUFRESNE would willingly leave the matter with the Government, if they would undertake to deal with it.

Hon. Sir JOHN A. MACDONALD did not consider that the duty of the Government required them to take the initiative in measures of which they disapproved. He would, however, offer every facility for the speedy course of the Bill, bowing to the decision of the House on its principle, and would not advise His Excellency to prorogue Parliament until the Bill had reached its final stage.

Hon. Mr. HOLTON hoped that the hon. member for Montcalm understood that the Government would permit the suspension of the rules so as to permit the three stages, as of an appropriation Bill, to be taken at once.

Sir J. A. MACDONALD could not consent to the Bill being read a second time before being printed, in which Hon. C. DUNKIN concurred, and after some further discussion between Dr. PARKER, Hon. Mr. HOLTON, and Mr. DUFRESNE, the Bill was read a first time, and the second reading fixed for to-morrow (this day).

Hon. Mr. HOLTON having moved amendment that the second reading be ma the first order of the day, considerable discu sion ensued, in which Sir J. A. MACDO ALD, although opposing the amendment pledged himself to give all possible facili for bringing up the second reading as spe as though such an exceptional proposition h been allowed to pass.

Hon. Mr. HOLTON, accepting the assur consented to withdraw the amendment, but

Mr. WALSH could not consent to his do so, without expressing his opinion that interference with the Imperial enactment w most unadvisable.

Mr. F. JONES believed that, after the pression of the sense of the House upo question, any delay in its consumma would create a most undesirable op through the country that it had been sacri by a political dodge.

The amendment was then withdrawn, the question dropped.

QUEBEC COUNTY.

The House then on the motion of the Mr. CHAUVEAU, went into Committee the Bill to annex a portion of the Seign of Belair to the County of Quebec, and ther portion thereof to the County of Neuf, which was reported with some amendments, and ordered for third readi to-morrow (this day.)

COAL MEASUREMENT.

On the motion of Mr. BROUSSEAU, Bill to amend the Consolidated Statu Lower Canada, so far as the same relat the measurement and discharge of coal, read a second time, and after some discus on the constitutional question of jurisdic referred to the Committee on Banking Commerce.

It being six o'clock the Speaker left the chair.

After Recess.

SEIZURE OF THE STEAMER "GEORGIAN."

Mr. MORRISON (Niagara) presented petition of George Taylor Denison, against seizure of the steamer Georgian in 186 and moved its reception and reference to a Special Committee, which was carried.

RAILWAY BILL.

Mr. CHAMBERLIN introduced a Bill to corporate the Richelieu and Passimpsic Ra way and Navigation Company.

DIVORCE BILL.

Mr. WORKMAN introduced a Bill from Senate for the relief of F. J. Whiteaves.

On the motion for its reference a discus ensued as to whether such matters should have been left to the Local Legislatures.

Hon. Mr. LANGEVIN spoke against Bill.

Hon. Mr. HOLTON contended that ought to be a general law on the subject, that it should be treated judicially. He vote against all private Bills of the kind.

Mr. McKENZIE was surprised at the co taken by the member for Chateauguay, w would deprive all parties of relief as Par ment was the only court having power to with such questions.

Mr. BELLEROSE said that he and friends could not conscientiously vote on subjects as this, except against them, cons ing divorces of this kind immoral in t tendencies.

Mr. DUNKIN found no difficulty in v for the Bill, if a case were made out, b were not in the same position.

Mr. ANGLIN said no human tribunal a right to dissolve the holy tie institut God himself. He took this ground as a lic. The effect of such Bills was to legalise adultery. He moved that the Bill referred this day three months.

Hon. Mr. JOHNSON said there shoul one uniform law, and he was opposed to private Bill being passed.

Mr. ANGLIN withdrew his amendment the ground that a vote on the motion for erence would serve the same purpose.

The House then divided on the m for reference as follows:

A BENEFACTRESS.—Just open the door for her, and Mrs. WINSLOW will prove the American Nightingale of the Nursery. Of this we are sure, that we will teach our "SUSY" to say "A Blessing Mrs. Winslow," for helping her to survive and escape the griping, colicking and teething age. We confirm every word set forth in the prospectus. It performs precisely what it professes to perform, every part of it—nothing less. Away with your "Cordial," "Paregoric," "Drops," "Laudanum," and every other "Narcotic," by which the babe is drugged into stupidity, and rendered dull and idiotic for life.

Mothers Read This!—Holloway's Worm Lozenges are a certain and safe remedy for Worms in Children and Adults.—As it is a well-known and melancholy fact that one great cause of death among children is from Worms alone, it cannot be too deeply impressed upon the minds of parents the necessity of closely watching their children. By so doing; and understanding the symptoms and true cause of the disease, thousands of children might be saved from early graves. SYMPTOMS OF WORMS.—The following are a few of the very numerous symptoms and diseases which are caused by Worms: deranged appetite, emaciated extremities, offensive breath frequent picking at the nose, grinding of the teeth during sleep, hardness of the belly, with frequent slimy stools, and sometimes convulsive fits; itching of the arms, pain in the head and stomach, unquiet sleep, faintings, tremblings, coughs, indigestion, low spirits, frightful dreams, and a gradual wasting away of flesh.

They are palatable and self-administered to the child—drive out the worms thoroughly without pain and completely cleanse the stomach—thereby doing away with the necessity of administering Castor Oil or other unpleasant cathartics—as in the use of other Worms.

COBOURG, January 8, 1868.—Montreal Tea Company: Gentlemen, I beg to inform you that the two boxes of Tea you sent me are of excellent quality, especially the Young Hyson at 60 cents. Please send another box, or 20 lbs., at same price, and oblige yours, &c.,

F. OLIVER.

The contributors to the Medical Journal have frequently declared that one-half the nervous diseases are caused by drinking impure Tea. The Company have carefully selected and imported a supply of Teas that can be warranted pure and free from poisonous substances, in 50, 25, 20, 15 and 12 lb. boxes.

BLACK TEA.

Common Congou, Broken Leaf, Strong Tea, 45c, 50c.; Fine Flavoured New Season, do; 55c, 60c and 65c; Excellent Full Flavored do, 75c; Sound Oolong, 45c; Rich Flavored do, 60c; Very Fine do, do, 75c; Japan, Good, 50c, 55c; Very Fine, 60c; Finest, 65c, 75c.

GREEN TEA.

Twankay common, 38c; Fine do, 55c; Young Hyson, 50c, 60c, 65c and 70c; Fine do, 75c; Very Fine, 85c; Superfine and Very Choice, $1.00; Fine Gunpowder, 85c; Extra Superfine do, $1.

All orders for 20 or 25 lbs., or two 12 lbs., sent carriage free to the country. Teas not mentioned in this circular sent equally cheap. The Company having determined to take a stand in the Montreal market, weight, quality and circular may be implicitly relied on. Where a 20 lb. box would be too much, two or three clubbing together could divide. An excellent mixed Tea could be sent for 60c to 70c; very good for common purposes, 50c. Buyers living beyond Railway Stations will please send Post Office order or enclosed notes. The carriage will be paid to the nearest station. Tea will be forwarded immediately on receipt of the order by mail containing money, or the money can be collected on delivery by express-man where there are express offices. A trial solicited.

THE MONTREAL TEA COMPANY,
6, Hospital-street, Montreal.

All boxes sent from this establishment have the Company's name printed on them.

Among the most important of modern Medical Discoveries stands the

de, Back and Head, Coughs, Colds, Sore Throat, Sprains, Bruises, Cramps in the Stomach, Cholera Morbus, Dysentery, Bowel Complaints, Burns, Scalds, Frost Bites, &c., &c.

THE CANADIAN PAIN DESTROYER HAS now been before the public for a length of time, and whenever used is well liked, never failing in a single instance to give permanent relief when timely used, and we have never known a single case of dissatisfaction where the directions are properly followed; but on the contrary, all are delighted with its operations, and speak in the highest terms of its virtues and magical effects.

We speak from experience in this matter, having tested it thoroughly, and therefore those who are suffering from any of the complaints for which it is recommended may depend upon its being a Sovereign Remedy.

The astonishing efficacy of the Canadian Pain Destroyer, in curing diseases for which it is recommended, and its wonderful success in subduing the torturing pains of Rheumatism, and in relieving Nervous Affections, entitle it to a high rank in the list of Remedies for these complaints. Orders are coming in from Medicine Dealers in all parts of the country for further supplies, and each testifying as to the universal satisfaction it gives.

The Canadian Pain Destroyer never fails to give immediate relief. All Medicine Dealers keep it; Physicians order and use it; and no family will without it after once trying it.

Price twenty-five cents per bottle.

GOVERNMENT HOUSE, OTTAWA,

27th April, 1868.

PRESENT:

HIS EXCELLENCY THE GOVERNOR GENERAL IN COUNCIL.

HIS Excellency was pleased to lay before the Council a Memorandum from the Honourable the Minister of Inland Revenue, submitting for approval and adoption a draft of certain Regulations respecting the Bonding and Warehousing of goods subject to duties of Excise.

Whereupon His Excellency in Council was pleased to order, and it is hereby ordered, that the Regulations so submitted and hereinafter specified, be, and they are hereby approved, under the provisions of the 38th section, of the Act 31 Vic., cap. 8, intituled: "An Act respecting the Inland Revenue."

REGULATIONS.

1. Application for the establishment of a warehouse for excise purposes must be made in writing by the person requiring it, and every such application must fully and minutely describe the premises with their exact locality.

2. On receipt of such an application the collector of Inland Revenue will survey the premises, and if satisfied that they are suitable for the purpose, and that they afford the requisite protection to the revenue, and on their being supplied with suitable locks, he will report the facts to the department, whose authority will be required to use such warehouse as a bonding warehouse for excise purposes.

3. The principal door of ingress and egress of every such warehouse shall be provided with two locks at the expense of the owner of the goods warehoused, one of which shall be selected by the collector or by other competent authority, the key of the last named lock to be kept by the officer, and the key of the former by the owner of the goods; and should there be more doors than one all such other doors and all windows and other means of ingress shall be fastened on the inside in a secure manner to the satisfaction of the surveying officer.

4. When any warehouse has been surveyed and accepted as an excise warehouse it shall be designated by a letter commencing with A, and so on in alphabetical sequence for each succeeding warehouse surveyed within that division.

5. Over the principal entrance to every warehouse approved for excise purposes there shall be placed the following designation:

V.

EXCISE

BONDED WAREHOUSE.

*With the proper letter, the whole being in legible characters in black, not less than three inches in height, painted on a white ground.

6. Goods subject to duties of excise may be warehoused in any customs warehouse within the limits of the Inland Revenue Division in which they have been manufactured, or to which they may be removed in bond under these regulations: in every such case they must be received into warehouse by the customs locker on the warrant of the collector of Inland Revenue, countersigned by the collector of customs for the port.

7. With the exception of malt no goods shall be entered for warehouse unless the duties accruing thereon amount, under one bond, to at least one hundred dollars.

8. Every package entered for warehouse must (in addition to all other marks and numbers) be distinctly numbered, in red paint mixed with oil, with the number of the entry and the date at which it was entered. The date will be sufficiently indicated by the number of the half month and the last two numerals of the year in which the entry was made:—thus, goods entered on the 20th January, 1868, may be dated 14-68; shewing that the entry was made in the fourteenth half month of the current fiscal year.

9. All entries are to be numbered consecutively, and the bonds relating to them will bear corresponding numbers.

10. Collectors of Customs having charge of bonded excise goods will keep a debit and credit account of them; and the warrant of the Collector of Inland Revenue will be the only sufficient discharge for their delivery.

11. If any goods, after having been received into warehouse, and before their actual delivery ex-warehouse, be altered in quantity, quality or strength, except by leakage, unavoidable waste, or accident, they shall be forfeited, and may be seized, by any officer of Excise or Customs having a knowledge thereof.

12. In case the quantity of goods bonded in any warehouse shall, at any time or by any means, fall short or be deficient of the actual quantity which ought to be or remain warehoused, after deducting the quantities entered ex-warehouse, the owner thereof shall be subject and liable to the full duties on the balance of goods with which the warehouse stands debited, after taking an account of the ex-warehouse entries; and the goods remaining shall be subject to the duties on the quantity deficient, and shall and may be sold for payment thereof, by order of the department; the surplus, if any, to be payable to the person who warehoused such goods or his assigns.

13. No goods shall be warehoused or ex-warehoused upon any authorized holiday nor before the hour of nine o'clock in the morning or after four o'clock in the afternoon.

14. All entry papers, bonds, notices and other documents herein required shall be made out by the owner of the goods to which they relate or by his duly accredited agent, and all packages shall be marked and numbered as herein required by the owner or his agent.

ENTRY OF GOODS FOR WAREHOUSE.

15. Every entry of goods for warehouse must be preceded by a written notice from the person desiring to warehouse them, which notice must be given to the collector in the prescribed form, at least one day before the goods are removed to the warehouse, and must set forth fully the quantity and description of the goods.

16. Entry of goods for warehouse must in all cases be made on the forms sanctioned by the department, and every such entry shall contain a full and complete specification of the goods so entered, stating:

a The number and description of packages.

b Marks and numbers.

c Contents of each in lbs or gallons, and in the case of spirits the contents are to be stated in gallons of the strength of proof.

d The duty to which the goods would have been liable had they gone into consumption.

Every cask or barrel of spirits, and every package of tobacco shall be full and whole at the time it is warehoused.

17. Every such entry shall be made in duplicate.

18. The collector of Inland Revenue will in every case take bonds with each entry as required by sec. 91, 31st Vic., Cap. 8, and on the prescribed form. These bonds must contain a general description of the goods warehoused, and also a reference to the entry papers by number and date. The bond will bear the same number as the entry, and they will be filed together.

ENTRY OF GOODS EX-WAREHOUSE FOR EXPORTATION.

19. Goods subject to duties of Excise shall only be exported in bond from the undermentioned ports of entry, viz:

Nova Scotia..................	Halifax.
New Brunswick..................	St. John.
Quebec..................	Quebec. Montreal.
Ontario..................	Prescott. Kingston. Toronto. Hamilton. Clifton. Windsor. Sarnia.

And only to British or Foreign Ports of Entry where there are Collectors of Customs or other officers of the Government having similar functions.

20. Goods can only be entered for exportation ex-warehouse from a warehouse within the limits of the Port at which they are to be laden on the ship or other vehicles in which they are to leave the country.

21. As soon as any person owning goods warehoused under these regulations shall be desirous of exporting any quantity of such goods, he shall deliver to the collector of Inland Revenue, in whose charge such goods are, a notice in writing specifying the full particulars thereof as set forth in section 16 of these regulations, and also the name of the ship or vessel, and the name of the master of such ship or vessel, or the line of railway, as the case may be, by which such goods are intended to be exported.

22. All casks, boxes, bales or other packages of goods entered for exportation shall, before leaving the warehouse, be conspicuously marked, branded or stamped, as the case may be, by the collectors of Inland Revenue or other proper officer with the letters EXPN.

23. Entry of goods for exportation ex-warehouse must be made on the forms sanctioned by the department, and must contain an exact specification of the goods for warehouse. (Vidasec. 16.) With every such entry an export bond shall be taken in the prescribed form.

24. Export bonds shall be conditional for the due delivery of the goods bonded at the place designated in the entry within a specified time, which time shall not in any case exceed the time usually necessary for the performance of the voyage or journey by the conveyance adopted, and for returning the vouchers by the next mail; and in no case shall the period allowed for the cancellation of the bond exceed one year, unless special authority has been granted by the department.

25. The cancellation of an Export Bond shall only be considered complete on the receipt of a duly authenticated certificate from the collector of customs or other government officer having similar authority at the Port of Entry to which the goods described in the Export Entry have been landed and duly entered for consumption or warehoused at the place specified in the entry.

26. The entry for Exportation ex-warehouse shall in all cases be made in triplicate with the collector of Inland Revenue who shall also take the Export Bond.

27. Two copies of the Entry shall be sent to the collector of Customs at the Port whence the goods are to leave the Dominion, who, on receipt thereof shall grant a warrant for the lading of the goods described in the Entry on the Railway or vessel therein mentioned.

28. So soon as the goods have been duly laden the collector of Customs shall certify the fact on the entry papers, one copy whereof shall be filed at the Custom House and the other shall be returned to the collector of Inland Revenue.

29. Whether goods are entered for export from a customs warehouse, or from a warehouse used exclusively for excise, the collector of the port will in each case be charged with the responsibility of seeing them placed on board the ship, car or other vehicle in which they are to be exported, and he must make such examination of the goods as may be necessary for determining whether they correspond with the description contained in the entry, and especially with reference to spirits whether they are of the strength specified.

ENTRY OF GOODS FOR REMOVAL EX-WAREHOUSE IN BOND.

30. Entries of goods for removal, ex-warehouse are to be made in triplicate, with detailed specifications, as in export entries.

31. Goods can only be entered for removal ex-warehouse to another warehouse within the limits of a warehousing Port of Entry or to a Bonding warehouse previously authorized in another Inland Revenue Division.

32. Bonds, in the form prescribed by the department, must, in every case, be taken for the due delivery of the goods at the place of destination.

33. When the goods entered for removal are bonded in a custom warehouse, the locker having charge of them will only deliver them for removal on receipt of a warrant signed by the Collector of Inland Revenue and countersigned by the Collector of Customs, which warrant must contain an exact transcript or abstract, of the specification of the goods in the entry, and the locker is required to identify every package and check it by the warrant.

34. Collectors of Inland Revenue on receiving the copies of the entry as above (sec. 31), will at once notify the Collector of Customs of the anticipated arrival of the goods specified, giving him one copy of the entry; and on the arrival of the goods the Collector of Customs will examine them and ascertain whether they correspond with the entry.

35. As soon as they have arrived and are identified, the Collector of Customs will certify the fact on the entry paper and return it to the Collector of Inland Revenue. The goods are then to be rebounded by the owner in the division into which they are removed. Thereafter they are to be dealt with in the same manner as if they had been manufactured in that Division.

ENTRY OF GOODS EX-WAREHOUSE FOR CONSUMPTION.

36. Entry of goods ex-warehouse for consumption will be made in duplicate on the prescribed forms and every such entry must contain a full specification of the goods, as in an export or removal entry.

37. On receipt of the duty accruing on the goods so entered, the Collector of Inland Revenue will make out a warrant for the delivery of the goods, which, if the goods are in a Customs warehouse, must be countersigned by the Collector of Customs, and must contain a transcript of the specification in the entry, and the locker in charge of the warehouse must identify every package with the description contained in the warrant before delivering it.

MALT.

38. Malt warehoused under the Act above cited may be removed in Bond from one Inland Revenue Division to another or from one warehouse to another, and may be exported in bond without payment of duty. But every such removal or export shall be under the same restrictions and conditions as to entry and bonds as are in force in respect of other goods liable to duties of excise, except that bags or other packages containing malt are not required to be marked or numbered, and except further that any duly licensed maltster carrying on business, when entering malt manufactured by himself for warehouse, may do so on giving a general bond in a form to be prescribed by the Department to Inland Revenue, for payment of the duty on the malt so bonded; which bond shall be for such a sum as the collector or officer, taking it, computes will be equal to double the amount of duty that will accrue on the largest quantity of malt that will be warehoused under such bond at one time, and if from any unexpected cause the quantity of malt shall at any time be in excess of the quantity so computed further bonds shall be taken for such additional quantity.

FRIDAY, MAY 8, 1868.

We are glad to see it stated that W. M. Wilson, Esq., has been appointed Judge of the County of Norfolk. This announcement will be heard with satisfaction by Mr. Wilson's many friends throughout the country.

With respect to the petition of Mr. T. K. Ramsay, setting forth grounds for impeaching Mr. Justice Drummond, we may mention that Mr. Chamberlin, who presented it to the House, gave notice yesterday of a motion to refer it to a Select Committee for inquiry, and report.

The Hon. Mr. Rose, yesterday, gave notice of a series of resolutions respecting the tonnage dues. It may be recollected that he stated in his budget speech that those which had heretofore been imposed for the support of light-houses would be removed. The duties proposed to be collected hereafter are as follows: For the relief of sick and disabled mariners, two cents per ton register on vessels arriving from sea, no vessel of 100 tons or less to be subjected to the payment of such duty more than once in any one year, nor any other vessel more than twice in one year. For the maintenance of the River and Harbor Police, a duty of three cents per ton register on all vessels entering from sea.

The Leader takes ground against the issue of a Special Commission for the trial of the prisoners now in custody, charged with complicity in the murder of Mr. McGee, and trusts that the Local Government will resist the appeals made to it on that behalf, holding that the law should take its course. It is quite true, that under ordinary circumstances that would be eminently proper; but as this is a case of an entirely exceptional character, requiring in its elucidation more time perhaps than is ordinarily allotted to the whole Assizes in any two counties in Ontario, it is quite clear that a reason exists for a Special Commission, entirely independent of the consideration of popular feeling for swift justice. The Leader truly represents the feeling of the country, when it says that "there is no desire that any one should suffer punishment beyond his deserts;" but we cannot see that the expediting of a trial by a few months is at all likely to lead to the consequence hinted at; on the contrary, the lapse of time involves the risk of loss of testimony, a loss as likely to fall upon one party to a suit as another, and the Special Commission, while giving equal facilities for the dispensation of even-handed justice, has this merit over the Fall Assize Courts, that it would spare all parties concerned the delay and uncertainty which the latter involves. However, as we have said before, the question is not one for us to pronounce upon. Those who know the facts of the case better than we do, and who are responsible for the due administration of the law, will no doubt arrive at a correct conclusion. In the meantime, we believe we are correct in saying that public opinion in this part of the country is unanimous in favor of the view to which we gave expression a few days ago.

The Globe of yesterday announces that there is to be no Special Commission issued for the trial of the prisoners—that "such is "Mr. Sandfield Macdonald's decision." If the matter has been finally determined in this way it will be generally regretted here, though from the tone of both the Leader and Globe we must infer that opinion in the Provincial Capital favors the delay of the trials until the Fall Assizes. The Globe admits the force of some of the reasons urged in favor of the Commission, but commends the decision of the Ontario Premier.

The Leader says:—

"We have previously expressed the belief that the Dominion of Canada could quite as well as Victoria afford to pay its Governor £10,000 stg.; and that there is no great credit in bringing ourselves down to the level of a colony like Jamaica. We are still of this belief. But we have never said—we have never thought of conveying the idea, that this sum should not be made to cover all the "miscellaneous expenses" of the gubernatorial residence. If Parliament is to go through the mere farce of seeming to cut down the Governor's salary, and thus relieve His Excellency of the duty of entertaining, which is so necessary to the proper maintenance of vice-regal state, whilst at the same time more than the sum which has been lopped off will be made up in other ways, we do not see that the country will gain very much by the change which has been made."

THE BITER BIT.

A semi-clerical looking young man of polished exterior and good address spent a few days in Ottawa in the early part of the week, having come from the United States on the pretence of giving important information relative to the murder of Mr. McGee. His movements were not very assuring to the keen observation of those entrusted with the investigation, and his information was speedily discovered to be worthless, if not made entirely of "whole cloth." He attracted general attention by his poking into all corners around the Russell House, and finally applied to Mr. O'Reilly for a Government situation. Upon this Mr. O'Reilly asked him for a certificate of character which our hero produced, as under. In the meantime other parties having been on his track, and Mr. O'Reilly desiring some independent testimony as to his character, procured the second certificate from a trustworthy source, which when put alongside that of the clergyman presents a somewhat curious contrast!

The enquiries instituted, concerning this American visitor, satisfied the authorities that he was attempting to impose upon them, but if his object, as is generally believed, was to make a haul from the Government, he was completely check-mated, for he was dismissed, after having been made aware of the discovery of his true character, and without having secured a cent. From the fact that he has been employed as a Fenian drill instructor, there is no doubt that one of his objects was to obtain, if possible, some information which might be useful to his "pupils," but in this respect, too, he was foiled, for all his efforts to pry into the proceedings were unavailing.

Look on This Picture!

THE CLERGYMAN'S CERTIFICATE.

To all to whom it may concern that ——— the bearer, whose acquaintance I formed four years ago, is, I firmly believe, a gentleman of unexceptionable moral character, and the reputation I have of him from those who have known him for a much longer period, fully justifies the high esteem in which he is held by me. His father I also know to be a gentleman of high moral and social standing.

Pastor of —— Church.

THE DETECTIVE OFFICER'S CERTIFICATE.

I know ——— ———. I also knew his two brothers, W. and F., who are now in the States prison, one for fifteen and the other for eighteen years, for robbing a man by the name of G. in the town of L. I also know his father and sister who have both been under arrest. This man was arrested twice for crimes in the United States. He is known as a drill master for the Fenians in G. There is no doubt he is a desperate character.

——May 5, 1868.

The facts above mentioned were known to the Citizen and ourselves on Wednesday evening, when our hero got his dismissal from the Russell House, but it was deemed advisable not to notice the matter. Since, however, the Montreal papers of this morning had a brief statement of the affair, the publication of the whole facts of the case will, so far from doing harm, shew that the authorities at Ottawa are not so easily humbugged as some speculative gentlemen with "high moral characters" may imagine.

COURT OF CHANCERY.

The court sat again yesterday, when the case Butler vs. Church, taken up on Wednesday evening, was resumed. This was a suit brought against the representative of the late William Hodgins, for the specific performance of an agreement for the sale of land alleged by the plaintiff to have been made by the late William Hodgins, in his lifetime, and since his death the property had been resold by his representatives. The defendants' contention was that the agreement for purchase had been given up by the plaintiff before Hodgins' death. This case occupied the court all day, and was not concluded when our reporter left.

LOCAL NEWS.

Grand Concert.—We beg to remind our readers of the grand concert which takes place to-morrow evening at the theatre.

The New Church at New Edinburgh.—The laying of the corner stone of this church will take place to-morrow, at 11 a.m. The ceremony will be performed by His Excellency.

Auction Sale this Evening.—Remember the great auction sale of dry goods this evening at 7 o'clock, at Prud'homme's store, Sussex street. Great bargains may be had.

The Congregational Church.—We are informed that the Rev. Alex. McGreggor, from Brockville, will, D. V., preach in the Congregational Church, next Sabbath morning and evening.

Fine coral jewellery, bog oak jewellery and a large collection of other goods suitable for wedding and other presents can be seen at Young & Radford's; all new and choice goods and will be sold cheap.

Auction Sale To-day.—Mr. Tackaberry, auctioneer, advertises to sell to-day, at his auction rooms, Rideau street, a number of very fine mink skins. Parties interested would do well to attend, as the stock must be sold. Sale at 2 o'clock.

The Weather.—Although for the last few nights we have had severe frosts, vegetation throughout this region looks well. The fall and spring wheat looks remarkably healthy and quite able to bid defiance to the worst that the frost can reasonably be expected to do.

Bank Street Church.—The corner stone of this Church will be laid to-day, at half-past one o'clock. The Rev. Mr. Moore, Pastor of the Church, will direct the ceremonies. A number of members of Parliament, and other distinguished gentlemen, will assist. The public are invited to attend.

The Female Lunatic.—In the case of the lunatic we noticed yesterday, in which the patient was refused admission to the jail, a warrant was issued which will have the effect of bringing the case to trial probably to-morrow, and it is to be hoped that it will settle the question as to what shall be done in similar cases.

The New Police Appointments.—The names of the new policemen appointed on Wednesday evening are Durocher, Todd, Holland, Acres and McGarry. Constable John Brown has been promoted to the rank of Sergeant, so that now there are two Sergeants in the force. Sergeant Brown is an old and deserving officer and his promotion gives general satisfaction.

The Lumbering Interest.—We are sorry to learn that in consequence of the scarcity of water in the Ottawa river this spring, none of the saw mills will run a night gang, as the saw logs cannot be got out of the small creeks in the lumbering country. This is the more to be regretted as it deprives many families in this locality of the means of subsistence on which they have heretofore relied.

Messrs. Young & Radford having secured the services of first-class working jewellers in etruscan, filagree, plain, fancy and solid gold work, and having made large additions to their work shop are now better prepared to execute any orders with which they may be entrusted than heretofore. Masonic jewels, gold and silver medals, and every kind of gold and silver work done on the shortest possible notice. Remember the place, 30 Sparks-st., and encourage home manufacture.

Larceny.—Two girls, named Margaret and Kate O'Connor, servant girls in the employ of Mr. Michael Kavanagh, were arrested last night for purloining some articles of wearing apparel. Taking advantage, as it appears, of the death of Mrs. Kavanagh, they are alleged to have gathered up sundry articles which did not belong to them, and put them in their trunks. One of them was discharged, and the other left with her last evening. Being suspected, they were followed and arrested with the goods in their possession, and put in the lock-up. The circumstances of the case will be made public at the Police Court this morning.

Personal.—Yesterday afternoon Lady Monck and the Hon. Miss Monck, honored the Protestant Hospital with a visit. The President, Judge Armstrong, and Dr. Grant, M.P., escorted the distinguished visitors over the building, every part of which they minutely inspected, and were pleased to express their entire satisfaction with the general arrangements of the institution. They especially commended the care and attention which was evident in the management of the sick, and the cleanliness which everywhere prevails. The visit was extremely gratifying to the poor patients, and the kind enquiries of the noble ladies as to their condition, and wishes for their speedy recovery, will be long and gratefully remembered.

THE CANADIAN PARLIAMENT.

THE SENATE.

Wednesday, May 6, 1868.

Hon. Mr. CHAPAIS (in French) wished to oppose the motion, with all his force and energy, as premature and uncalled for at the present time, without even giving the present arrangement time to develope itself. Surely hon. members were suffering no grievous wrong at this time, that we must at the end of the first Session under the new Union Act, raise such a discussion with these thin benches. Even under the elective system the Government had the nominating power and the system worked well. Ours was as nearly as circumstances would permit a transcript of the British Constitution, so that this House might be styled the House of Lords of Canada. He could not agree with the remarks of the hon. member (Mr. Sanborn) that all deliberative bodies, from the highest to the lowest, claimed and exercised the right of selecting their own Speaker. We see that the Mayors of Montreal and other large cities are not selected by the members of their councils, but by another power, so that the purity of reasoning does not hold good in municipal affairs. He considered it much better to give our new constitution a fair trial, and not be seeking to alter one of its leading features before it was one year in existence. It would be more creditable to us as a people in the eyes of the British nation, and much safer for our own monarchical form of Government, (which form we all revere and have affirmed as the best, time and again, in this House and elsewhere). Besides it was possible in the course of events, that the office of Speaker might at some future day be united with some other department under the Government, and thus carry out the ideas of economy for which this House contends on all occasions.

Hon. Mr. MACPHERSON said the resolution was premature, and the fact of its coming so soon after we have assembled under our new Constitution was as strong an argument as could be advanced against it. He agreed with the hon. mover who said that if the resolutions of the Quebec Conference had not been considered in the light of a treaty, there probably would be a very strong vote for amending the resolution providing for the Speaker of this House being appointed by the Government. He thought that when the Legislative Council of Canada were deliberating upon this subject that they believed the system would be continued of the Speaker's occupying the position of a Minister of the Crown, without a Department, which might be desirable under the new system where there would not be a necessity for as many Departments as under the old one. If the Speaker was only to be the presiding officer of the Senate it was very difficult to see why he should have been appointed, and why this body should not have the privilege of electing their own presiding officer, as almost every other deliberative body in the country does. The Hon. Minister of Agriculture had alluded to municipalities that did not elect their presiding officers. He (Mr. Macpherson) did not think those cases were in point. The Vice-President of the United States was elected as Vice-President, and was ex-officio President of the Senate, but if his office becomes vacant, the Senate elect their own presiding officer. He (Mr. Macpherson) thought the discussion would do good, but he hoped the hon. mover would not press his motion to a division, as the discussion upon it was all that was required at present. He thought it impossible for the present system to continue, unless there was some stronger reason given in the future why the presiding officer of this House should be appointed by the Crown; and when they asked to be allowed to elect their own Speaker, he was quite certain the British Parliament would not refuse to grant their request, but he thought they should not so soon ask them to amend the Constitutional Act, after its being passed with so much deliberation.

Hon. Mr. FERRIER quite agreed with what had been said by his hon. friend (Mr. Macpherson). He thought that if the Speaker was appointed a member of the Government there was a danger of his exercising too much control over this House. It would show a want of stability and sober thought to pass this motion, because there ought to be some very good and sufficient reasons before the Senate should recommend any change in the Constitution. There was no doubt but this Union Act, like everything else, was defective, but they should try for the next five years to work it out in the best possible manner. He thought this discussion would have a good effect, but he trusted that no alterations would take place in the old Constitution, until they had had three or four years experience with it.

Hon. Mr. ALLAN also expressed a hope that the motion would not be pressed to a division. He agreed with the principle of the motion, but he thought the House should not assent to it at the present time. He wished it to be distinctly understood that we were discussing this question without any reference to the gentleman who presides over the Senate. This House should have the right to elect its Speaker, and by asserting this now, we cannot be charged with showing any want of stability, or that we had not properly made up our minds before, because when the Act of last Session was before us, we were obliged to accept it as a whole. He thought at some future day this change should be made, and then those who had served in the House for a length of time would have a right to look forward to fill that position, but at the present time it would be unwise after so short an experience of the working of the Constitution to ask for changes to be made.

Hon. Mr. BENSON said that after hearing the arguments which had been advanced, he felt very much inclined to meet the views of those who wish the matter deferred until a future period. He was in favor of the principle of the motion, but under the circumstances would rather see it deferred. They should wait until they saw what changes were required in the Act, and then they could all be made at the same time.

Hon. Mr. ARMAND (in French) was inaudible, but was understood to say that this resolution was ill-advised and uncalled-for at this time, when we should give the present system a fair trial, particularly as it is possible that the office of Speaker may be united with that of some other Department of the Government soon.

Hon. Mr. HOLMES said the motion was contrary to his views. He found it stated in the 24th section of the Union Act, that "the Governor-General shall, from time to time, in the Queen's name, summon qualified persons to the Senate, and subject to the provisions of this Act. Every person so summoned shall become and be a member of the Senate and a Senator." Therefore this House being chosen by the representative of the Queen, did not come under the same rule as the House of Commons, or corporations who had a right to choose their own chairman. He hoped the resolution would be withdrawn as he should be sorry to see it put to a vote. He had served in the Legislative Council for as long a period as any gentleman present, and he had always endeavored to support the powers that be so long as they were right.

Hon. Mr. BOTSFORD said this was a subject of deep interest, and one upon which every member of the Senate should express an opinion, but this could not now be had in the absence of so many members of the House; therefore the measure should not be pressed to a division. It seemed to him that there was nothing constitutionally wrong in the Senate seeking to have a change made in the Constitution, by which we will be able to secure the most competent member of this Senate, having the best knowledge of the usages of Parliament, to preside over our deliberations. In looking at the present mode of appointment, we must consider, that it is not the Queen that makes the appointment, and strictly speaking it is not even the members of the Government, because the Government only exists by having a majority of the representatives of the people to support them. Therefore if we come to analyze the appointment, it is the people, through their representatives, who make it, and it is objectionable from that point of view. He took it for granted that it was quite right for this Senate by petition to bring the matter before the Imperial Parliament, and he would suggest to the hon. mover that the selection of a presiding officer should not take place at the commencement of each Parliament, but that his appointment should be for a certain period, because it might be inconvenient for this Senate at every dissolution of Parliament, to be called upon to elect their presiding officer.

Hon. Mr. McCULLY said he had taken an active part in framing this Constitution, and he was not now afraid of discussing the merits of this particular point. When this Constitution was framed, he was one of those who advocated the principle that the Speaker of the Senate should be appointed by the Government of the day, and he had not since changed his mind upon the subject. He believed then, and he believed still, that this mode of appointment was more in uniformity with the principles of that body to which we are to some extent assimilated, than it would be to have the Speaker elected by this House. He had listened with a great deal of attention to the remarks of his hon. friend, (Mr. Sanborn), but they had failed to convince him that the analogy he mentioned should apply to this House. He was not aware of any instance of a constitutional legislative body which was appointed by Her Majesty, or Her Majesty's representative, having conferred upon them the power to elect their own Speaker. Some hon. gentlemen have stated that this House, being appointed by the Queen, the analogy between this Senate and the House of Lords did not hold good, but that like the House of Commons we should elect our Speaker. He contended that this body, not having been elected by the people, the Speaker, like the Lord Chancellor, should be a nominee of the Crown. He was disappointed in the way in which the Government have exercised that power. When the Union Act was framed it was expected that the Speaker of this House should hold the same relation to the House that the Lord Chancellor does in the House of Lords in England, that is, he should be a member of the Administration, and should go out with the retiring Administration, and come in with the new. It is said that the Speaker now being an officer of the Government, the incoming Government would have the power to remove him. That may be done, but he not being an officer of the Cabinet it would not be desirable for them to exercise that power, but if he was a member of the Cabinet he would be obliged to retire.

Hon. Mr. FERRIER thought the Speaker of the Senate should be a member of the Administration, and in that way we would save the salary of one of the heads of Departments. As they were now discussing this matter, he was prepared to express his opinion before the House and country. He thought it was unfortunate that the Governor-General should have selected a member of a Local Legislature to preside over the debates and proceedings of this House, which was one of the most dignified bodies in this Dominion. It requires a gentleman of large experience to preside over this Senate, and it could hardly be expected that a gentleman coming from a Local Legislature would be as familiar with the order of this branch of the Legislature as those who for a long period have held seats in this House. He thought a change should be made in the mode of appointing their Speaker, but it was exceedingly undesirable that this Dominion should seek for a change in their Constitution so soon after its organization. The House, therefore, should well consider before approaching the Throne with an application founded upon this resolution. He was not surprised that his hon. friend had made this motion, nor did he much regret it, for many reasons, but still unless it was carried by a very large majority he could hardly expect to found an address upon it that would be expected to prevail at any very early day elsewhere.

Hon. Mr. WARK said this was not the first time the members of the House had had an opportunity of expressing their views upon this subject, for there was scarcely a member around these benches but had an opportunity, either when this matter was discussed in the mother country, or when it was before the respective branches of the Colonial Legislatures, of expressing their views in regard to this Constitution, had they felt disposed to do so. Whatever our individual opinion may be in respect to having the Speaker appointed by the House or Government, every one appeared to admit that it would be premature to get up an agitation to change the Constitution before we have had time to test it. He did not think it would be proper for a deliberative body like this to add their weight and influence to the movement going on in Nova Scotia, by deciding here, before the close of this Session of Parliament, that we are dissatisfied with the present state of things, and want a change. Therefore, he thought it would be exceedingly imprudent for this House to adopt this motion at the present time, and he hoped that the hon. mover would take the suggestions that had been made by so many members of the House and withdraw the motion. It had been said that if the Speaker of the House was a member of the Government, it would give the Government an undue influence in the Senate. He did not think so, for it had frequently been the custom for the chairman to take part in the debate, and the Lord Chancellor of England even introduces Bills into the House of Lords. This gave the Speaker an influence in the House, but not in any way to affect his decision upon any subject. He thought that it might be more economical for the Speaker to be a member of the Government. His hon. friend (Mr. McCully) was mistaken when he said these were all Crown appointments; the Legislative Council of New Brunswick had the right to elect their President, and they exercised that right. We obtained that privilege, not by an appeal to the Imperial Parliament, but through an address, and the power was acceded to us by a despatch from the Colonial Office, but in this case the change could be made only by the Imperial Parliament amending our Act of Union, which it is not desirable to change so soon after its coming into operation.

Hon. Mr. LOCKE supported the resolution, and would oppose its withdrawal. The argument in favor of Nova Scotia's discontent with the actual state of things was strengthened by the introduction of such a resolution as this one. He had no fault to find with the present Speaker, who always treated him with the most gentlemanly urbanity, and the politeness which was characteristic of his countrymen; but it was with the exercise of this nominating power that he was dissatisfied, and he thought this House should assert its own dignity and prerogatives, and take the election of its own Speaker in their own hands.

Hon. Mr. MITCHELL regretted that the hon. mover had introduced this motion, and had followed it up by the speech which he made.

Hon. Mr. LETELLIER de ST. JUST—I had a bad example.

Hon. Mr. MITCHELL did not know what his hon. friend meant by a bad example; he had not heard a word from him (Mr. Mitchell), as he had been wonderfully reticent upon the matter, but it was not because he did not feel any interest in the question. The House must not conceive, that because the Government have not thought it necessary to go into the matter at any length in answer to the charges brought against them in the appointment of the Speaker, either in the manner of the selection, or in the selection itself, that they are not able to justify their action to the House and country, but as the hon. mover had agreed to withdraw the resolution for the present, he would defer his reply to a future period, when he would be prepared to defend the action of the Government in this matter.

Hon. Mr. LETELLIER de ST. JUST would withdraw his resolution on the assurance given by the hon. members of the Government and of this House, that on some future occasion when there would be a larger attendance of the members in their seats, and more time, the discussion could be taken up and proceeded with until the sense of the House could be taken. He was determined to do so, as he felt strongly on the subject, and would do all in his power to have the evil redressed. He was not afraid of discussion on this or any other subject. On the contrary he courted it. He could not avoid saying before he sat down that he was convinced that three-fourths of the members of this House were dissatisfied with the appointment, and the way it was made, from the discussion we had before on this subject, but as he would bring up the matter again, he would say no more at present, but begged to withdraw the resolution.

The resolution was then withdrawn.

Hon. Mr. LOCKE enquired whether the Government have taken any action in filling the vacancy in the Senate caused by the death of the late Hon. Mr. Weir, and, if not, is it their intention to fill up said vacancy before the close of this Session?

Hon. Mr. KENNY said it was the intention of the Government to fill up that vacancy at as early a date as possible.

SECOND REPORT OF THE JOINT COMMITTEE ON THE LIBRARY.

Hon. Mr. ALLAN then moved the adoption of the second Report of the Joint Library Committee. He complained of the various proposals made for managing the Parliamentary Library by the Librarian and his Assistants, who would be officers of this branch of the Legislature, as well as of the Commons House.

Hon. Mr. STEEVES asked if the proposed increase of $400 yearly to Mr. Todd as Librarian, and of $300 to his Assistant Mr. Lajoie, and of $150 to Mr. Laperriere yearly, was to be added over and above the present salaries?

Hon. Mr. ALLAN said, yes; and went on to defend the propriety and justice of the additional allowances to the present library staff.

Hon. Mr. McCULLY could not understand why this Joint Committee should make a separate report in which the action of the other House was not referred to at all. Now was the time when this Joint Committee of the Library have taken this subject up, that we should understand distinctly what our rights and relations to the library are. If the library was a joint library for the House of Commons and Senate, he could not understand how this House could give up any portion of its privileges of paying, or of assisting in the payment of the Librarian. According to the report Mr. Todd was Librarian for the House of Commons, and we to get his services must pay him $400 as he is not our officer. He did not believe that was a right principle. He had no objection to an increase in Mr. Todd's salary, for he was a man well versed in constitutional history, and had published a work which was a great credit to himself as well as to Canada. He was a gentleman of high standing, and should be paid for his services, but at the same time he (Mr. McCully) was not prepared to admit that this House should not have a right to the patronage and the payment of half that gentleman's salary, and he should be equally at the command of members of the Senate as well as the House of Commons. He had been chairman of a Joint Committee appointed by the Legislature of Nova Scotia, and that committee had prepared a joint report at each Session, the Librarian there being appointed by the Government was Librarian for both Houses, and he was paid out of the revenues of the country according to the recommendation of that committee. It would be best to have this matter settled upon a proper foundation, in order to know whether the members of this Senate have a right to go into the library and ask the services of the Librarian the same as members of the other branch of the Legislature, whose officer this report declares him to be.

Hon. Mr. BOTSFORD said he had suggested to the chairman of the Committee that it was desirable that the Joint Committee should meet and make a joint report in regard to this matter, and submit it for the approval of the Senate and House of Commons.

Hon. Mr. CAMPBELL said he quite agreed with the members of the Committee that the services of Mr. Todd were of the most valuable character, and it was desirable that some additional consideration should be given him for information which he has given to the members of the Legislature, and for the additional duties which have been imposed upon him. He would suggest that the matter had better be referred back again to the Committee, and let them determine upon a salary to be adopted conjointly by both Houses of Parliament.

Hon. Mr. ALLAN, after making a few remarks, said he had no objection to withdrawing the report, so that the suggestion of the Postmaster-General could be carried out.

The report was then withdrawn and referred to the Joint Committee for further consideration.

A message was brought from the House of Commons with a Bill intituled: "An Act to confirm the amalgamation of the Commercial Bank of Canada, and the Merchants' Bank, and to amend and consolidate the Acts of incorporation of the said Banks," read a first time and ordered for Friday next.

The House then adjourned.

Thursday, May 7, 1868.

After routine,

Hon. Mr. TESSIER moved, seconded by Hon. Mr. Bourinot, that an humble address be presented to His Excellency the Governor-General, praying that His Excellency will be pleased to cause to be laid before this House copies of the reports made by John Page, Esq., Engineer of the Public Works Department, on the subject of the deepening of Lake St. Peter, in virtue of an order in Council, made about the 1st of July, 1862?

Hon. Mr. CAMPBELL said his hon. friend would remember that he (Mr. Campbell) had said the other day that though reports had been made the Government had received no final report.

Hon. Mr. CHAPAIS said the report required was not completed, though considerable progress had been made with it. The engineer in charge, from a professional sense of duty to the public service, and to his own reputation, wished time to verify the soundings which had been made last fall. Still it is possible new soundings might discover some changes after the winter season. Hence the hon. mover would see that it was impossible under the circumstances to bring down the report asked for just now, but he assured the House no time would be lost, as they felt its importance for the shipping of the country.

Hon. Mr. TESSIER regretted that the required information could not be furnished until after this Session, as the public are anxious to hear what progress has been made with this work.

The motion was then carried.

IMMIGRATION—ADDRESS.

Hon. Mr. RYAN moved, seconded by Mr. Ross, that an humble address be presented to His Excellency the Governor-General, praying that His Excellency will be pleased to cause to be laid before this House, copies of all correspondence which has taken place from the 1st of January last, to the present date, between the Hon. the Minister of Agriculture and the Emigrant Agents at Hamilton, Toronto, Kingston, Ottawa, Montreal, Sherbrooke, Quebec, St. John, N. B., Halifax, and any port or ports in Europe, having reference to the probable extent and character of the immigration of 1868, as well as to the arrangements made and means provided or to be provided in aid and encouragement of such immigration.

Hon. Mr. RYAN said the subject of immigration was one which had always occupied a great deal of attention, not alone of the Legislature but of the country generally, and as this question was subject to new regulations, we should know how immigration to this country is affected by those regulations, and by the new system under which the Government of the country is administered. As he wished the House to obtain the fullest information in regard to immigration, and how it is to be fostered in this country, he would add to the resolution just read: "Also copies of any correspondence which has taken place between the Government of the Dominion and any of the Local Governments upon the same subject." He had mentioned the other day that the great attraction to induce immigrants to settle in the country, was that of having land to give them. The Dominion Government having no land, can make them no grants of land, that being in the possession of the Local Governments. Therefore it was important for us to know what steps the Dominion Government have taken in this matter, and to know whether the Local Governments are willing to co-operate with them in order to settle the country. He would suggest that as soon as the arrangements are completed for building the Intercolonial Railway—and we all presume that it will be built very shortly—inducements should be held out to immigrants to induce them to settle along that line. There is very good land along that line of railway, which will be at the disposal of the Local Governments, and they should make a provision that those who work for a certain term to the satisfaction of their employers, should be allowed to settle upon those lands upon very easy terms, in order to encourage immigration to the country. His object in making this motion was to learn whether any arrangements had been made with the Local Governments in regard to inducements being held out to promote immigration, and also to induce those who come from Europe, to remain and settle in Canada, instead of passing through to the U. States. A great deal of the money granted in past years for the encouragement of immigration, had been unprofitably laid out in Quebec and other ports, instead of being distributed in such a way as would induce immigrants to settle in the country.

Hon. Mr. CHAPAIS—The Government would grant the required correspondence most willingly, as the subject was one in which the whole country takes a deep interest. The Government wished to encourage a good class of immigrants to this country, and also to the Maritime Provinces. But the abuse by agents at the ports of Europe of the name of the Canadian Government was much to be deplored—poor emigrants would land at the port of Quebec with letters on them from agents telling them that the Government would send them on to their destination free of expense, thus deceiving these poor people, and in many instances inflicting great hardships on them. This evil should be guarded against in future as much as possible. The number of emigrants landing on our shores last season was greater by 7,000 than the previous years. But as the great bulk of them only passed through the country to join their friends in the west, this country derived little or no benefit from them. Wages were good in Canada, and all the necessaries of life much cheaper than in the United States; but there the public works always going on induced the flood of European immigration to run to that country. We here should use all our energies and exertions to attract foreign immigration and to prevent the emigration of les enfants du sol, who are daily leaving this country in crowds to find employment elsewhere. The Local Governments should bestir themselves also, and see to encourage the establishment of manufactures and the opening and development of the industrial resources of this great country. Grants of land along the line of the proposed Intercolonial railroad will tend much to attract population when these works commence this season. This Government will do all in its power to forward the object of immigration and settlement of our vast expanse of country, but much more onerous obligations rest with the Local Governments, who are the proper parties to carry out the proposed facilities for settling the public domaine of this Canada.

Hon. Mr. MACPHERSON said it was very true that their efforts to induce immigration had failed, but he thought those efforts were not well directed as they consisted mainly of an establishment at Quebec, and most of the immigrants who arrived there went on to the United States. In his opinion, the money spent upon that and similar establishments, and for paying the passage of immigrants, was not wisely spent. Instead of devoting this money to that purpose, they should have given those immigrants lands to settle upon, and then we would have had a large immigration which would have added largely to the population of the country. While we set a high price upon our lands, and were making no efforts in Europe to get immigrants to come to our shores, the United States by national agents, and agents sent out by private enterprise, were making prodigious efforts for this purpose, and they were successful.

Hon. Mr. CHAPAIS said that free lands were given to the settler, and work on the roads in Canada.

Hon. Mr. MACPHERSON said that was quite true, but those lands were of inferior quality, being in a rocky part of the country where the land was not suitable for agricultural purposes. The immigrant would not reside upon such land when he could get 150 acres of prairie land in the United States free. There was nothing attractive in the land given to the settler in Canada, and so soon as the road was constructed his wages ceased, and he left for the United States. That is not the policy which should be pursued by the Government; they should open up roads through the best lands of the country to induce immigrants to settle on them. Some years ago he (Mr. Macpherson) was on the continent of Europe, and he took some pains to look into the manner in which emigration was conducted there. He found at all the leading ports both consuls and shipping agents very busy in inducing men to emigrate to the United States. Numerous placards were posted up, offering free lands in the most attractive part of the United States to those who would emigrate, and the consuls were acting as emigration agents, as all should do. It was a great mistake made by this country in not having qualified emigration agents in Europe; if we had sent such agents there as were sent by the United States, the Minister of Immigration would not have had to make the mortifying statement which he has had to make to-day. The tide of immigration is now setting strongly towards the Western States, and it would be very difficult to change it. He agreed with the Minister of Agriculture, that they ought not to contribute largely, or at all, to pay the passage of people out of the country, for it would be far better to pay their passage into the country on condition of their remaining here. The Dominion Government had very little power to attract immigrants into the country since the management of the public land has passed into the hands of the Local Governments. All they can do now is to co-operate with the Local Governments in this matter, and this they should do. He expressed his regret that the Minister of Agriculture had not seen fit to put himself into communication with those Governments and induce them to offer attractions to immigrants. If he had done so those Local Legislatures might have passed more liberal measures which would have brought immigrants into the country. We should do all we can to show that there is a real value in our wooded lands—that we have a salubrious climate—and that for the emigrant after the lapse of a reasonable time, it is a more desirable country than that which at first sight appears more attractive. If these advantages were put before the emigrants who arrive in this country, and they were informed that our taxation was so much lighter than the taxation in the United States, it might induce a great many of them to settle in this country.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.

Thursday, May 7, 1868.

The SPEAKER took the chair at three o'clock.

PETITIONS FOR MONEY GRANTS.

Upon the question of the reception of the petition of Thomas Rigney, which had been under discussion previously,

Hon. Sir G. E. CARTIER stated the views of the Government upon the subject of the manner in which such petitions praying for money grants should be dealt with. If any hon. member considered that the Government were not taking sufficiently prompt action, he could move an address for a copy of the petition, and leave the administration open to the censure of the House, if it should seem that their course was in error.

After some further discussion Hon. Messrs. HOLTON, GRAY and DUNKIN,

The SPEAKER read his decision declaring that upon the precedent of the English House of Commons, by which the House was in all undefined cases to be guided, all petitions affecting the public treasury must be held to be inadmissible.

The motion for the reception of the petition was then allowed to drop.

JUDGE LAFONTAINE.

Upon the question for the reception of the petition presented by Mr. A. WRIGHT against Judge Lafontaine,

Hon. Mr. HOLTON pointed out that this was a preliminary step towards impeachment, and suggested that the point at issue was of sufficient importance to necessitate the printing of the petition prior to its being received.

Hon. C. DUNKIN thought that such petitions should be accompanied by bonds for sufficient security as in the case of election petitions.

Mr. WRIGHT hoped that the House would not refuse to receive the petition, which was the prayer for redress of numerous and respectable subscribers, and which he proposed to follow up by moving for a Committee of Enquiry.

Sir J. A. MACDONALD urged the withdrawal of the motion for reception to-day, and said that after the petition had been printed in English and French, it might be brought on again to-morrow.

After some further discussion by Mr. McKENZIE, Hon. Mr. HOLTON, and Mr. MORRIS, the petition was received.

BAGOT SELECT COMMITTEE.

Messrs. Mills, Masson (Terrebonne), Masson (Soulanges), Merritt, and Wood (chairman) were then sworn at the table to serve upon the Select Committee for trial of Bagot election petition. (Mr. Gendron, sitting member.)

FISHERIES.

Mr. FORTIN presented the fourth report of the Committee on Fisheries, recommending the continuance of the inspection of Inland Fisheries, as necessary to their protection.

GOVERNMENT BILLS.

The following Bills were, on the motion of Sir J. A. MACDONALD, read a third time and passed,

An Act for the better security of the Crown and Government.

An Act respecting offences relating to the coin.

An Act respecting forgery.

An Act respecting offences against the person.

An Act respecting malicious injuries to property.

An Act respecting larceny and other similar offences.

An Act respecting riots and riotous assemblies.

Upon the motion for the third reading respecting Aliens and Naturalization (from Senate),

Hon. C. DUNKIN referred to cases of gentlemen who had held and were holding important offices who had never been formally naturalized, and suggested that a clause should be inserted protecting such persons from any future objection as aliens.

Mr. McKENZIE entirely dissented, mentioning the case of one gentleman against whom it was charged that he claimed citizenship of two nationalities, a point still undecided.

After some remarks from Mr. YOUNG,

The Bill was read a third time and passed, as also were the Bills,

An Act respecting the removal of persons in custody charged with treason or felony in certain cases.

An Act to amend the Act of the late Province of Canada, 25 Vic., cap. 72, by declaring the intention of the same, and confirming conveyance made by the Trust and Loan Company thereunder.

DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE.

The House then went into Committee, Mr. MORRIS in the chair, upon the Bill, an Act respecting the Department of Justice (from Senate,) which was reported without amendment, and passed through the first stage.

FORTIFICATIONS.

Mr. McKENZIE resumed the adjourned debate upon the proposed motion of Sir G. E. Cartier, that Mr. Speaker do now leave the chair for the House to go into Committee of Whole to consider certain resolutions to provide a sum not exceeding £1,100,000 sterling to defray the expense of constructing works of fortification for the defence of Montreal and other cities, stating that he proposed approaching the subject in no sectional manner, and repudiating the assumption that his objections to the measure were taken only in the economic interests of Ontario. He regretted that the subject should be brought down so late in the Session, and that opportunity had not been given for a fuller discussion upon so important a question as was involved in the assumption of so heavy a responsibility. He feared that this was done designedly, and with the object of passing the resolutions with as little discussion as possible. It had been said that the measure was rendered obligatory by the demands of the British Government, but he denied the right either of that Government or its Legislature to dictate to our own. Referring to the reasons given by the Minister for withholding the details of their scheme, he denied that this course was warranted by home precedent, and went on to argue that the reserved power of the Imperial Government with regard to the declaration of war by which the colonies would become involuntarily involved, carried with it the obligation to provide for colonial defence, reading at great length from the report of a royal commission in support of his view, which was farther strengthened by consideration of the national interest in maintaining a profitable colonial trade, to which it was stated that the Australian group alone contributed an amount of £15,000,000 of exports and £13,000,000 of imports yearly. He was not inclined, however, to seek upon such grounds any undue assistance from the purse of the British tax payers, but thought that the relative proportions of defence expenses to be borne by the Empire, and the colonies, should be decided by an authoritative commission. He ridiculed the analogy drawn by the hon. Minister from the Austro-Italian Quadrilateral, the angles of which could find no counterpart in the scattered and straggling fortifications proposed. We had now instituted in Canada the most complete militia organization of any portion of the British Empire, which had, however, as yet produced results mainly noticeable on paper. Reverting to the question of fortifications, he contended that the commercial ports of the west were quite indefensible. Any existing English defences were mainly concentrated round the great naval arsenals, and of the points proposed to be defended here, Kingston was the only one which bore any resemblance, however faint, to the position of Portsmouth, Plymouth, or Dartmouth, and he maintained that it was contrary to all constitutional usage to invite, on such slender information, so large a vote to be expended on details which were kept back from the House. The result would be that the works, which would necessarily be constructed under Imperial engineer specification and supervision, would have to be carried to their completion according to Imperial plan, let the cost be what it might, and would occasion an unforeseen drain upon the Treasury for many years. The defences proposed for Toronto and Hamilton would be quite valueless to resist invasion, or to protect the coasts of Lake Huron, and the whole of the western country, which would be still liable to foreign occupation. The defence of England, it had been now agreed, must be undertaken at sea, and it had been found that all the heaviest guns that could be placed would be insufficient to prevent an enemy's ironclad fleet running up to the very heart of the dockyards. We could trust to no naval defence of our lakes, from the fact of the canals running partly on American ground, and the only practical course ever yet suggested, for the object, was to render the Ottawa river navigable and establish a naval depot on Lake Nipissing. He did not apprehend any danger of an American war, but appreciated the necessity of keeping up a good militia force, with thoroughly trained officers, commissioned and non-commissioned, but while he yielded to no one in attachment to the Crown, could not consent to so reckless an expenditure of public money for an object which he believed to be perfectly useless. We were proceeding with these measures under pressure of the Imperial authorities, which had originated in the time of the civil war, when America controlled large masses of armed men, and entertained feelings hostile to Great Britain. Both the American armies and the American hostility had sinc dissipated, and while the former was r to the point barely necessary for the pre tion of their own internal tranquility, th had yielded to the admitted conviction inutility of any movement upon this co which they could never expect to hold the wishes of the people. Reference had made to the struggle which the South inferior resources, had been so long maintain, and the occupation of territories was still taxing the utmost of Northern military power [Sir J. A. DONALD—Canada might also be occupied.] He did not believe that Am experience of conquered countries was as to induce them to further similar ments. He would not proceed at much length, having already succeeded in the Minister for Militia to sleep. (Laug [Hon. Mr. JOHNSON, — Best wa (renewed laughter)], and merely conclusion that the most effective wo be found to be those thrown up in the of emergency, such as had served the racy so well when flanking Richmond move the amendment of which he had notice, viz., that all the words after struck out and the following inserted thereof: "The question of the perman permanent works of defence should subject of enquiry by a Special or Select Committee; First, as to the ne for, and utility of, such works, and the share of the burden thereof to be borne Colonial and Imperial authorities ly; Secondly, the system of defence necessary, and cost, and that pending enquiry and report to Parliament, it expedient to vote any sum of money fications, of the nature, extent, utility of which this House was uninformed."

Mr. CARTWRIGHT agreed with the ber for Lambton that great deliberation necessary in considering the task before Although he acquitted that member of to abandon this country if he had cially retained to argue that we could maintain our position, he could not have greater justice to his brief. He referred similar motion and amendment some years ago, and the hon. member the down the amendment. What the proposed was that the matter should be out of the hands of responsible Ministers placed in the hands of a commission would not give a tithe of the time to was given by the Minister for Militia. nights ago, the member for Lambton took himself to assure us there was no war, but taking the expressions of Amer at the time of the Russian war and the mutiny, and at the time of the great di we were compelled to feel that we co look upon them as a kindred people, rather as one that we must guard against referred to the assertion by the member Lambton, that these fortifications were ed to aid the British troops in running safely, while the people will be left to fate. Such insinuations were most mischievous character, as tending lessen our confidence in our position, our ability to defend our country. He culed the idea that one shilling tax here equal to eight shillings in England. hon. member for Lambton took the trou carry out his statements, he would find the people of the Dominion paid actual teen shillings against fifty paid by the tax payer.

It being six o'clock, the Speaker left chair.

After Recess.

Mr. CARTWRIGHT continued his ment in reply to Mr. McKenzie, con that America could not be said to have temporized her army during the la which had passed through many pha struggle before it succeeded in produc proximate efficiency. Similarly, hastily erected earthworks had been to create occasionally a momentary che great works covering Washington and points of central importance, had been growth of a long combination of tim skill, and had been planned in one of the theoretical engineering schools of the w He went to assert further that the negl of Canada in regard to the system of def hitherto had occasioned grave mistrust England, so far as to induce the large drawal of invested capital, and maintain the defective training of our militia would be held at home imperative to mand the protection of entrenched camp fall back upon. It was impossible to peru the debates of the Imperial Parliament without becoming aware of an existing desire on part of Great Britain to get rid of Can responsibilities upon any honorable term possible, and it was just now especially sary to bring under attention the pecun sacrifices which we were prepared to und for the preservation of British connect and the maintenance of British naval supr acy. He desired that the value of these p vinces to the Crown should be definitely termined, and the extent to which England was disposed to protect them stated beyond further risk of misapprehension.

Mr. MASSON (Terrebonne) referred recent motion of his own for correspon affecting the subject last touched upon by previous speaker, which, while containing assurance of Mr. Cardwell that the w force of England would be available in o fence, was supplemented by later annou ments of the same Right hon. gentleman His Grace of Buckingham, and of Mr. Gl stone, to the effect that the Colonies m henceforward rely mainly on thems These doctrines appeared to him perfectly reconcileable, and the sooner the mystification of the position was cleared up the better. demands now made by the home Governm were in excess of those at first set forward, required only the fortification of Montreal had been the suggestion of our own deleg that the system should be extended to West, and this suggestion had professed to based on Col. Jervois' recommendation, which, at most, we should confine ourselves and in which Kingston and Hamilton al were comprehended. He asked that the Minister should define the several appro tions for Western localities as clearly as St. John and Montreal, instead of includ them all in one lump sum, a course e opposed to English precedent, and, altho not prepared to support the amendment, express his hope that the Government consent to supply this information at future stage of the measure, in order to the confidence which they expected from adherents. The presumption that the British Government would resent any obstructio the measure would be found to be ill-grou when that Government should come to that it was resisted only in the interests rights of Parliament which were being fringed by the reticence of the administration and had not nearly so certain a basis apprehension of the distrust that would from the insult offered the other day to the presentative of Her Majesty.

Dr. PARKER supported the requisition detailed information, without which he would not be prepared to vote the appropria and disputed the authority of Col. Jervois.

Sir J. A. MACDONALD reminded the hon member that the Colonel was at pres actually Inspector-General of Fortifications England.

Dr. PARKER continued at great length to oppose the scheme upon every ground urged against it, arguing that its enormous would be insufficient to render it other than ineffective.

Hon. Col. GRAY, referring to the forebod of the last speaker that the Imperial Gover ment would refuse the guarantee, pointed that, on the terms of the resolution, burthen would, in that case, fall of impossi on the country, and showed that the member for Wellington had, by such two-edged ar ment cut the ground from under his own fe Replying to Mr. McKenzie he referred the encounter of the year before last between the Spanish ironclads and the batteries of Callao, in which the vastly superior metal and precision of the European armament had been repulsed with heavy by the comparatively little formidable Peru vian defences. The member for Lambton assumed that hostile force could land where along our frontier, but it must be membered that they must have ships flotillas which it would take time to collect and of which ample information would be to enable us to meet them with a defensive force equal to the emergency; but if this force should be driven back, the proposed fortifi minions would form rallying points when the progress of invading forces would again be arrested. Referring to the comparison of wealth between England and Canada, he admitted that the wealth per head of the former was much greater than with us, but what we had was quite as dear to us, and we had as great an interest in defending it as they had in protecting their greater wealth. Yet in England they paid $5 per head taxes, while in Canada we only paid 25 cents. He also compared the sums paid by Massachusetts, New York, etc., for military purposes, per head, which was almost equally in excess of that paid by us, showing that in this respect Canada was taxed the lightest of any country for its defence. Taking up the amendments of the member for Lambton he showed that the appointment of a committee could lead to no practical result. The proposition of the British Government was a plain one. They pointed out what we should do, in order to secure the whole power of England in our defence, and it was ours to decide whether the protection was worth the sum involved in these fortifications, and in a militia system or not. Was our connection with the land of our fathers to be jeopardized for sums proposed.

Hon. Mr. HOLTON said he did not consider the arguments of his side of the House at all met, and he merely rose to refer to the taunt of the Minister of Militia, that he (Mr Holton) usually kept his seat when questions of this kind came up, thereby insinuating that he entertained sentiments that he did not choose to express. He would not make insinuations, but referred to the coincidence that these resolutions had not been introduced until the Imperial Government had intimated its intention of conferring certain honors on the Minister of Militia. He admitted that the time had come when we should assume the burden of our own defence. It would be dastardly if we did not; but we were also free to decide what that defence should be. He had lived half a century and had not known the necessity of fortifications. If the stern necessity of defence arose, we must trust to improvised works where attacks were likely to be made. A war might arise out of Imperial questions, and we would have to defend ourselves as best we might; but as our country would be the theatre of war, he thought the desolation that would fall upon us, would be our full contribution to Imperial interests to entitle us to the entire power of the Empire in our defence. The Minister for Militia could not possibly expect a guarantee from the Imperial Parliament during their present session, and there was therefore no immediate occasion for haste in pushing through the resolution. If the Government consented to bring down the information, asked for he would ask his friend from Lambton to withdraw his amendment. Unless this were done he must oppose the measure on the broad grounds of the impropriety of voting such sums in mass.

Hon. Mr. GALT expressed confidence that the Imperial Government had no intention to depart from the engagements entered into, and did not think it possible for the Government to take any other steps than those it was taking. With regard to expenditure, accounts would have to be brought down yearly, and Parliament had power at any time to arrest them just as the Imperial Parliament had power with regard to the coast defences of England. Desiring to maintain connection with England we must respect the conditions on which she deems it desirable to maintain that connection. She requires that we should aid in our defence, and she tells us that defences cannot be secure without an organized militia and the erection of the fortifications, for which the sum of £1,100,000 sterling is asked by the hon. Minister of Militia.

He held that the possession of this country by England tended to diminish the chance of war with the United States, as being calculated so far to complicate the contest as to render it more serious and expensive than otherwise to either country. He urged that as in present circumstances there was but one inevitable consequence of separation from England, viz.: annexation to the United States; and maintained that it was the duty of the Government to frame their policy so as to leave another course open, when at some far distant time, this eventuality might arise, and to prepare the people who were the descendants of the two greatest nations of the world for the possibility of an effective effort to maintain its own independence, and to control, as the Imperial desire looked to its controlling, its own destinies (hear, hear.) Believing that separation from English connection must result from the failure of this Parliament, to prove its ability to assert the dignity of the country by proving its readiness and ability to support its fair burthen of self-defence, he would support the Government with all earnestness, and felt it to be the duty of every patriotic member of the House to join with him in endorsing the views which he was satisfied to be alike just and far-sighted. (Loud cheers).

Hon. Mr. JOHNSON could not consent to the ratification of any supposed bargain with the Imperial Government, entered into he knew not by whom.

Hon. Mr. CHAUVEAU (in French) said that the hon. member for Sherbrooke had thrown an entirely new light upon the question, which he had viewed rather in regard to the future than to the immediate present, but he (Mr. Chauveau) trusted that if ever the separation, which had been foreshadowed were to become accomplished, it would at least be beyond the range of our own time, and asserted that it would be especially regretted by the French population, which were peculiarly attached to British rule, and distrustful of the aggressions of the neighbouring Republic.

Hon. Mr. CONNELL at some length having supported the amendment,

Mr. TREMBLAY (in French) amid much interruption, also opposed the resolution.

Mr. O CONNOR was astonished at the tone of those in this debate, who assumed that this country could not be defended, and pointed to the long extent of frontier we had to defend, forgetting that the United States had an equally long line of frontier. He spoke of the war of 1812, showing that Detroit and other parts of the United States were taken by Canada, combined with England, and although he deprecated war with the United States, it must be remembered that if it did come, we would be attacked by a people divided against themselves, and in no condition to make an aggressive war successful. The crudest argument he had ever heard was that of the member for Lambton, that we should wait for war to begin before we thought of preparing for our defence, and dwelt strongly on the advantages which fortifications at London would offer as rallying points to the loyal people of the Western Peninsula, who desired to defend themselves and their British institutions. He would not detain the House longer at that hour, but could not give a silent vote on this most important question, and took his seat amid applause, and cries of "go on."

Mr. BEATY considered this a vital question, and one that involved our connection with the mother countries and our British character. A great deal had been said about the good feeling of the United States, but he referred to the wanton attacks that had been made upon us from their shores, and if our people were not willing to tax ourselves to defend our homes and free institutions, we were not worthy of them.

Sir G. E. CARTIER at that late hour (1:30 would not attempt to follow all the various arguments of previous speakers, but contrasted the action of the member for Lambton with his course in 1865, when he had supported a resolution for appropriating a large sum for the same object. The member for Terrebonne had expressed dissatisfaction at the supposed want of explanation as to the localities to be fortified, but he reminded the House that he had mentioned each of these distinctly, the only point undecided being the open choice between Paris and London. Referring to Mr. McKenzie's charge of the studied delay in introducing the measure, he pointed out that he had given notice of it comparatively early, and even explained it in full on his motion for the second reading of the Militia Bill, the debate on which by its adjournment had occasioned the little delay that had taken place. It had been attempted to show that the country was not bound to any such scheme of fortifications, but he referred to the negotiations conducted in 1865 by Sir J. A. Macdonald, Mr. Galt, Mr. Brown, and himself, and he was confident that, if Mr. Brown was present, he would be the first to rise and repudiate such an assertion.

Mr. McKENZIE, by indulgence of the House, having made an explanatory reply,

Sir J. A. MACDONALD reminded the House of the decision previously come to as to adherence to the strict rules of debate, which the member for Lambton had insisted on violating, to the extent even of threatening that if he could not obtain his opportunity by fair means he would secure it by foul. He had then in controversion of order and arrangement used the occasion he had exorted to repeat his old arguments, and rehearse his former speech. Referring to Mr. McKenzie's assertion that the motion of 1865, for which he had voted, was but a diplomatic move intended for the deception of the English people, he indignantly repudiated the statement, which, if true, would convict the member for Lambton as party to a fraud. The hon. Premier, amid cheers, proceeded to read the report of Mr. McKenzie's speech on that occasion, in which he had protested his confidence in the then Government. On behalf of that Government he utterly denied any imputation of such base and degraded conduct as was implied in the accusation that they had desired to swindle the people or Government of England. (Loud cheers.)

Hon. Mr. GALT (amid much applause) read from the report of the debate referred to, his own declaration, that the money for which appropriation was sought should be held absolutely at the disposal of the Government for the purposes indicated.

Hon. Mr. DORION having defended Mr. McKenzie's position, and Hon. Mr. JOHNSON having several times attempted to speak, and each time being ruled out of order,

Mr. McDONALD, (Antigonish), who had heard for the first time, of the old Canadian $1,000,000 vote, thought that this share of the total $5,000,000 should be borne exclusively by Ontario and Quebec, in addition to their proportion of the remaining $4,000,000.

After some further attempt, frustrated by the impatience of the House to prolong the discussion, the House divided on Mr. McKenzie's amendment with the following result:—Yeas 51; nays 102. Majority for the Government 51. Mr. Colby and Mr. Blake for, having paired with Mr. Abbott and Mr. Sproat against.

The announcement of the numbers was received with loud cheers.

The original motion was then put and carried, and the House having gone into Committee pro forma, resumed and rose at six minutes to three this morning.

There were 139 subscribers, 56 declaring forfeit; distance about 2¼ miles, betting 8 to 1 against Derby; 100 to 7 against Caithness; 25 to 1 against Paul Jones, and 1,000 to 20 against Goodwood.

LONDON, May 7—Eve.—There was a large attendance at the House of Commons this evening, and great interest was manifested in the proceeding, a division being anticipated on the two remaining resolves, relative to the Irish Church. Soon after the House came to order Mr. Gladstone rose, and said that he proposed after the House had acted upon the resolves, introduced by himself, to offer a Suspensary Act, which should, if passed, remain in force until the first of August, 1869. He then in a few words proceeded to make an explanation of the purport and intent of the second series of resolves, and moved that it be put upon its passage.

Mr. Gathorne Hardy next rose, and said the Opposition intended to destroy the Irish Church, and the Ministry wished to alter it for the better, but after the recent vote upon the first resolve they would make no resistance to the succeeding one, or ask for a division upon its passage.

The second resolve was then adopted.

Mr. Gladstone then moved the passage of the 3rd resolve, and after some discussion, and the proposal of various amendments, nearly all of which were rejected, it was adopted in substance as follows:—Resolved, that an address be presented by the House to Her Majesty the Queen, humbly praying that to prevent by legislation at this Session, or by creating new personal interests through the use of public patronage, she would be graciously pleased to place at the disposal of Parliament her interest in the temporalities of all the dignitaries and benefices of the Church of Ireland.

BERLIN, May 7—Eve.—The North German Diet has by a decided vote rejected the address of the party of National Unity.

DARLEY'S

Arabian Heave Remedy

AND CONDITION MEDICINE

IS POSITIVELY SUPERIOR TO all other preparations for the cure of Coughs, Thick and Broken Wind, and all diseases which affect the Wind of Horses; also, as a Condition Medicine, surpassing everything of the kind; it is easy to give, sure to cure, and safe in all cases at all times, and does not prevent the horse from being worked while using it.

It cleanses the breathing apparatus, by removing from the air-cells the coagulable lymph that secretion which in heaves clogs them, causing a difficulty in breathing, and by its action on the diseased part, causing the mucous membrane to resume its natural dimensions, thus equalizing the circulation of the blood, and restoring the blood vessels to their natural size; by its use the appetite is improved, all derangements of the digestive organs corrected, softening the skin, and giving to the coat a sleek and shining appearance.

GOVERNMENT HOUSE, OTTAWA,

27th April, 1868.

PRESENT:

HIS EXCELLENCY THE GOVERNOR GENERAL IN COUNCIL.

HIS Excellency was pleased to lay before the Council a Memorandum from the Honourable the Minister of Inland Revenue, submitting for approval and adoption a draft of certain Regulations respecting the Bonding and Warehousing of goods subject to duties of Excise.

Whereupon His Excellency in Council was pleased to order, and it is hereby ordered, that the Regulations so submitted and hereinafter specified, be, and they are hereby approved, under the provisions of the 88th section, of the Act 31 Vic., cap. 8, intituled: "An Act respecting the Inland Revenue."

REGULATIONS.

1. Application for the establishment of a warehouse for excise purposes must be made in writing by the person requiring it, and every such application must fully and minutely describe the premises with their exact locality.

2. On receipt of such an application the collector of Inland Revenue will survey the premises, and if satisfied that they are suitable for the purpose, and that they afford the requisite protection to the revenue, and on their being supplied with suitable locks, he will report the facts to the department, whose authority will be required to use such warehouse as a bonding warehouse for excise purposes.

3. The principal door of ingress and egress of every such warehouse shall be provided with two locks at the expense of the owner of the goods warehoused, one of which shall be selected by the collector or by other competent authority, the key of the last named lock to be kept by the officer, and the key of the former by the owner of the goods; and should there be more doors than one all such other doors and all windows and other means of ingress shall be fastened on the inside in a secure manner to the satisfaction of the surveying officer.

4. When any warehouse has been surveyed and accepted as an excise warehouse it shall be designated by a letter commencing with A, and so on in alphabetical sequence for each succeeding warehouse surveyed within that division.

5. Over the principal entrance to every warehouse approved for excise purposes there shall be placed the following designation:

V.

EXCISE

BONDED WAREHOUSE.

With the proper letter, the whole being in legible characters in black, not less than three inches in height, painted on a white ground.

6. Goods subject to duties of excise may be warehoused in any customs warehouse within the limits of the Inland Revenue Division in which they have been manufactured, or to which they may be removed in bond under these regulations; in every such case they must be received into warehouse by the customs locker on the warrant of the collector of Inland Revenue, countersigned by the collector of customs for the port.

7. With the exception of malt no goods shall be entered for warehouse unless the duties accruing thereon amount, under one bond, to at least one hundred dollars.

8 Every package entered for warehouse must (in addition to all other marks and numbers) be distinctly numbered, in red paint mixed with oil, with the number of the entry and the date at which it was entered. The date will be sufficiently indicated by the number of the half month and the last two numerals of the year in which the entry was made;—thus, goods entered on the 20th January, 1868, may be dated 14-68; shewing that the entry was made in the fourteenth half month of the current fiscal year.

9. All entries are to be numbered consecutively, and the bonds relating to them will bear corresponding numbers.

10 Collectors of Customs having charge of bonded excise goods will keep a debit and credit account of them; and the warrant of the Collector of Inland Revenue will be the only sufficient discharge for their delivery.

11 If any goods, after having been received into warehouse, and before their actual delivery ex-warehouse, be altered in quantity, quality or strength, except by leakage, unavoidable waste, or accident, they shall be forfeited, and may be seized by any officer of Excise or Customs having a knowledge thereof.

12 In case the quantity of goods bonded in any warehouse shall, at any time or by any means, fall short or be deficient of the actual quantity which ought to be or remain warehoused, after deducting the quantities entered ex-warehouse, the owner thereof shall be subject and liable to the full duties on the balance of goods with which the warehouse stands debited, after taking an account of the ex-warehouse entries; and the goods remaining shall be subject to the duties on the quantity deficient, and shall and may be sold for payment thereof, by order of the department; the surplus, if any, to be payable to the person who warehoused such goods or his assigns.

13 No goods shall be warehoused or ex-warehoused upon any authorized holiday nor before the hour of nine o'clock in the morning or after four o'clock in the afternoon.

14 All entry papers, bonds, notices and other documents herein required shall be made out by the owner of the goods to which they relate or by his duly accredited agent, and all packages shall be marked and numbered as herein required by the owner or his agent.

ENTRY OF GOODS FOR WAREHOUSE.

15 Every entry of goods for warehouse must be preceded by a written notice from the person desiring to warehouse them, which notice must be given to the collector in the prescribed form, at least one day before the goods are removed to the warehouse, and must set forth fully the quantity and description of the goods.

16 Entry of goods for warehouse must in all cases be made on the forms sanctioned by the department, and every such entry shall contain a full and complete specification of the goods so entered, stating a The number and description of packages.

b Marks and numbers.

c Contents of each in lbs or gallons, and in the case of spirits the contents are to be stated in gallons of the strength of proof.

d The duty to which the goods would have been liable had they gone into consumption.

Every cask or barrel of spirits, and every package of tobacco shall be full and whole at the time it is warehoused.

17 Every such entry shall be made in duplicate.

18 The collector of Inland Revenue will in every case take bonds with each entry as required by sec. 91, 31st Vic., Cap. 8, and on the prescribed form. These bonds must contain a general description of the goods warehoused, and also a reference to the entry papers by number and date The bond will bear the same number as the entry, and they will be filled together.

ENTRY OF GOODS EX-WAREHOUSE FOR EXPORTATION.

Nova Scotia	Ha
New Brunswick	St. John.
Quebec	Quebec. Montreal.
Ontario	Prescott. Kingston. Toronto. Hamilton. Clifton. Windsor. Sarnia.

And only to British or Foreign Ports of Entry where there are Collectors of Customs or other officers of the Government having similar functions.

20 Goods can only be entered for exportation ex-warehouse from a warehouse within the limits of the Port at which they are actually laden on the ship or other vehicles in which they are to leave the country.

21 As soon as any person owning goods warehoused under these regulations shall be desirous of exporting any quantity of such goods, he shall deliver to the collector of Inland Revenue, in whose charge such goods are, a notice in writing specifying the full particulars thereof as set forth in section 16 of these regulations, and also the name of the ship or vessel, and the name of the master of such ship or vessel, or the line of railway, as the case may be, by which such goods are intended to be exported.

22 All casks, boxes, bales or other packages of goods entered for exportation shall, before leaving the warehouse, be conspicuously marked, branded or stamped, as the case may be, by the collectors of Inland Revenue or other proper officer with the letters EXPN.

23 Entry of goods for exportation ex-warehouse, must be made on the forms sanctioned by the department, and must contain an exact specification of the goods for warehouse. (Vide sec. 16.) With every such entry an export bond shall be taken in the prescribed form.

24 Export bonds shall be conditional for the due delivery of the goods bonded at the place designated in the entry within a specified time, which time shall not in any case exceed the time usually necessary for the performance of the voyage or journey by the conveyance adopted, and for returning the vouchers by the next mail; and in no case shall the period allowed for the cancellation of the bond exceed one year, unless special authority has been granted by the department.

25 The cancellation of an Export Bond shall only be considered complete on the receipt of a duly authenticated certificate from the collector of customs or other government officer having similar authority at the Port of Entry to which the goods were bonded, certifying that the goods described in the Export Entry have been landed and duly entered for consumption or warehoused at the place specified in the entry.

26 The entry for Exportation ex-warehouse shall in all cases be made in triplicate with the collector of Inland Revenue who shall also take the Export Bond.

27 Two copies of the Entry shall be sent to the collector of Customs at the Port whence the goods are to leave the Dominion, who, on receipt thereof shall grant a warrant for the lading of the goods described in the Entry on the Railway or vessel therein mentioned.

28 So soon as the goods have been duly laden the collector of Customs shall certify the fact on the entry papers, one copy whereof shall be filed at the Custom House and the other shall be returned to the collector of Inland Revenue.

29 Whether goods are entered for export from a customs warehouse, or from a warehouse used exclusively for excise, the collector of the port will in each case be charged with the responsibility of seeing them placed on board the ship, car or other vehicle in which they are to be exported, and he must make such examination of the goods as may be necessary for determining whether they correspond with the description contained in the entry, and especially with reference to spirits whether they are of the strength specified.

ENTRY OF GOODS FOR REMOVAL EX-WAREHOUSE IN BOND.

30 Entries of goods for removal, ex-warehouse are to be made in triplicate, with detailed specifications, as in export entries.

31 Goods can only be entered for removal ex-warehouse to another warehouse within the limits of a warehousing Port of Entry or to a Bonding warehouse previously authorized in another Inland Revenue Division.

32 Bonds, in the form prescribed by the department, must, in every case, be taken for the due delivery of the goods at the place of destination.

33 When the goods entered for removal are bonded in a custom warehouse, the locker having charge of them will only deliver them for removal on receipt of a warrant signed by the Collector of Inland Revenue and countersigned by the Collector of Customs, which warrant must contain an exact transcript or abstract of the specification of the goods in the entry, and the locker is required to identify every package and check it by the warrant.

34 Collectors of Inland Revenue on receiving the copies of the entry as above (sec. 31), will at once notify the Collector of Customs of the anticipated arrival of the goods specified, giving him one copy of the entry; and on the arrival of the goods the Collector of Customs will examine them and ascertain whether they correspond with the entry.

35 As soon as they have arrived and are identified, the Collector of Customs will certify the fact on the entry paper and return it to the Collector of Inland Revenue. The goods are then to be rebounded by the owner in the division into which they are removed. Thereafter they are to be dealt with in the same manner as if they had been manufactured in that Division.

ENTRY OF GOODS EX-WAREHOUSE FOR CONSUMPTION.

36 Entry of goods ex-warehouse for consumption will be made in duplicate on the prescribed forms; and every such entry must contain a full specification of the goods, as in an export or removal entry.

37 On receipt of the duty accruing on the goods so entered, the Collector of Inland Revenue will make out a warrant for the delivery of the goods, which, if the goods are in a Customs warehouse, must be countersigned by the Collector of Customs, and must contain a transcript of the specification in the entry, and the locker in charge of the warehouse must identify every package with the description contained in the warrant before delivering it.

MALT.

38 Malt warehoused under the Act above cited may be removed in Bond from one Inland Revenue Division to another or from one warehouse to another, and may be exported in bond without payment of duty. But every such removal or export shall be under the same restrictions and conditions as to entry and bonds as are in force in respect of other goods liable to duties of excise, except that bags or other packages containing malt are not required to be marked or numbered, and except further that any duly licensed maltster carrying on business, when entering malt manufactured by himself for warehouse, may do so on giving a general bond in a form to be prescribed by the Department to Inland Revenue, for payment of the duty on the malt so bonded; which bond shall be for such a sum as the collector or officer, taking it, computes will be equal to double the amount of duty that will accrue on the largest quantity of malt that will be warehoused under such bond at one time, and if from any unexpected cause the quantity of malt shall at any time be in excess of the quantity so computed further bonds shall be taken for such additional quantity.

The Ottawa Times

SATURDAY, MAY 9, 1868.

By private advices from Halifax we learn that the "McGee Testimonial Fund" is meeting with universal encouragement from the citizens, not a man refusing or hesitating to contribute his mite towards it. This fund will be a handsome and substantial expression of a nation's gratitude and appreciation of the merits of him who was so suddenly cut down when working so earnestly in its service.

At the meeting of the Bar of Three Rivers, on the 1st instant, M. Boucher De Niverville, M. P., was elected Batonnier, a compliment to the hon. gentleman, which shows the high estimation in which he is held by his professional brethren of the district. We mentioned some time ago that Mr. De Niverville was spoken of as likely to succeed to the shrievalty of the district, which is now vacant, and no doubt this mark of confidence from the Bar of Three Rivers will tend to convince the Government that his appointment would be a popular one.

Yesterday the parties appointed by the Local Committee, to take charge of the subscription lists, for the "McGee Testimonial Fund," visited portions of their several districts, and we are glad to learn that they met with unprecedented success, every one giving their subscriptions with alacrity. As the amount is limited to five dollars from each person, there were some who subscribed also in the name of another member of their family. In one hour, two gentlemen, Messrs. Devy and Cotton, collected upwards of a hundred dollars in sums ranging from fifty cents to the maximum. It is expected that the ward committees will have nearly completed their labors by Wednesday next, when the local committee again meets, and that they will be prepared then to hand over the amounts collected to the Treasurer, Ald. Cunningham. We believe it is intended that the names of the subscribers to the fund throughout the city shall be published.

One of the most important votes of the Session took place yesterday morning between two and three o'clock—that on Mr. McKenzie's amendment to the Minister of Militia's resolutions, providing for the raising by loan under Imperial guarantee, of the sum required for the construction of fortifications (£1,100,000 stg.) The decisive majority of 51, the vote being exactly two to one in favor of the Government, in a very full House, will show the people of the Mother Country that Canadians are willing to take their share of the national obligation, and to tax themselves now, so that they may be prepared for eventualities in the future. There is no doubt that the consideration of what the Imperial authorities expected Canada to do, tended very much to swell the majority in favor of the Government policy. In spite of the influence of the "economic 'fit,'" which appeared to sweep everything before it (except the sessional allowance), members did not hesitate to vote for an appropriation of five millions and a half of dollars towards works of which, all hope and many believe that this generation will not see the utility practically tested. We are glad that this overwhelming vote has come so speedily on the heels of another, which, we think, is calculated to make the Dominion look somewhat small in the eyes of those who take an interest in its prosperity on the other side of the Atlantic. It will show that in spite of the spirit of economy abroad which has pared down almost every other item of public expenditure, the Parliament of the Dominion is willing to incur an expense for the maintenance of the integrity of the Empire, compared with which, none of the colonies when isolated would have ventured the appropriation of a proportionate outlay.

The following is the division on Mr. McKenzie's amendment, which was taken at an hour too late to permit of its publication yesterday morning:

Yeas—Messieurs Anglin, Bechard, Bodwell, Bourassa, Bowman, Burpee, Cameron (Huron), Cameron (Inverness), Cheval, Coffin, Connell, Coupal, Cook, Dorion, Ferris, Forbes, Fortier, Geoffrion, Godin, Holton, Johnson, Jones (Halifax), Kempt, Kierzkowski, Macdonald (Glengarry), Macdonald (Antigonish), McKenzie, McConkey, McLellan, McMonies, Metcalf, Mills, Morrison (Victoria O), Oliver, Paquet, Parker, Power, Pozer, Redford, Ross (Victoria, N. S.), Rymal, Savary, Scatcherd, Senecal, Snider, Stirton, Thompson (Ontario), Tremblay, Wells, White, and Young.—51.

Nays—Messieurs Archambeault, Ault, Beaty, Beaubien, Bellerose, Benoit, Bertrand, Blanchet, Bowell, Bown, Brousseau, Brown, Burton, Caldwell, Cameron (Peel), Campbell, Carling, Caron, Cartier, Cartwright, Cayley, Chamberlin, Chauveau, Cimon, Costigan, Crawford (Brockville), Crawford (Leeds), Currier, DeNiverville, Desaulniers, Dobbie, Drew, Dufresne, Dunkin, Ferguson, Fisher, Fortin, Galt, Gaucher, Gaudet, Gendron, Gibbs, Grant, Gray, Grover, Holmes, Howland, Huot, Hurdon, Irvine, Jackson, Keeler, Kirkpatrick, Langevin, Langlois, Lapum, Lawson, Little, Macdonald, Sir J. A. (Kingston), McDonald (Middlesex), MacFarlane, Magill, Masson (Soulanges), Masson (Terrebonne), McCarthy, Macdougall, McGreevey, McKeagney, McMillan, Merritt, Morris, Morrison (Niagara), Munroe, O'Connor, Perry, Pinsonneault, Pope, Pouliot, Rankin, Read, Renaud, Robitaille, Rose, Ross (Champlain), Ross (Dundas), Ross (Prince Edward), Ryan (Kings, N. B.), Ryan (Montreal West) Shanly, Simard, Simpson, Stephenson, Thompson (Haldimand), Tilley, Wallace, Walsh, Webb, Whitehead, Willson, Wood, Workman, and Wright.—102.

As the Queen's Birthday falls this year on Sunday, it is probable that the festival will be kept on the Saturday previous.

We shall insert "New Brunswicker's" letter at the earliest possible convenience, though these remarkably long epistles try our patience and tax our space at this busy season.

THE INVESTIGATION.

It was generally understood yesterday that Mr. O'Reilly had a couple of witnesses before him, whose testimony is considered of some importance, but nothing of what transpired was made public.

At the Police Court, however, a few facts were elicited, which may be held to be in some sort a connecting link in the general chain of evidence. A certain Mrs. Brown, who claims respectable parentage in the United States, was brought up charged with keeping a house of ill-fame, and the Police Magistrate gave her the option of leaving the city or spending three months in jail. The girl who testified as to the character of her establishment stated that she had been placed there by Mr. Michael Starrs, who is now in custody, and that for a time at least, he had paid her board there. It is also matter of common report that Whelan, Egleson, and other parties of the same kidney, were regular frequenters of the same establishment, but for prudential reasons the authorities did not permit all the evidence in this case to reach the public ear. It is presumed, however, that the "visitors" to this den have all been made known to the authorities, and that the facts discovered will not be without their influence on the general result of the investigation now going on.

It is well known that in Washington the dens of infamy are frequently resorted to for the purpose of obtaining important political information, and it may turn out in this case that the discovery of the common resort, for the characters alluded to, will contribute materially to the ends of justice.

Mr. Bodwell's complaint against the Ottawa press, and the want of "public opinion"—that particular kind in which the hon. gentleman believes—is deserving of all sympathy. We hope that something may be done to preserve from oblivion the wonderfully instructive speeches of Mr. Bodwell and his friends. Did the people of the capital only know the heights and depths of his transcendant genius, they would be tempted to cast the local newspaper offices into the river. But alas! they do not. Mr. Bodwell is, however, none the less of a superlative genius; the only difficulty is that there is no "public "opinion" to appreciate him. "Too bad entirely!"

The Guelph Advertiser says:

"It is now clearly understood that there is a Fenian Circle here, numbering (according to report) between 100 and 118 members. More arrests are expected in Guelph, Rockwood and other places, and the Fenian sympathisers here are quaking with fear, and laying very low out of sight of the law officers. Several of them have already left for more agreeable quarters, and a general skeddadle is rumored to be on the tapis. The prospect is that all, or nearly all, the ringleaders in the county will come to grief, and that the Fenian institution here will come to a sudden full stop."

If the above statement is at all near the truth, it was surely time that the authorities should have taken the matter in hand.

THE FATAL SPOT.

We understand that the tablet in memory of the late Hon. Thos. D'Arcy McGee, placed on the building opposite the spot where he fell, will be unveiled this morning at seven o'clock. The simple and expressive inscription, neatly executed by Mr. Mills, the marble-worker, runs as follows:—"Here fell, on "the 7th April, 1868, by the assassin's hand, "the Hon. Thos. D'Arcy McGee." The inscription is cut into the stone of the building; but as our city readers will naturally desire to gratify their curiosity by a personal inspection, and as the work, since finished, has not yet been open to view, we leave more minute details to another issue.

Mr. Miller's Bugle, to-night, at Her Majesty's Theatre.

LAYING THE CORNER STONE OF THE BANK STREET PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.

The interesting ceremony of laying the corner stone of the above church took place with appropriate ceremonies yesterday afternoon. Notwithstanding the threatening state of the weather, a large number of people gathered together to witness the proceedings, among whom were most of the Protestant clergymen of the city, and several members of both branches of the Legislature. Preparations of a very complete character were made for the accommodation of the spectators, and a floor was laid down on the joists over the basement story. At two o'clock the services commenced by singing a psalm.

Rev. Mr. Moore presided and offered up a prayer, and afterwards read a chapter in the bible.

The Rev. Simon Fraser then read a paper containing a history of the Congregation in this city, (which we are reluctantly compelled to omit for want of space from this issue, but which we shall publish at a future day), copy of which, together with a copy of each of the city papers, Montreal Witness, Toronto Leader and the Church Record, Canadian Almanac, also the names of the office bearers of the church, and one of each of the Canadian coins was enclosed in a glass bottle and deposited in a cavity of the stone under "the corner stone" laid yesterday.

The Rev. Mr. Moore then called on the Rev. Mr. Wardrope to lay the corner stone of the edifice. That gentleman then advanced to the corner, and the stone was lowered into its place when he tried it with the level and pronounced the stone level, with the plumb and pronounced it plumb, then giving it three taps with the mallet said, "The stone is duly laid." The Hon. Mr. Wark next delivered a short address, and the ceremonies were brought to a close by singing the Doxology and the pronouncing of the Benediction by the Rev. Mr. Gordon. Many of the people remained to view the plans of the church drawn by Mr. Alexander C. Hutchinson, architect, of Montreal, Messrs. Mason & Shearer, masons, and Mr. James Gibson, carpenter. The church is 92 x 60 feet, and about 60 feet from the ground to the apex. Its style is Gothic. The steeple is to be 160 feet high from the ground. A gallery will extend around three sides, and when completed will seat 850 persons.

Madame Waters at her last appearance in Ottawa, sings to-night.

THE CANADIAN PARLIAMENT.

1st PARLIAMENT. 1st SESSION.

THE SENATE.

THURSDAY, May 7, 1868.

Hon. Mr. SKEAD said it was to be regretted that so many people had emigrated from Canada to the United States, and he believed this was caused by the high rate of wages which were given, and the extensive public works which were carried on there. He was happy to inform the House that a reaction had taken place, and thousands of those young men who had gone to the United States, have been coming back for the past three months faster than they went away. He thought the Government, instead of delaying the construction of the Intercolonial Railway, should commence it as soon as possible, in order to give employment to the people and induce immigrants to settle in the country. It was the employment given in constructing this Canal to Kingston that settled this section of the country, and the same results would attend the construction of public works in other sections of the country. He then referred to the advantages to be derived from opening up the far west in regard to fostering trade, settling the country and developing its resources. He said they had extensive prairie lands, but he thought a mistake had been made by the framers of the Confederation Act in putting those lands in the hands of the Local Governments. He thought the Government should use their best efforts to induce agricultural laborers to settle in the country, as they were wanted more than mechanics, who would find their own way here. He said the wages of an agricultural laborer would average five pounds a month, or fifty pounds a year and found, yet notwithstanding the high rate of wages immigrants are induced by United States agents at Quebec to go on to that country. They sent these immigrants to the far west at our expense, and then took them across to the United States. We should do all we can to keep them in this country, and constant public works to give them employment. After working a few years they will become settlers, and if we give them land for nothing it will be the best investment the Government can make in the country.

Hon. Mr. WILMOT said it was beyond anything he knew in his experience for farm laborers to get £50 a year and found, as had been said by his hon. friend. He thought farmers who paid that sum must manage their affairs with a great deal of economy if they could keep out of debt. It unfortunately happened that our mechanics in New Brunswick were going to the United States in order to get better wages. What the Hon. Minister of Agriculture had said was certainly true, that we had better try to keep our young men in the country before we try to get them from abroad. He doubted whether it was for the interest of this country to expend a large amount of borrowed money to carry on unproductive public works. So far as his experience in New Brunswick went they did not get the workmen on railways to settle the country. They had constructed a railway upwards of one hundred miles in length, but they scarcely got one of those laborers to settle along the line. The construction of public works would cause a very large permanent debt on which we would have to pay a large amount of interest, therefore they should exercise some caution in running the country in debt in order to induce immigration to the country.

Hon. Mr. BUREAU said that one of the great reasons for the tide of immigration setting in for the United States was the fact that they had always a number of public works on hand, and even the excitement consequent on the late war attracted immigrants to their shores. We should take advantage of our proposed public works, and encourage settlers to commence on our wild lands along the lines of these works. Also, every facility should be given for manufacturing in a climate like ours, when agricultural operations were suspended about half of the year. Consequently people were unable to earn their livelihood at out door employment. We should turn our attention also to the opening up of new markets for our manufactories. It was lamentable to see the exodus of the youth of Canada leaving daily in droves for the States. Many of the emigrants arriving in this country were unsuited for the branch of labor on which they entered, and then failed and got discouraged themselves and disheartened others. In the agricultural pursuits the long, severe winter here made a change in the system of farming necessary, and before they became acquainted with the country and its climate they wished to go farther west, and start anew in the neighboring Republic. He hoped the Government would devote their best energies to retaining the population we have got in the country, and hold out inducements to the best class of immigrants to settle amongst us.

Hon Mr. REESOR thought the whole system of immigration as conducted for a number of years by the bureau of Agriculture, in connection with the old Canadian Government, was wrong. They should not have taken the matter in hand, as they could not possibly so well understand it, as people who were interested in bringing immigrants into the country. They could not expend money in bringing immigrants in, as well as individuals could, but they having taken the matter up everything was left under their management. The result has been that in many instances parties were induced to come to the country, and after their arrival they could not find employment. The effect of this was worse than if they had never been induced to come out at all, because they used all their influence to prevent their friends coming to this country. Those parties remained out of employment for a time here, and then went to the United States, and in writing home to their friends they would naturally write everything that was discouraging in regard to Canada, and everything in favor of the United States. Those lands which were given to settlers were totally unfit for settlement, or for a man to make a living upon. They were situated one hundred miles from a market, and two thirds of the land was so stony that it was unfit for cultivation in the ordinary way. Immigration should follow its natural channels, and if it is connected with the affairs of the country as it ought to be, and proper encouragement given to agriculture, manufactories, and to the trade of the country, we would find immigration flowing in as rapidly as we would find employment, or a good field for them to invest their capital or labor. That would be better than to spend $50,000 a year to encourage immigrants to come into the country. The Minister of Agriculture says this year the estimate for that purpose is only $35,000, but he (Mr. Reesor) thought it was like throwing so much money away. If there was any money to be spent, let it be spent by the Local Governments, who can more directly control the work, and point out the best way this capital can be invested. Even then very little money need be expended, if proper inducements are held out for the settlement of lands, and proper encouragement given to manufactures. There were some unnecessary changes made in the tariff this present Session, which must have the effect of inducing some who have been employed in this country to seek employment elsewhere. He had seen several letters this present week from parties who said they would have to close their woollen manufactories in consequence of the duty which was placed upon fine wool. Our farmers find it more profitable to produce long wool, which is greatly in demand for manufacturing purposes in the United States. While the American farmer does not produce the kind of crops that would produce this long wool, he cultivates the kind of crops that will maintain fine wool, therefore placing a duty upon it, prevents its being manufactured in this country. We cannot have a large population unless we have something for our people to do, for it would be far better to do without them than not to have labor for them. It is only so fast as we can have railroads opened up into the interior of the country, and manufactories to afford employment, that we need desire immigrants to come into the country. He certainly thought that the expenditure of this money to induce immigrants to come in was a waste of it, particularly as those who had the management of it did not understand, what class of immigrants we require. We do not find the United States Government voting an immense sum of money yearly to draw immigrants to that country. They simply manage their affairs to encourage productive industry, whether in manufactories, railways, canals, or the cultivation of the soil, and this furnishes an inducement for people of other countries to settle amongst them.

Hon. Mr. FERRIER hoped the Government would soon see their way to commence operations on the different public works of the Dominion, and that they would give free grants of land along the line of the Intercolonial Railway, which would necessarily attract a large class of the best description of immigrants into the country. Our Government should take measures to prevent so many young French Canadians, of great promise and intelligence, leaving the Province of Quebec daily, as we now see on all the public outlets of the country, and settling down in the United States. These young men can work well on railroads, or on new lands. The projected railroad works and the fortifications should be put under contract at once, and stop this tide of emigration to the States, and encourage and promote immigration from the countries of Europe to our shores. There was no time to lose, as the evil was gaining ground rapidly. Would we once lose this class of settlers we can never again induce them to return—hence the urgency of some immediate active measures being adopted to remedy this deplorable state of affairs.

Hon. Mr. WARK said, as a great part of the Intercolonial railway would be built through New Brunswick, he would state that their Local Legislature had passed a bill authorizing the Government to grant land to settlers for one shilling an acre. No one could ask for land cheaper than to get one hundred acres for $20.

Hon. Mr. McCULLY said his hon. friend (Mr. Ferrier) spoke as if the Intercolonial Railway was not to be under contract at all, as if that the policy of the Government was to have the road built by day work. He (Mr. McCully) had never understood that that was the intention of the Government; if it was it would create a very great sensation.

Hon. Mr. CAMPBELL—No, it is not the intention.

Hon. Mr. McCULLY remarked his hon. friend had said "the Government were going to build the road under Commissioners," and also remarked, that heretofore large contracts had been let, as though it was not the intention to let the present road by contract. He (Mr. McCully) knew of a very wealthy company from New York, who were waiting to make their tenders for contracts on that line.

Hon. Mr. FERRIER said he did not intimate that the road would not be built by contract, but he spoke of each of the four or five commissioners taking a separate portion of the road to superintend, and this is what they should do.

Hon. Mr. SIMPSON would like to get information from some of the hon. members, where this valuable Government land was to be found. When he was young he had tried for several years to find a good tract of land to settle upon, and when at last he did purchase a tract, he found he had a hard bargain, for it was all rocks. His hon. friend had spoken of there being good land in the region of Lake Huron, but he went up to the head of Lake Huron last year and remained there a week, but he did not see this good land, and he would like to be put in possession of information as to where it was. He had there met Indians from the Red River settlement, and from all the information he could get, he could not find a spot yet where he could recommend a son of his, or even a servant, to go and make a home. He had been trying for several years to find a suitable place where immigrants could be asked to go and settle, but he had been unsuccessful. He had been in localities where companies owned whole townships, where the settlers had left, because they could not live there, the soil not being anything but rock. We have very fine lands in Upper Canada; we have the Western Peninsula which contains very valuable land, but it is all taken up, and you will now have to pay speculators $15 per acre for land that cost them only $1.50 per acre. Our farmers were leaving Canada and going to the West because no encouragement is given to the industrial resources of the country, and while we encourage one immigrant to come in we allow ten of our intelligent young men to leave and find a home in the United States.

Hon. Mr. SKEAD remarked that his hon. friend had told them that he had been to the head of Lake Superior to look for good land. He (Mr. Skead) would recommend him when looking for good land not to follow the Lake shores, but to go back in the interior of the country. He then went on to mention tracts of land which were of superior quality to any land in the United States.

The motion was then adopted.

A message was received from the House of Commons with a Bill intituled: "An Act to amend an Act respecting the Statutes of Canada." Read a first time, and second reading ordered for to-morrow.

Hon. Mr. BENSON wished to call the attention of the House to a report of the dredging of the old channel through Lake St. Clair by the American Government, and proposed to ask to-morrow whether the Dominion Government had taken, or intended to take, any measures to secure the use of that channel for Canadian vessels.

SUBSTITUTION OF DOMINION NOTES FOR BANK NOTES.

Hon. Mr. CAMPBELL moved the second reading of the Bill to enable Banks in any part of Canada to use Notes of the Dominion, instead of using their own.

Hon. Mr. MACPHERSON said the object of the Bill appeared to be two-fold, first to arrange with the banks to surrender their power to issue notes, and secondly to provide for the circulation of Dominion notes throughout the Dominion. Under the present system part of the circulation of the country is in Dominion notes, and part in notes of the banks. It is impossible for this two-fold system to continue, and the Government must either adopt the Dominion bank note system, or retrace their steps and leave the entire circulation of the country to the banks. He (Mr Macpherson) hoped the latter course would be their policy, but he feared from their introducing this Bill that it was not. He would infer that it was the desire of the Government to introduce the Dominion note system, until it absorbed the entire circulation of the country. The interests of the country forbid the introduction of a system which authorizes the Government to issue notes and redeem them on presentation. He believed the system was unsuited to the requirements of the country, and it was undesirable and unwise to place the whole banking system of the country in the hands of the Government, as it would lead to unfortunate results. He felt as strongly as any one could do that it was the duty of the Government to provide a secure currency, but he thought that might be done without taking the circulation into its own hands. If the Government undertook the issue and redemption of the currency, it would be uniting the finances and politics of the country, which he thought would be very objectionable, and would, he feared, lead to disaster. It would be a system of centralization, opposed to the habits and opinions of the country, destroying that individual enterprize and resource so valuable, in guarding against danger. It would cause all to lean upon the Government in time of panic, when it would be made to appear that the easy and only remedy would be a suspension of specie payments. Political influence would be brought to bear, which he feared the Government would not be able to resist. Its position would make it only too ready to issue the proclamation of suspension—for it must be understood, that the difficulties of the Government might be very great in providing specie, to redeem the Dominion notes. It is quite true that this Bill provides for debentures being held by the Receiver-General for an amount equal to the Dominion notes in circulation for the purpose of being sold to provide specie, but he (Mr. M.) need not tell the House that in times of panic Government securities, like all other securities, become depreciated, and unsaleable. This was true even of British Consols. Another objection to a Government Bank was the absence of that power of expansion, which was so indispensable in carrying on the trade of this country, and particularly that of Ontario. To prove this, he would read statements which he had had prepared of the circulation. He would begin with that of 1865, the last year before the issue of Provincial Notes. For the first eight months of that year the circulation varied very little. It ranged from $8,761,239 to $8,065,202. In August it stood at $8,445,068. In September it increased to $11,347,890, an increase of very nearly $3,000,000. In October it ran up to $14,158,313, a further increase of nearly $3,000,000. It then began to decline, and in November fell to $13,338,598, and in December to $12,128,772. He would now read an estimate for the same year, of the circulation of Ontario and Quebec separately. In preparing this, he assumed that two-thirds of the circulation of the Bank of Montreal and the Bank of British North America, was in the Province of Ontario. With respect to other banks he assumed that their circulation was all in the Province where their head offices were situated, although he knew this was not strictly correct, for he was aware that a large proportion of the notes of the City Bank of Montreal, and the Quebec Bank circulated in Ontario, and he also believed a larger proportion of the circulation of the Banks of Montreal and British North America, than he had assumed. He was persuaded that in his estimate he had largely understated the circulation of Ontario, but it could not be ascertained precisely, and he preferred to err on that side. According to that estimate the circulation in the Province of Quebec from January to August, inclusive, varied from two millions and a third to a little exceeding two millions and a-half. In September it increased to $3,642,760. In November it fell to $3,365,260, and in December to $3,097,221. In the Province of Ontario for the first eight months of that year the circulation varied from five millions and three quarters to six millions and a quarter, standing on the 31st of August at $6,074,692. In the following month, September, it increased to $8,341,822, being an increase of nearly two millions and a third. In October it increased to $10,515,553, being a further increase of upwards of two millions, an increase of nearly four millions and a half during the two months when the chief portion of the harvest of Ontario is being removed to market. In November it declined to $9,973,338, and in December to $9,031,551. He would leave hon. gentlemen to imagine what the consequences would have been in Ontario had our system of currency not admitted of expansion. He would now read a statement of the circulation of last year, 1867, after provincial notes had very nearly taken the place of the circulation of the Bank of Montreal. In this year the circulation was lower during the months in which expansion usually took place, than in 1865.

Hon. Mr. RYAN—What amount?

Hon. Mr. MACPHERSON—It was larger in the early months of the year. In January it was $13,148,478; in February, $13,298,958; in March, $12,813,694; in April, $12,254,924; in May, June, July, and August, about $11,500,000; in September, $12,357,663; in October, $13,678,762; then a decline in November to $12,620,023, and in December to $12,087,515. At no time did it reach the circulation of October, 1865, when it exceeded $14,000,000. This was, no doubt, due to the crisis that followed the suspension of the Commercial Bank; and he believed that hon. gentlemen from Ontario would agree with him that the contraction of the currency, that then took place, bore very heavily and prejudicially upon the interests of that Province. He had prepared, and held in his hand, an estimate for 1867, of the circulation of Ontario and Quebec separately—made in the same manner as the similar estimate for 1865; and assuming that that Provincial Notes payable at Montreal, were circulating in Ontario, and that those payable at Toronto were circulating in the Province of Quebec, but he would not trouble the House by reading the details. It had varied less than in 1865 ranging in the Province of Quebec from about $3,000,000 to $3,600,000, and in the Province of Ontario from a little over $8,000,000 to about $10,250,000. (Some conversation here took place between the Hon. Mr. Macpherson and the Hon. Mr. Ryan, which was inaudible in the gallery.) The Hon. Mr. Macpherson then went on to say that the cost of money would be increased by the withdrawal of the circulation of the banks, that in the past the people of Canada had on the whole obtained money at a cheap rate. The profits of the banks had been moderate, perhaps under 7 per cent. on the average. A large proportion of that profit was obtained from circulation; and if that source were dried up it would have to come out of the borrower direct. In this country, and he supposed in all countries the great majority of the people are borrowers, and are interested in seeing that the price of money is not needlessly enhanced. The lender will take care that he is remunerated in one way or other. He, Mr. Macpherson, would now call the attention of the House to the inducements offered to banks to come under the operation of this Bill. They are offered at the rate of 5 per cent. per annum upon their circulation as it stood on 30th April, 1866, from the time they may come in, until the expiration of their charters in 1870. It was well known that the circulation of some of the banks had materially decreased, especially in the Province of Quebec. In the Province of Ontario, the circulation of all the banks, except two, had increased. It was known to the House, that by their charters the banks were required to hold 10 per cent of their capital in public securities. By coming under this Act they would be relieved of this burthen, and entitled to receive Dominion notes for the amount of the securities they so held. The hon. gentleman then said that as the hour of adjournment was so near, he would not detain the House any longer, but might have something more to say when the Bill was under consideration in Committee of the Whole, when he would move that the clause and schedule of which he now gave notice be added to this Bill.

The following is the clause and schedule referred to, viz.:—

Instead of the statement of its liabilities and assets, which any bank is now required by its charter, or by law to make up, the statements specified and defined in the schedule to this Act are hereby substituted, and every such bank now by law required to make such statement, shall in place and instead thereof, cause to be made up to the last day of each month, in every year, not being a Sunday or holiday, and to be published in the Canada Gazette, a statement of the liabilities and assets of such Bank, in the form and containing the particulars shewn in the schedule of this Act, and such statement shall be verified by the declaration of some one of the Directors, or by the cashier or some like officer of the bank, having a knowledge of the truth of the contents of such statement.

Hon. Mr. CAMPBELL said, as it was near their time for adjourning, they had better have the bill read a second time and resume the discussion, when they went into Committee on the Bill.

Hon. Mr. REESOR remarked that if they passed the second reading of the Bill, they affirmed the principle; it would be better to postpone the debate.

Hon. Mr. CAMPBELL said they could discuss the Bill just as fairly in Committee, if it was understood that we were not now committed to the principle of the Bill.

Hon. Mr. REESOR thought they either ought to sanction the principle of the Bill now, or discuss it with the Speaker in the chair.

Hon. Mr. WILMOT thought it was much better to discuss it in Committee.

Hon. Mr. BUREAU said as the Bill involved a matter of very great importance, it should be discussed with the Speaker in the chair.

Hon. Mr. CAMPBELL remarked that it could be discussed with the Speaker in the chair, upon the motion to go into Committee.

Hon. Mr. BUREAU thought they should deal with questions of such importance in the ordinary course.

Hon. Mr. McCULLY said if there was any intention to move that the Bill be postponed for three months, it should be discussed with the Speaker in the chair.

Hon. Mr. SANBORN said the Bill was deserving of much consideration before it was read a second time. The speeches made when the Speaker was in the chair, would be more at length, more formal, and more instructive, than if the House was in Committee, because then the House would get more disorganized, and the debates would be more of a conversational character.

Hon. Mr. CAMPBELL said that in deference to the views of hon. members he would now move that the debate be adjourned, and stand for the first order of the day to-morrow.

The motion was then adopted.

The Bill intituled "An Act constituting the Department of Inland Revenue," was then read a second time, and ordered to be committed to a committee of the whole House to-morrow.

The following Bills were received by message from the House of Commons, and read a first time:

"An Act respecting the geological survey of Canada."

"An Act to impose a duty on foreign reprints of British copyright works."

The House then adjourned.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.

FRIDAY, May 8, 1868.

The SPEAKER took the chair at three o'clock.

DESPATCH OF BUSINESS.

In reply to Hon. Mr. HOLTON,

Sir G. E. CARTIER, in the absence of the Premier, intimated that it was the intention of the Government to propose that after Monday next there should be three sittings of the House daily, one from eleven to two, a second from four to six, and a third as now, from half-past seven. Also that on and after Saturday (this day) there should be a sitting on Saturdays during the remainder of the Session from eleven to five.

RATE OF INTEREST.

Hon. J. ROSE gave notice that he proposed to introduce a measure for regulating the usury laws of the Provinces, providing that in Nova Scotia private individuals, hitherto debarred from exacting more than six per cent, should be placed on the same footing as Banking Corporations, and permitted to charge seven per cent, thus assimilating the laws of the two Maritime Provinces; and that, as regards Ontario and Quebec, while no interference should be made with general commercial transactions, which would be left untrammelled as heretofore, he purposed enacting that the maximum rate to be recoverable on mortgage security should be eight per cent. This would not, however, apply to such institutions as Building Societies. He did not pretend that his measure was theoretically perfect, but it was a move towards the desirable assimilation of varying local practice, and he thought that no objection would be raised to its principle. He then read the resolutions to the foregoing effect, upon which his Bill would be founded.

NATURALIZATION.

On the resumption of the adjourned debate on the final stage of the Bill respecting Aliens and Naturalization, after some observations from Mr. MILLS and Mr. McKENZIE, who raised the objection that the Bill imposed unnecessary difficulties,

Hon. C. DUNKIN argued the great importance to the Empire of providing a mode of national adoption for immigrants from various countries to her colonial dependencies, and especially to relieve American settlers within the Dominion from being subject to the present possible penalties held over them on return to their native country.

In reply to Mr. YOUNG and Mr. CAMERON (Huron),

Hon. Sir J. A. MACDONALD explained that the question of naturalization had been previously pressed upon the attention of Imperial by Canadian statesmen, but that, while the former could not see their way to permitting the same authority to Colonial as to Imperial naturalization enactments, they had found difficulties in the way to proposing a comprehensive British measure, from the peculiar circumstances of some British dependencies, where Chinese, Coolies, Zuscars and other semi-barbarians were being numerously introduced, and the introducers of whom might take advantage of such an enactment to secure extensive and undesirable political privileges to these immigrants, whom it would then be the duty of Great Britain to protect in every quarter of the world.

After some further discussion between Mr. McKENZIE, Mr. D. A. MACDONALD and others,

Hon. Mr. DORION thought that the simpler process of naturalization could be made the better. He was of opinion that, after the proper term of residence, a declaration before a magistrate, and subscription to the oath, ought to be held sufficient to entitle a settler to the benefits of citizenship.

Hon. Mr. CHAUVEAU having spoken briefly in favor of the measure, and the discussion having been prolonged by Hon. Mr. JOHNSON, upon the motion of Hon. Sir J. A. MACDONALD, the order for the third reading was discharged, and the House went again into Committee for detailed consideration of the Bill, Mr. CAMERON (Huron), in the chair, and after some amendments being agreed to and reported, the Bill was read a third time and passed.

ESTIMATES FOR 1869.

The House then went into Committee of Supply, Hon. Col. Gray in the chair, when the following items were voted with little discussion, viz.: militia and gunboats, $1,041,607; and pensions, $17,225.

On the item of $120,000 for western extension of the European and North American railway

Hon. Mr. HOLTON remarked that previous to Confederation the old Province of Canada had never been called upon to pass such magnificent items without much fuller information, and was surprised to notice that gentlemen from the Lower Provinces, who had displayed such keen watchfulness of petty items of expenditure, and criticised them so unsparingly, had no explanation to offer of these heavy amounts, in which their interests had involved the Dominion.

After some remarks from Mr. SAVARY and Mr. GIBBS, it being six o'clock the SPEAKER left the chair.

After Recess.

The following private Bills were read a second time, committed and ordered for third reading on Monday, viz.:

On motion of Mr. A. MORRISON—An Act to incorporate the Merchants' Express Company of the Dominion of Canada (as amended by the Committee on Banking and Commerce).

On motion of Mr. WORKMAN—An Act to incorporate the Canada Shipping Company (as amended by the Committee on Banking and Commerce).

And, on motion of Mr. WHITE—An Act to incorporate the Bank of Agriculture (as amended by the Committee on Banking and Commerce).

And the following passed through the final stage, viz.:

On motion of Mr. COLBY—An Act to confirm a certain By-law passed by the Directors of the Lake Memphremagog Navigation Company (as amended by the Committee on Banking and Commerce).

And on motion of Mr. STREET—An Act to amend the Acts relating to the Niagara District Bank (from Senate).

HOUSE ECONOMY.

Sir J. A. MACDONALD introduced a Bill relating to the internal economy of the House of Commons, after which

ESTIMATES 1869.

The House again went into Committee of Supply,

Hon. Col. GRAY in the chair, and resumed the discussion upon the item of $120,000, for E. & N. A. Railway. Considerable discussion ensued, in which Hon. Mr. FISHER, Mr. E. M. MACDONALD, Mr. McLELLAN, and Mr. D. A. MACDONALD took prominent part, and which was finally passed, as also were the remaining items for Lower Province Railways, amounting to $1,655,000.

The item of $75,000, for Intercolonial Survey, was then put, upon which

Mr. McKENZIE took objection to the delay and expense occasioned by this survey, made for the satisfaction, as was said, of certain members of the Cabinet, whom he was desirous of being able to identify. The course of the indecision being pursued with regard to this great work was such as was likely to create the utmost discontent throughout the Dominion, and to give rise to such a feeling of hostility in Ontario as was only to be equalled by that prevailing in Nova Scotia.

Hon. Mr. MACDOUGALL replied, detailing the position in which lines already constructed and routes surveyed, stood at present, and apprehended that in the course of a month the Government would be in a position to give full information as to the line to be selected. As to the minority in the Cabinet he had no information to give.

Hon. Mr. HOLTON said he would give such information as he had heard. He had heard that the Minister of Public Works, the Minister of Customs and the Minister of Inland Revenue formed that minority, and defied them to say it was not true. He asked if the two from Ontario were as devoid of influence in the Cabinet as they were in the House. The influence of the Minister of Militia in the Cabinet arose from his following in the House, but those two named from Ontario had no following.

Hon. Mr. JOHNSON thought the Government should be united on this question.

Dr. PARKER complained that the route would be selected after the House adjourned.

Mr. D. A. MACDONALD, in reference to the remarks of previous speakers, bore testimony to the excellency of Nova Scotia railroad construction.

Mr. F. JONES strongly condemned the action of that Government in giving one of their contracts to the engineer responsible for its supervision, and was of opinion that much unnecessary expense was being incurred in this exploration, which had, intermittently, been going on for some years.

The item was then passed, as also after discussion that of $223,000 for canals.

On the item of $100,000 for Parliament and Departmental Buildings,

Mr. BODWELL reopened the question of the seat of Government locality, objecting to the maintenance of Ottawa as a Legislative centre on the grounds, that the TIMES and Citizen gave insufficiently ample reports yesterday of the speeches of members on his side of the House, while considerable space had been devoted to those of the leader of the House. From this illustration he argued a want of public opinion in this city fatal to metropolitan claims.

Mr. D. A. MACDONALD coincided in these views, and further expressed his hope that Quebec or Montreal would ultimately be selected as the seat of Government, and was understood, in conclusion, to reflect upon the want of hospitality which it had been his misfortune to experience here.

Mr. GIBBS expressed strong distaste to the Houses of Parliament, the cost of which he regretted to have ever sanctioned by his vote.

Hon. Mr. MACDOUGALL explained that the sum asked for was intended to be appropriated for payment of balances due to contractors, and for completion of the grounds.

Mr. McKENZIE hoped that the Minister would, at the next stage of the measure, be prepared to give fuller explanations of this sum. He went on to condemn the architecture, construction and condition of the Buildings, and expressed his doubt as to the propriety of incurring further expenses in their maintenance, which cost some $10,000 or $15,000 yearly more than the entire cost of the Legislative Chamber of Quebec.

Mr. CHAMBERLIN would prefer to see expenditure incurred in desirable improvements of the library, rather than in fencing for their grounds.

After some words from Hon. Mr. BLANCHET the item was adopted, as also were those of $107,000 for Rideau Hall, and $25,000 for Public Buildings generally, it being understood that on the motion for concurrence more detailed information would be afforded upon the former.

The item of $120,000 for harbors, piers and lighthouses was also passed after some general discussion, together with $6,000 for roads and bridges; $15,000 for slides and booms; $80,500 for rent and repairs of Public Buildings; $15,000 for Surveys and Inspections; $14,000 for Arbitrations and Awards; $10,000 for Miscellaneous Public Works; Ocean and River Steam Service $129,600; Lighthouses and Coast Service $204,622; Marine Hospitals $37,000; Fisheries $36,800; Culling Timber $75,000; Railway and Steamboat Inspection $11,550; Seignorial Commission $6,000; Indians $8,400. Upon Miscellaneous items a protracted discussion took place in an all but empty House upon the sum of $93,912 for expenses connected with Confederation and Imperial legislation thereon, after which the total Miscellaneous vote of $211,312 was agreed to, and the last item of 1869 estimates, collection of Revenue $2,179,507 passed also, when the House resumed, and rose at twenty-seven minutes to three this morning.

O Infelice, Mr. Kimber, to-night, at Her Majesty's Theatre.

FROM SANDWICH ISLAND.

Terrible and Destructive Volcanic Eruption.

Over One Thousand Shocks of Earthquake Felt.

A Wave Sixty Feet High.

Great Loss of Life, and Immense Destruction of Property.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 7.—Sandwich Island's advices give accounts of a terrible volcanic eruption by Mannaloa, on March 27 and 28. One thousand earthquakes were felt during the two weeks following. Two thousand earthquake shocks occurred at Warscena. The earth opened in many places, and a tidal wave, sixty feet high, rose over the top of the cocoa trees for a quarter of a mile inland, sweeping human beings, houses, and everything moveable before it. A terrible shock prostrated churches and houses, and killed in all one hundred people, besides a thousand sheep and cattle. The crater vomited a river of red hot lava five or six miles long, which flowed to the sea at the rate of ten miles per hour, destroying everything before it and forming an island in the sea. A new crater, two miles wide has opened, and throws streams of fire a thousand feet high. The villages off shore were all destroyed. Great suffering and terror prevails.

FR. PYNE'S LECTURE ON ENGLAND'S MISSION.

Then let us as a consequence, to a man, resolve that we will never be the willing instruments, in the hands of any, in permitting our laws, our liberties or our lives, to be placed in jeopardy by the smallest inroad upon that palladium of our safety, the "British Constitution," in the acquisition of which let us not forget, that we are the repositories of our Sydneys, our Hampdens, our Howards, our Russells, our Cromwells glories, and that if we suffer their bequests to us in the shape of liberty, and the resistance to despotic power, to be nullified that then these great men have lived, suffered and died in vain. Having thus shewn that England in the past has proved herself the cradle in which popular fights against all descriptions of despotism have triumphed, and that now when the political horizon of the world is clouded beyond example, and that collisions may be possible at any moment, as the report of the armament and preparation for war has resounded through the world, and the spirit of liberty may again have to struggle and do battle for its existence, and no man can tell where that struggle may begin, or where the blow may fall, as the powers rush to arms with an ability to destroy hitherto unknown, and the ingenuity of the world is exhausted in the effort to produce the most deadly implements of destruction, although in this approaching conflict England is not mixed up at present, yet the lovers and supporters of liberty in all this vast continent, know well that in this little island, the dauntless spirit of our ancestors is still to be found, in all its pristine power, and that though we lost a thousand battles, we are still animated by our faith in our mission, and as long as we are true to ourselves we are indomitable, our energies inexhaustible, and our hatred of tyranny only equalled by our love of liberty, and the oppressed peoples of those enslaved countries know that only to our enlightened views can they in reality look in their day of trouble, for protection and countenance. Yet these are the reasons why these foreign despots hate and fear England and derisively call us a nation of shopkeepers. But we have taught them, shopkeepers though we are, that our principles, our objects, our desires are superior to theirs. We have also taught them, though they declare with sneers that we are not a military nation, yet that we can fight, and hitherto generally with success, for we have proved to the world that our resolution, our perseverance, our courage, and that essentially British quality our pluck, have never failed us yet, and animated by those qualities, and by the knowledge that we fight on behalf of what is progressive, right and true, and above all by the belief that in our efforts, our God is on our side, we have as a general result proved invincible, for we have faith in the words of the immortal bard, who says:

"What stronger breastplate, than a heart untainted,
Thrice is he armed that hath his quarrel just,
And he but naked, 'Though locked up in steel,'
Whose conscience with injustice is corrupted."

And now I shall introduce to your notice another portion of what in my opinion England has proved to be a part of her mission, namely, the healthy and vigorous tone imparted to public opinion, by her free press. There is no other country in Europe, that would dare to allow its Government, its constitution, its acts, and its laws, to be discussed in the press with absolute freedom, but England, and this I conceive to be one great element of her superiority over other nations, for she teaches that true liberty has nothing to conceal from her people, it is only the despot that has cause to fear free discussion, for it is only that perfect light on all subjects can only be attained by the free expression of public opinion, secured to us by the laws governing the public press, now in our country emphatically known as the fourth power or estate, for it is found that our liberties and privileges have no safeguard so powerful and effectual as our free press, unceasingly watching and guarding at every avenue the smallest encroachment upon the rights and liberties known to be ours. Our public men are kept in a state of watchfulness and usefulness by the wholesome check kept over them by the vigilance of the press, which supports them in well doing, and at once calls attention to their backslidings, and thus secures to the public the efficient and useful discharge of their official duties; and in fact both in public and private life, the press being the exponent of public opinion, exercises a most salutary and useful influence, powerful in advancing the spread of every necessary movement, and equally powerful in checking the advance of dangerous or licentious action. And when we contrast what we call the liberty of the press in our free country, with the enslaved and shackled state of the press in other countries, we ought indeed to feel thankful that we live in a land where liberty is a solid reality, and not a hollow pretence; where no tyrant can oppress us, and where, as long as we obey our wise, wholesome, and judicious laws, no man can hurt us, no man can make us afraid, and these inestimable blessings I claim as results of England's mission in this behalf.

And now I must pass to the consideration of another portion of her mission, in which I think, it will not be difficult to prove that England is pre-eminently great. The portion of her mission which will next engage your attention, will be the consideration of her efforts as the great colonizer, and upon this portion of England's mission my task involves no doubtful statements. Here she is, as said before, pre-eminently the foremost nation, her efforts in this direction are not confined to any portion of the world's surface; on every continent her colonies are found, she has laid the foundations of several vast nations, and her glories in this behalf are not even approached, in any degree by corresponding efforts of a competitive character by any nation in the world. I regret to be obliged to say in the early history of colonization, England's action has not been as enlightened as that which the increased knowledge of the age has induced her more modern legislators to adopt. In the old times newly discovered countries were looked upon in a very different light from what they are at present, and a knowledge of the proper way in which to make them best subserve the great objects of enlightened civilization, was not then, for want of experience, as well understood as it is now. Hence arose the trouble which resulted in what we call the American revolution, or the struggle of the North American Provinces, for the attainment of their liberty or independence, and in this struggle the eye of true philosophy can see nothing, but the same indomitable resolution of the Anglo-Saxon race, never to submit to any species of tyranny, or in other words permit themselves to be enslaved, but in this struggle, we ought never to forget that England at the time was governed by a very obstinate King, and he was instructed by an equally obstinate Minister, but the heart of England's wisest and best statesman was with the colonists in their efforts, and if the advice of that great orator Burke, or of that profound statesman the great Earl of Chatham, had been adopted, it is likely that at this day the North American States would still be British Colonies, and whether with the constitution and laws that we at present enjoy, and the real and solid liberty we possess, America would not be greater and happier than she is now, in my humble opinion, is by no means doubtful. However, she is a giant, sprung from England's loins, and rushes with the strength of a giant to the accomplishment of her destiny, and if she be only true to the antecedents of her race, to the traditions of her ancestry, her future may yet be glorious, and she may in the history of the world, as her great progenitor has done, make her mark, by adopting civilization as her mission, but she has difficulties and dangers to encounter, which will require the exercise of moderation and wisdom to adjust, and if these principles prevail in her councils, as we may be permitted to hope they will, she may again regain her place, and become a leading nation in the councils of the world. So much for one great nation of English origin, the result of English colonization, on this continent, and then again our admiration of England's conscientious discharge of both the spirit and the letter of her mission, must be apparent when we consider the parental care manifested for the aboriginal inhabitants of the colonies (whose lands have been reclaimed by her people, from a state of wilderness), in order that they should not, from the absorption of these lands for the purposes of civilized life, be deprived of the means of living, by either the avarice or vices of those with whom they might by the exigencies of their position be brought into contact. She has caused to be enacted certain laws regulating the conduct of the white population, amongst whom they are found, as in the case of the Indian population of this Canada of ours. We are not permitted to sell them spirits or intoxicating liquors, under heavy penalties, unless for medicinal purposes, and numbers of other special enactments have been framed for their protection, in order that they should suffer as little as possible from the necessary changes in their position, effected by the advent amongst them of the white population, who would otherwise have rapidly absorbed their hunting grounds for agricultural purposes, but that here our nation's mission of good will towards man stepped in, and made a provision to avert the evils of this state of things, certain without this provision to occur, and somewhat in danger of occurring in spite of this provision unless the department of our Government charged with the management of their affairs, true to the trust imposed upon them, exercise both vigilance and diligence in the discharge of their duties. And here I must be excused if I dilate a little upon this portion of the history of England's humanizing mission, as I feel that to us in this country is entrusted the honor of England, in carrying the provisions attached by England to our assumption of the management of Indian affairs, into practical effect, and with a proper consideration for the intention of those who entrusted us with its performance. As it was foreseen and has become an established fact, that as the occupation of the lands by white people brought the aborigines into contact with the habits and vices of civilized life, they are found to dwindle away and become an enfeebled and dependant race, gradually tending toward final extinction, therefore England has made provision for this lamentable state of things by setting apart for their specific use, certain portions of the lands of this country, at one time entirely theirs. These grants of public lands in this dependancy of the British Empire have been set apart by the Sovereigns of England, and their management entrusted to a department styled the Indian Department for the faithful and proper management for the sole use and benefit of the Indians of the different tribes mentioned, in the Royal deeds conferring these lands, and in the law Confederating these Provinces the Secretary of State for Canada for the time being is made the principal officer directing the action of the Indian Department, which gives employment to a certain number of gentlemen whose business it is to manage those lands so as best to subserve the interests of these Indians, and for which purposes only their services are required, and as this is a part of England's mission entrusted by the newly enacted laws of this Confederation to the Government of this country, it behooves every honest feeling and philanthropic man, possessing influence in this country, to see that the affairs of these loyal people are humanely, honestly and efficiently administered; in order that England's mission in this behalf, specially entrusted to us, should redound to the credit of the great nation of which we form a part, and that by our acts, at all events, the humanizing nature of England's mission may not be tarnished by unjustly, either by neglect or any other means, withholding from the remnant of these nations still remaining amongst us that just and equitable transaction of their affairs which will best subserve the intention of their "great mother," as they delight in calling our beloved and illustrious Queen.

As I am myself, at present, an envoy from a tribe of these Indians, to implore from the Government of this country, through the department entrusted with the management of their affairs, the settlement of some long admitted claims they possess against the Government, neglected or permitted at all events to lay for years useless and unproductive to them, I am here, however, glad to say that after a patient investigation of these long neglected matters, the Secretary of State for Canada has caused reports from the statements I laid before him to be made and submitted to him, and has promised in the most impressive manner, that as soon as possible after the close of this Session of Parliament, he will complete and finally settle these long pending claims, and from the wellknown industry of the Secretary of State, I feel confident that he will to the letter redeem his promise, and I trust I shall, in a future lecture from this place, be able to assure you that the officials of our Dominion have done their duty, and that England's glorious mission of consideration and mercy to these her helpless, though loyal, subjects, has not been suffered to be tarnished by us. And now in continuation of the colonizing portion of England's mission I may mention that Africa contains her thriving colonies, the West Indian Islands are also her tributaries; she has established a vast Empire in India already great and important in every way, her colonies in Australia too have attained already enormous proportions making them even now important and thriving countries. In her own possessions alone she can now obtain nearly a sufficient supply to make her independent of foreign countries for her cotton manufactures, and her mission in this behalf brings us into direct contact with the most interesting and surprising of all her wonder working efforts, namely, the establishment of this great Dominion of Canada formed by the consolidation and Union of British North America into one great Confederation. And this Union now so far completed contains the Provinces of Ontario, Quebec, Nova Scotia and New Brunswick, and preparations are being completed, we are informed, for the admission of other portions of this vast territory, until the Dominion of Canada shall be bounded on the North by the Icy Ocean, on the South by the United States of America, and on the East and West by the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans, respectively: a territory of vast extent, and containing within itself every variety of climate and soil to be met with in the temperate zone, a region teeming with agricultural and mineral wealth, and I believe with the most extensive territory at present in the world of heavily timbered land, her fisheries of every description are unsurpassed on the world's surface, and it abounds in almost every production, which in other countries constitutes the wealth of nations, unrivalled water communication by lakes and rivers of stupendous magnitude. The parts of this vast Dominion already united are as large as the Empire of France, the Kingdoms of Prussia, Holland and Belgium, and the Republic of Switzerland, and contain a population which though small as compared to its area are a hardy and industrious people, resolute and determined, in the maintainance of their liberties and their position, jealous of the smallest interference with their established rights and privileges, and though courteous to all in their political and commercial relations, yet determined in the maintainance of their individual autonomy as a distinct nation, and able already to push through many difficulties in establishing markets for their productions, as evinced by their success in trade since they were thrown on their own resources by the abolition of the Reciprocity Treaty, for some time existing between them and their neighbors on the other side of the line, which by many it was predicted would be ruinous to us, of this Dominion; but prophecies of this kind are not always verified by results, for it is generally found in commercial matters that the nation enacting the antiprogressive policy, prohibiting intercourse, by reciprocal relations, suffers from the change, as America by its retrogressive acts in this instance has by its own people been admitted to have done, and the results upon the other hand have proved serviceable to us by increasing our knowledge of our own resources and capabilities, and thereby rendering us more independent and self-reliant, qualities which in the early history of every progressive nation have eventuated in maintaining relations of equality, reciprocity and respect with the foremost nations of the world, and in the future of this vast Dominion, the political economist cannot fail to see both the possibility and the probability of eventuating a great and illustrious nation, prepared to run "pari passu" with its great progenitor in transmitting to its remotest prosterity the effects of enlightened and civilized action. But in this effort to attain national, political and commercial eminence we have to work, and we have to be true to ourselves; our public men must be honest, trust worthy and energetic, they must be patriotic and wise, and in order that they should be so and continue to be so, we must ourselves exercise judgment and discretion in selecting them, and invariably endeavoring to put the right man in the right place, and give him the work he is able and willing to do, and with these precautions wisely and energetically persisted in, our glorious future is certain. Our greatest want at present is a population, which we should spare no efforts in every way to secure, and one of the must obvious means to be immediately set on foot, the most reasonable man will agree, ought to be the promotion of Emigration, by embarking in a system of successful competition with our Yankee neighbours, who hitherto by the practice of every possible and almost impossible manœuvre, have succeeded in beating us hollow, in the efforts to attract to their country those who would have preferred to select our country, provided only the proper efforts had been made in the right direction to induce them to do so, and on this subject, I here wish to state that early in my career, I was employed for many years as inspector of emigrants under the directors in England, and I knew then, and I know now, the plans and systems by which the Yankees secured for their own country the cream of the European emigration, both insular and continental, for they have always been thoroughly convinced of the importance of emigration as an element of national success, and have never left any means untried by which they could attract its tide to their shores. It has been calculated that British North America could sustain a population of enormous magnitude, some have placed it as high as two hundred and fifty millions, therefore there must be a vast area to fill up, and the great question of the day immediately pressing upon our attention, as it strikes me, is the question of emigration, which can only be rendered successful by presenting inducements and advantages equal at all events to those offered in the States, and by taking the proper method of making the facts known and believed in at the proper time and place, by intending emigrants; and there is no department of the public service that would so speedily pay back with interest upon interest, the sums of money spent upon it as a judiciously conducted emigration system, calculated to meet the difficulties and emergencies of the situation. Our land system should be a national system thoroughly different from the jobbing and speculating system practiced in this country, as it is now admitted that one acre of cultivated and inhabited land is of more value to the country than one hundred acres in a state of nature and held back for speculating purposes by land jobbers. We should initiate without delay a properly organized system of emigration, fitted to cope with the opposition it will have to encounter, and if this is done as it ought to be done, I would here venture to declare that before two years would elapse, our emigration statistics, instead of exhibiting the miserable evidences of failure they now exhibit, could be made to show a very different result indeed, and a prosperity and success not at present understood, would be the product of our energetic efforts in this direction. And I am here brought by this portion of my lecture, to the mention of a name which brings me into contact, face to face, with an appalling circumstance of most alarming significance. Before I enter upon it, I would here wish to say, that about a month ago I stated my views on this subject to the late Hon. T. D. McGee, and that enlightened statesman agreed with me as to the necessity for immediate action in the important matter of emigration, and under his auspices I proposed delivering this lecture, but Providence willed it otherwise, and the nation is placed in mourning, by the irreparable loss it has sustained, and the whole country has been thrown into a state of horror, by the fact that the Hon. Thos. D'Arcy McGee was found assassinated on the streets of the Capital, on the morning of the 7th of April. Canada's most gifted citizen, foully murdered in our midst,—a man who had done more to ornament, to consolidate and construct this great fabric of Confederation, than any other man in this wide Dominion possessed the power or the ability to do. The inscrutable design of a mysterious Providence, for the present, shrouds from mortal vision, any feasible reason why this in its wisdom should be permitted to occur. But this investigation into the cause of events, no doubt wisely concealed from us, can lead to no other conclusion than this, that we are compelled to receive it as a dispensation of the Almighty will, unfathomable by human penetration, but no doubt occurring by his permission for some all-wise purpose. The nation mourns the loss of its most gifted citizen, thus taken from it in the plenitude of his usefulness, in the very flower of his age, whose increasing years, in all probability, for a long time to come, would have added to his power of doing good and perfecting more and more his claim to the title his heart delighted in "The Peace maker." Kind hearted, talented son of genius, you have indeed been ruthlessly taken from us, but in all times and in all countries such mysterious dispensations have been permitted to occur, as if to prove to us that we must struggle on in our onward march, without further assistance from that genius whose influences were only for a time lent to us. And to the eye of refined reason our patriot, though dead, yet lives amongst us, his work, his labor done, and his glorious career of usefulness accomplished; never again to be exposed to human vicissitudes, his place in history fixed unalterable now, by mortal acts or deeds, and it is certain that such influence should and will operate upon us who are left behind, as a bright beacon exciting in us an emulation to try as far as our limited capacities enable us, to follow, so bright an example, and it is a gratifying consideration even now to reflect, when the affliction so recent has not afforded time for the nation's heart to cease from bleeding, that he left us with the knowledge warm in his breast, that he enjoyed the love, the admiration, and respect of his fellow laborers in the work of confederating these Provinces. And in this place I cannot refrain from mentioning some of the circumstances connected with his last, but one, public appearance amongst us. I do not in stating this include his parliamentary appearances, for in the discharge of those duties he was most assiduous, and went from the House of Commons some hours past midnight after the delivery of a most important speech, to the spot where the merciless assassin completed his martyrdom. But I allude to the banquet given to him on Patrick's Day at the Russell House in this city, when the Hon. Sir J. A. Macdonald said most emphatically that he was the most self-denying and generous of men; that in order to facilitate harmonious action, amongst the framers of Confederation, he had consented to vacate the position he at the time occupied in the Ministry, in order that some other gentleman might fill his place, and thus by conciliating at his own expense he paved the way to the formation of the Union, a rare instance indeed of disinterestedness in a public man. And Sir John A. Macdonald also in the most outspoken and hearty manner said that the promise of his future career was most encouraging, and ended by pronouncing him both a great man and a great statesman. This statement coming from a man in Sir John's position, himself a farseeing, profound and sagacious politician, must have been gratifying to the patriot, alike honorable to him, and creditable to the great statesman who made it, for it is one of the attributes of an exalted character so nobly to testify to the worthiness of his colleague and contemporary. The Hon. Sir Geo. Cartier also on that occasion bore noble testimony to the services and generous impulses of our martyr's genius, which was also responded to by many of Canada's most gifted statesmen and legislators who were present, and the chairman on that occasion, the Mayor of Ottawa, and other prominent citizens followed in the same strain of eulogy and appreciation. I shall in this portion of this lecture devoted to the notice of this distinguished man say but little more. If I possessed the power as many do of harrowing up your feelings, and exciting profound emotions, I might here have the opportunity, but for want of the necessary power, I shall only say that in the infancy of our existence as a Dominion, we have sustained, humanly speaking, an irreparable loss, we have lost the man whose silver tongue, whose measured and beautiful language, whose sustained and masterly argument, whose kind, noble and philanthropic feelings had the power when exercised by him to still the angry passions, to quell the discordant elements, and to secure the permanence of our Dominion, and all these noble qualities were accompanied by a wisdom every day maturing and ripening, and never more evident than in the last speech he ever made in that House of which he was the chief ornament. He then inculcated the necessity of patience and trusting to the cementing effects of time in smoothing off the sharp angles and roughnesses inseparable from the erection of new structures, and never in his life seemed more thoroughly imbued with the spirit of the character he delighted to enact "the peace maker," than on this occasion. And when he spoke of the sand, lime, hair, and water, which he said required time to temper it, in order to make mortar fit to cement, and be applied to the erection of the building metaphorically represented by our recently built up Confederation, we little thought that by the employment of another metaphor, the cement about to be applied was his own blood, so soon to be shed by the assassin's ball, in order, so far as we can see, that his example and his teaching thus sealed with his blood, would prove the cement which, in order to do reverence to his advice, should bind us together in a holy, a lasting, and harmonious union, which shall prove by the permanence of this Dominion, his imperishable monument, for he, no doubt, lost his life for his fidelity and loyalty to the country of his adoption, the country he contributed so largely to create, and a few ancient words may here suffice for his epitaph,

"Si monumentum queris, Circumspice."

The lecturer then recited the beautiful poem, by Mrs. Hemans, entitled, "England's dead."

Go and hear Madame Waters, to-night, at Her Majesty's Theatre.

[The following note from the Hon. Mr. McCully, correcting a couple of mistakes in our report of the Senate's proceedings, was accidentally mislaid, otherwise it should have appeared on the morning after its reception.—Ed.]

Parliament Buildings, April 28, 1868.

To the Editor of THE TIMES.

Sir,—In your issue of this morning, the reporter represents me in the debate on the Bill for the organization of the Department of Agriculture, as stating that: "In England it is an exceptional state of things for the members of the Government to hold office, there being but two officers in the Government of which Lord Palmerston was Premier." What I said, was the reverse of this, namely, that it was an exceptional state of things, though it sometimes occurred, that members of the Cabinet were without office, and that in 1854, Lord John Russell and Lord Landsdown were both members without office, and the Right Hon. Mr. Walpole was now a member without office.

Again, I am represented as saying: "He believed it was best, were it possible, not to have any bureaus in the Government." It should have been "not to have so many bureaus in the Government."

I know the difficulties the reporters have in catching the language of speakers in so large a hall, and although not very sensitive as to slight mistakes yet upon a subject of so much importance, where the language used was adapted to convey ideas the reverse of that which the report warrants, I beg to trouble you to publish this brief explanation and correction.

Your obt. servt., J. McCully.

Remember the Grand Concert to-night.

Lost.—A small lady's watch with a white face; also two ivory young ladies' work boxes; a mahogany gentleman's dressing case, and a small pony belonging to a young lady with a silver mane and tail. Gianelli beaten again.

Phantom Chorus, by Ladies, to-night.

LOCAL NEWS.

Auction Sale this Evening.—Remember the great auction sale of dry goods this evening at 7 o'clock, at Prud'homme's store, Sussex street. Great bargains may be had.

Fine coral jewellery, bog oak jewellery and a large collection of other goods suitable for wedding and other presents can be seen at Young & Radford's; all new and choice goods and will be sold cheap.

Bazaar.—We beg to direct attention to the advertisement of the Bazaar to be held next week, commencing on Monday, in aid of the St. Patrick's Orphan Asylum.

Auction Sale of Cloths To-day.—Attention is directed to the advertisement, in another column, of Mr. Rowe, auctioneer. The stock is very large and comprises some excellent specimens of cloth. No doubt bargains may be had.

Laying the Corner Stone To-day.—The ceremony of laying the corner stone of the new Episcopal Church, at New Edinburgh, will take place this morning at eleven o'clock. His Excellency the Governor-General will lay the stone.

Grand Concert.—The grand concert in aid of the Building Fund of the new church at New Edinburgh, will be given at Her Majesty's Theatre this evening. We have seen the programme, and feel assured that the concert will be of a high order.

Arrest for Embezzlement.—The chief constable of Prescott arrived here yesterday with a warrant for the apprehension of one Alvin Tupper, late acting as agent for the G. T. R. R. Co., on the boat that crosses over from Prescott to Ogdensburg, and who it is alleged has embezzled moneys from them and others to the amount of upwards of nine hundred dollars. The warrant was put into the hands of Detective O'Neill, who in a little over half an hour had him safely locked up, and last night's train took him back to Prescott. The prisoner is a gentel looking young man, and as we learn, respectably connected.

Caledonia Springs.—We learn with pleasure that Mr. Gianelli, of the "Cosmopolitan," Montreal, has leased for a term of years, that favorite resort of those in quest of health and relief from the heat and dust of the city during the summer months, the Canada House, Caledonia Springs. We think the Hotel Company have done well in committing their splendid property to the administration of so well known and judicious a manager, who with his wonted energy and fertility of resource is not likely to allow its beauties and advantages to be lost sight of, and we heartily wish for himself all the success which his ability, courtesy and enterprise so richly deserve.

Police Court.—Several cabmen were brought up for standing in places other than those appointed as cab stands by the City By-law. The magistrate said he had no wish to deal harshly with the cabmen, but he must enforce an observance of the law. They were all discharged on payment of costs.—Margaret and Catherine O'Connor (sisters) were charged with stealing a variety of articles of children's wearing apparel, a parcel, &c., from the premises of Mr. Michael Kavanagh, where they were living as servants. Mr. Kavanagh sworn, said Margaret left two days ago and Catherine left last evening, when the one who left first came to help her sister away; there was a trunk and a bundle taken away and being led to suspecting that they had taken away things that did not belong to them I followed, when the trunk and bundle were taken and the prisoners arrested; amongst their own clothes were found the articles produced in court and identified as witness' property.—Sergt. Davis said Mr. Kavanagh told him yesterday that he suspected that he was being robbed, and he advised him to let them go, which he did, and he and Mr. Kavanagh followed them and took the trunk and bundle to the Police Station, where the girls sorted out the goods, selecting those articles which belong to Mr. Kavanagh as produced here. Prisoners elected to be tried summarily. Margaret pleaded not guilty, but Catherine pleaded guilty. Margaret was discharged and Catherine sent to jail at hard labor for one month.—A woman named Brown, an American, was charged with keeping a house of assignation and ill-fame. Margaret Jane Scapp testified that she had been living with the prisoner, whom she had known for about two months. The witness was taken to Mrs. Brown's by a man named Starrs, who said he kept a tavern near Sussex street. This man paid witness' board. She received visits from others, but not till after Starrs had left her. The magistrate advised witness to leave the city, and go to some new place to retrieve her character. The prisoner was ordered to leave the city on next Monday morning, or go to jail for three months.

Mass Meeting of Fenians in Hartford, Conn.

Hartford, Conn., May 8.—One of the State Conventions of Fenians which are being held in the principal cities of the Union, convened in this city yesterday. About 50 delegates were present. General O'Neill laid before the Convention the present state of the organization, and his plan for the future, which was approved.

YESTERDAY'S DESPATCHES.

London, May 7.—In Parliament Mr. Whitehead, member for Bedford, moved a resolution to withdraw the annual grant of £30,000 sterling to the Roman Catholic College of Maynooth, and to abolish the regium donum, the grant to the Presbyterians, after the disestablishment of the Irish Church, which was agreed to. The Reform Bill for Ireland was read a second time.

THIS MORNING'S DESPATCHES.

Dublin, May 8.—Gen. Nagle and the other Fenian prisoners, who were captured on board the Jacmel packet Erin's Hope, some time since, and imprisoned, have been released from confinement having previously given the authorities the pledge required. They celebrated their freedom yesterday afternoon, by calling on George Francis Train, who is in jail in this city.

London, May 8.—The Times of this morning has late and official intelligence from the English expedition in Abyssinia. The despatches are dated at Talanta, April 21st. Gen. Napier is expected to start for the Red Sea coast, with his entire army, about the 25th of May. The city of Magdala, the seat of Theodorus' palace, was burnt by the British forces.

London, May 8.—Official despatches have been received at the India office from Gen. Napier, dated at Talanta, Abyssinia, on the 21st of April. After the capture of Magdala thirty guns and mortars belonging to the Abyssinian monarch were destroyed, and the town raised completely. Gen. Napier reports that the Queen and the heir apparent to the throne are in camp. The army will reach the Red Sea coast during May. All the troops were well, and the army trains were well up with the advance guard of the returning forces.

Dublin, May 8.—The case of George Francis Train was before the Bankruptcy Court to-day. In reply to questions put to him Mr. Train said he had no property himself, and no control over that pertaining to his wife. He was recommitted for further examination.

CANADIAN PAIN DESTROYER

Side, Back and Head, Coughs, Colds, Sore Throat, Sprains, Bruises, Cramps in the Stomach, Cholera Morbus, Dysentery, Bowel Complaints, Burns, Scalds, Frost Bites, &c., &c.

THE CANADIAN PAIN DESTROYER HAS now been before the public for a length of time, and whenever used is well liked, never failing in a single instance to give permanent relief when timely used, and we have never known a single case of dissatisfaction where the directions are properly followed; but on the contrary, all are delighted with its operations, and speak in the highest terms of its virtues and magical effects.

We speak from experience in this matter, having tested it thoroughly, and therefore those who are suffering from any of the complaints for which it is recommended may depend upon its being a Sovereign Remedy.

The astonishing efficacy of the Canadian Pain Destroyer, in curing diseases for which it is recommended, and its wonderful success in subduing the torturing pains of Rheumatism, and in relieving Nervous Affections, entitle it to a high rank in the list of Remedies for these complaints. Orders are coming in from Medicine Dealers in all parts of the country for further supplies, and each testifying as to the universal satisfaction it gives

The Canadian Pain Destroyer never fails to give immediate relief. All Medicine Dealers keep it; Physicians order and use it; and no family will be without it after once trying it.

DARLEY'S

Arabian Heave Remedy

AND CONDITION MEDICINE.

IS POSITIVELY SUPERIOR TO ANY or all other preparations for the cure of Heaves, Coughs, Thick and Broken Wind, and all diseases which affect the Wind of Horses; also, as a Condition Medicine, surpassing everything of the kind. It is easy to give, sure to cure, and safe in all cases and at all times, and does not prevent the horse from being worked while using it.

It cleanses the breathing apparatus, by removing from the air-cells the coagulable lymph, or that secretion which in heaves clogs them, causing a difficulty in breathing, and by its action on the diseased part, causing the mucous membrane to resume its natural dimensions, thus equalizing the circulation of the blood, and restoring the distended vessels to their natural size; by its use the horse's appetite is improved, all derangements of the digestive organs corrected, softening the skin, and giving to the coat a sleek and shining appearance.

It must have been by a mis-print that the Leader is made to say that the "General Government" has decided not to try the prisoners now held here by Special Commission. If any such decision has been arrived at, it must have been by the Local Government of Ontario; and it yet remains to be shown whether the extraordinary circumstances of the case are not sufficient to warrant a reconsideration of the decision, assuming that it may have been already formally determined. At all events there is no authority for the assertion that the "General Government" is in any manner responsible for such a conclusion.

We learn that Mr. John O'Farrell, of Quebec, on his return to that city, recently from Ottawa, volunteered the opinion that there was no evidence against Whelan sufficient to convict him, and that if only he (O'Farrell) had a diploma to plead at the Upper Canada bar, he could clear him. It is also said to be the talk in pro-Fenian circles in Quebec, that a subscription should be raised at once, not only to secure the coveted diploma for O'Farrell, but also to make him up a handsome fee for the defence of Whelan; and that this was about to be done. There is no chance of the success of such a movement, if it were attempted. Mr. O'Farrell did once, we understand, appear in Ottawa as the defender of a prisoner at the Assizes without being presented to the Court, and the Judge, from the novelty of the proceeding, and the triviality of the case, permitted the matter to pass without notice. But it is not at all likely that such a proceeding will bear repetition. The prisoner, we have every confidence, will get a fair and impartial trial, even without the reported sympathy and "material aid" of the parties in Quebec, rumoured to be ready to contribute to their defence; but the most improbable thing of all is, that the bar of Upper Canada will be permitted to receive any accession to its strength, merely on their account. Gasconading in Quebec is exceedingly unlikely to have any influence on the case in this region, but how it may affect the parties indulging in it is entirely another affair.

Some time ago we called the attention of our readers to the organization of the clan Fraser in the Province of Quebec. On the 14th instant, there will be a general meeting of the "Frasers," at the Court House, in this city, at ten o'clock a.m., for the organization of the clan for the whole Dominion. The Hon. John Fraser de Berry, the Quebec chief, is now in this city, and we are glad to notice, that already the "Frasers" of Nova Scotia have taken steps to join with their brethren of Quebec and Ontario. The following minute of a meeting, held at New Glasgow, Pictou, will no doubt be read with interest, and we are pleased to understand that the Hon. James Fraser may confidently be expected at Ottawa in time to attend the meeting on Thursday:

A meeting was held in Fraser's Hall, New Glasgow, on Monday the 27th day of April, 1868, at 11 o'clock a. m., to organize the "Clan Fraser" for the County of Pictou, John M. P. Fraser, Esq., Chairman, Jas. A. Fraser, Secretary.

Hon James Fraser being called upon addressed the meeting, and explained its import being in connection with a similar movement lately taken place in the Province of Quebec. It was Moved by Hon. James Fraser, seconded by Donald A. Fraser, Esq., and unanimously passed, that it is desirable that the family of Frasers do organize themselves into a clan with a benevolent and social object, and do now proceed to such organization in sympathy and in accordance with the late movement at Quebec.

Moved by James Fraser, Esq., (Downie,) seconded by Mr Archibald Fraser, and passed unanimously, that the Hon. James Fraser be the Chief of the clan for the County of Pictou, and also be a delegate to the convention to be holden at Ottawa on the 14th day of May next.

Moved by Hon. James Fraser, seconded by Mr. Murdoch Fraser, and passed unanimously, that John M. P. Fraser, Esq., be a Chief for the Eastern District, and Donald A. Fraser, Esq., for the Western District of the County of Pictou.

Extracted from minutes.

THE McGEE INSCRIPTION.

The tablet inscribed to the memory of the late Mr. McGee was uncovered on Saturday morning, and throughout the day attracted public attention. The panel in which the inscription is cut has somewhat the resemblance of highly polished black marble, and many have supposed that such is the case, and that the panel is let into the stone of which the house is built, whereas in fact it is nothing but the surface of the panel cut in the stone, which is the ordinary Gloucester lime stone, polished to a very high degree, shewing that to be its natural colour. The workmanship is greatly admired by all who examine it.

Mr. Mills was well known as a skilful marble-worker before, and this tablet will still further extend his reputation. The gilding, we learn, was executed by our neighbor Mr. Gowan, ornamental carver and gilder. Many photographic views of the tablet were taken on Saturday, which will doubtless find their way all over the Dominion. Our readers are already aware that Mr. Desbarats has had this work done at his own expense. He deserves much praise for the public spirit he has manifested in this matter.

THE INVESTIGATION.

The investigation before the Police Magistrate and the Mayor is still being actively prosecuted by Mr. O'Reilly; but we understand that no more information is to be communicated to the public, as to the facts elicited or the nature of the proceedings, at least for some days.

A Lost Man Found.

David Manchester Still Alive.

Our readers may remember that nearly two years ago, Mr. David Manchester, merchant tailor of this city, disappeared, and a confiding public and disconsolate family were left, apparently at least, under the impression that he had been drowned.

On the 31st of July, 1866, Mr. Manchester started on a fishing excursion with soap and towel, for bathing. A few hours afterwards the skiff was found, in which he had set sail, with all his wearing apparel, his watch, purse, fishing tackle, and the articles before mentioned, thus showing that he had disappeared in pleuis naturalibus, and leading to the natural presumption that he had gone into the river to bathe and been drowned.

Vigorous efforts were made to discover the body. The river was dragged, guns were fired "over the water," but the body did not rise; professional divers went down and explored the bottom of the Ottawa, but the lost man left no trace of his presence there, and finally the search was abandoned as hopeless.

Detective O'Neill, however, hoping against hope, did not, it appears, despair of recovering the body. A series of inquiries were instituted, the result of which led to a very strong suspicion that Mr. Manchester had not "shuffled off this mortal coil," but merely rid himself of one suit of clothes for another; that he had not gone to the bottom of the river but taken shelter from the rays of the sun among the trees, and that instead of leaving for another world, he had merely changed his "local habitation" in this.

These notions were entertained as pretty strong surmises, if not actual verities. Their force was by no means weakened by a report that the missing man had paid a visit to this neighborhood; but whether such was really the fact we cannot say.

There is no doubt that now, however, there can be found more than one credible witness to testify that the spirit of David Manchester is still in the flesh; that the man is, in fact, alive and well; but for reasons of his own, chose to take up his residence at a point rather distant from this city. To show that he did not run away in a state of complete nudity, as the articles found in the skiff apparently indicated, it is only necessary to mention that the bundle which he carried with him when he entered the skiff was not found among his effects. This bundle, no doubt, contained the suit of clothes dressed in which he was said to have been seen in the woods after his supposed drowning. It is also hinted at that Mr. Manchester had some financial troubles which may have furnished the motive for his mysterious disappearance, though they do not justify his having given his friends so much trouble in searching for his body.

CONCERT IN AID OF THE NEW EDINBURGH BUILDING FUND.

This concert came off on Saturday evening at Her Majesty's Theatre, which was well filled with perhaps the most fashionable audience that ever assembled on a similar occasion in this city. His Excellency the Governor-General, Lady and the Honorable Miss Monck, and His Excellency's suite entered a little after eight o'clock, when the band of the Rifle Brigade struck up the national anthem. Amongst other distinguished persons we observed Lord Alexander Russell, accompanied by several of the officers and ladies. Sir John A. and Lady Macdonald, Hon. Mr. Rose and Hon. Mr. Tilley and ladies, with other Ministers, and a large number of Senators and members of the House of Commons, were also present. The magnificent band of the Rifles executed the overture to Figaro, Operatic Selections from Martha and from Don Giovanni, a Duetto with bugle and ophecleide, from Il Barbier de Seviglio, and the Rifle marches, in a style of excellence which drew forth frequent bursts of applause.

Mrs. Waters presided at the piano, and accompanied the young ladies, most of whom were her pupils, and who acquitted themselves in a manner highly creditable to their teacher. We might single out some who excelled the others, but as they are not professional singers, and as all did their best in a good cause, we refrain from making comparisons, or to say more than that they are all entitled to the best thanks of those in whose cause they exerted their talents. The Hon. Mrs. Monck is also justly entitled to the highest praise for having consented to appear as a singer on the occasion; and Mrs. Waters has acted a very meritorious part in organizing and directing the concert, which will add so much to the church building fund.

The theatre was well lighted, and comfortable. The private boxes were festooned with flags, and everything passed off in a most satisfactory manner.

FROM MONTREAL.

Special to THE TIMES.

Montreal, May 9, 1868.

The Evening Telegraph was desperately sold to-day, through the inquisitiveness of a reporter, by a "sell" statement that three men had deserted from the Royal Artillery, and were fired on by the guard on the Island. The sell was meant for the Gazette, but fell into the wrong hands.

Madame Pettepas, the great cantatrice, is going to establish herself in this city permanently.

Weather cloudy.

Markets unchanged.

Fire in Hull.—A fire broke out in a house near the Roman Catholic Church, Hull, on Saturday last, by which four houses were destroyed. It appears that the fire was the result of carelessness. It is said that but for the great exertions of Mr. L. Lairviere, of Wright's Gardens, and some others, the fire would have been much more extensive.

Messrs. Young & Radford having secured the services of first-class working jewellers in etruscan, filagree, plain, fancy and solid gold work, and having made large additions to their work shop are now better prepared to execute any orders with which they may be entrusted than heretofore. Masonic jewels, gold and silver medals, and every kind of gold and silver work done on the shortest possible notice. Remember the place, 30 Sparks-st., and encourage home manufacture.

THE CEREMONY OF LAYING THE CORNER STONE OF THE NEW EDINBURGH EPISCOPAL CHURCH.

The corner stone of the Church of England, now in course of erection at New Edinburgh, was laid on Saturday last by His Excellency the Governor-General. His Excellency arrived on the ground precisely at 11 o'clock, a.m., accompanied by Lady Monck, the Hon. Miss Monck, Col. and the Hon. Mrs. Monck, Lieut.-Col. Irvine, P.A.D.C., and ladies, Captain Pemberton, A.D.C., and others. The viceregal party were received on the ground by the officiating clergymen, the Revds. Messrs. Lauder, Phillipps, Higginson, Dr. Jones and Street, who appeared in their clerical robes, and conducted to the platform erected for the occasion. All things being ready, Rev. G. N. Higginson, incumbent, assisted by the attending ministers, commenced the services by saying: "Our help is in the hands of the Lord, who hath made Heaven and Earth," &c., after which he read the 84th pasalm, then kneeling, several appropriate collects were said. Then all standing up, the clergyman began: "Behold I lay in Zion a chief corner stone, elect, precious." R. "And he that believeth in Him shall not be confounded." V. "The stone which the builders refused is become the head stone of the corner," &c. After this the 127th psalm was read.

His Excellency then advanced to the "corner stone," and placing his hand upon it, said:

"In the faith of Jesus Christ this corner stone is laid in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost, Amen. Here may true faith, the fear of God and brotherly love ever remain, Amen," to which the clergy and people responded. "This is none other than the house of God. This is the gate of Heaven," &c. Then was sung the 100th Psalm, old version. The services were concluded by saying the collect for Saint Bartholomew's Day and singing the doxology.

As usual on such occasions a cavity had been hewn in the stone in which were deposited a set of the coins of the Dominion of Canada, a copy of each of the daily papers of Ottawa, the Canadian Churchman, a prayer book and hymn book, with a copy engrossed on parchment of the following document, which was read by Rev. Mr. Higginson:

To the glory of the ever blessed Trinity in unity, this corner stone of this church, on a site given by the daughters of the late Hon. Thomas McKay, and dedicated to Saint Bartholomew, was laid by His Excellency Charles Stanley, Viscount Monck, Baron Monck of the County of Wexford, Ireland, Governor-General of the Dominion of Canada, &c., &c., on the 9th day of May, in the year of our adorable and only Saviour Jesus Christ, 1868, being the thirty-fourth year of the reign of our Sovereign Lady Queen Victoria, in the first year of the establishment of the Dominion of Canada, being the first year of the establishment of New Edinburgh as an independent parish, in the first year of the incumbency of the Rev. George Noel Higginson, M. A, Trinity College, Toronto, appointed first incumbent of this parish by the Right Rev. John Travers, first Lord Bishop of the Diocese of Ontario, on the festival of Saint Bartholomew, 1867, being the first year of the incorporation of the village of New Edinburgh.

More Fenian Newspapers Seized.—Visits were paid by Detective O'Neill to the news shops on Saturday, where heretofore such merchandise was offered for sale, and succeeded in finding "a few more" papers of the Fenian stripe, and carried them off. We are bound to say that those in whose shops they were found readily gave them up, and we suppose that in future none will be found so silly, as to incur fine and imprisonment by importing such treasonable trash.

An Immense Stream of Lava Under Ground.

The Lava Forms a New Island 400 Feet High.

The Base of the Volcano 30 Miles in Extent.

Immense Destruction of Property.

San Francisco, May 7.—The Honolulu correspondence of the Buletine gives descriptions of the volcanic disturbances, showing that the shock extended to all the islands of the Hawaiian groupe, but no damage is known to have occurred except around Mauna Loa. Numerous extensive land slides accompanied the phenomenon, destroying life and property. The summit and side of a hill 1,500 feet in height, were thrown a thousand feet over tops of trees, and landed in the valley below. The gases that issued afterward, destroyed both vegetable and animal life. Bottomless fissures opened in the mountain side. A lava stream flows under the ground, breaking out in four jets, six miles from the sea, and throwing lava and stones 1,000 to 1,500 feet high. The new island thrown up is four hundred feet high, and is now joined to the main land by a stream of lava a mile wide. A large stream of water has burst from the mountain where the earth eruption occurred. The base of the volcano is about 30 miles in circumference. At least half a million dollars worth of property is destroyed. The King of the Sandwich Islands has issued a proclamation for the relief of sufferers. Many visitors had gone from Honolulu. The worst is thought to be over, but the lava flow continues. It is a grand spectacle.

PARTICULARS OF THE CAPTURE OF MAGDALA.

New York, May 9.—The Herald's Abyssinia special gives the following details of the capture of Magdala: As soon as the English advance came in view the Abyssinian army stood forth in grand array, as if in response to the sight. Theodorus opened at once with mortars on Napier. The British replied with the same description of guns. The fire from the defences having continued a short time three thousand five hundred warriors, setting up loud shouts of joy and revenge, and chanting national songs of triumph, dashed with great ardor down the steep heights from the palace fortress, and charged the British light batteries gallantly. Napier's men stood firm, and the Abyssinians were repulsed, leaving 700 warriors, and two prominent chiefs, killed. The tactics of Theodorus' officers were judicious, and the courage of his soldiers excellent. Aware of his heavy loss, Theodorus forwarded a flag of truce to Napier, enquiring on what terms the English would negotiate a peace. Gen. Napier replied in the name of the Queen, that his terms were unconditional surrender. Theodorus said he would never accept such arbitrary terms; seeing even his present defeat, he would prefer to fight it to the end. In conclusion the King requested Gen. Napier to take the British captives, and go away when they had all been released. The King refused positively a surrender for himself. Magdala was consequently stormed by the English a few days afterwards. During the battle Theodorus attempted suicide on three separate occasions. He was rendered perfectly furious by his defeats. The released captives say they saw three hundred native prisoners killed by the King's orders on the 9th of April. Theodorus was buried in the church at Magdala. The young Prince Theodorus will be taken to England and educated there. Geebayzz, the friendly chief who aided the British army in its march through Tigre, will be duly crowned King of Abyssinia, thus introducing a new dynasty.

DOMINION NOTES—RESUMED DEBATE.

Hon. Mr. CAMPBELL would say a few words in reply to the remarks which had been so ably made by the hon. member who took objection to the second reading of the Bill. He did not know that he was right in saying his hon. friend took objection to the second reading, but he desired to lay before the House views which differed from those to which the Bill gave expression. The arguments which he used may have a great effect upon the minds of many of the hon. members, but he (Mr. Campbell) thought that his hon. friend appeared to confine his attention not so much to what was for the interest of the public, or for the interest to the bill-holders, but to the stand point upon which bankers look upon the proposition. The Bill was not of a compulsory nature for it did not make it imperative upon bankers to give up their circulation, and take notes of the Dominion, but it only gives them permission to do so. He apprehended great confidence would be felt in this Dominion currency by the public, and though it might not meet the views of some bankers it would meet the views of others. It will afford great safety to the public, which will more than counterbalance any inconvenience which might be supposed by some to result from its operation. It gives the banks of Nova Scotia and New Brunswick an opportunity of availing themselves of the same privileges which have been given to Canada proper, and of which one bank in Canada has availed itself. The objection made by his hon. friend (Mr. Macpherson) to the fact that there are two distinct kinds of bills in circulation, was almost answered by another part of his argument. He objected to having the whole circulation of the country in the shape of Government notes, and when he (Mr. Campbell) said there was strength in union, he replied, "Perhaps not; it was better to have several arrows in the quiver, as one perhaps would be sure if the others failed." The very same view would induce one to believe there was safety in having several kinds of circulation. The Government circulation was certainly safe, and his hon. friend was satisfied the circulation of the banks was safe. His hon. friend intimated that when the Bill went into Committee of the Whole, he would move that certain changes should be made in the form of return which banks are required to give. He would not now discuss that matter, as he would have an opportunity of doing it more fully when the Bill went before the Committee. He would deprecate any change being made. He said the House knew that the charters of all the banks expired in 1870, and that legislation to affect the whole Dominion must take place upon that subject during the next Session of Parliament. A series of questions have been framed, and sent not only to bankers, but to others engaged in trade, having for their object to elicit the fullest possible information in connection with banking, in order that the Government and Legislature may be in a position to deal with this subject, which required great care and delicacy, and for which the House and country naturally hold the Government responsible. When we know that legislation of this kind is pending to affect the whole Dominion, and which measure is to be introduced upon the responsibility of the Government, having for its precursor the investigation that is now going on, would it be desirable or proper at the suggestion of a private member, that a change should be made in the character of the returns, which cannot possibly affect banks for more than a few months, and might affect some of them very injuriously during that time. Therefore, he trusted that his hon. friend (Mr. Macpherson), for whose knowledge he had the highest esteem, would not press the suggestion of which he had given notice, to adopt another form of returns for the form now in use. He hoped he would allow the Bill to be read without further pressing his objections to it, as the Legislature would soon have to deal with the subject in all its parts, including the form of returns to be made by the banks.

Hon. Mr. BUREAU (in French) said the subject of banking is one that interests very particularly the Dominion of Canada, and there is no subject that merits a greater degree of attention, particularly on the eve of the date when their charters expire in 1870. The failure of two of the old banks has awakened the public attention, and we naturally enquire if the present system affords sufficient guarantees for the public generally. What is the system prevailing in this Dominion? In 1850 we introduced a new system—it was the free banking system. The Government, through the Inspector-General, granted to certain individuals who complied with the Act 13, 14 Vict., Chap. 21, notes—paper money—for circulation to an amount equal in value to the bonds or debentures purchased from the Government, which became the principal guarantee for the redemption of this paper money in gold, in case that the holders demanded it. This Act was subsequently amended in 1851 and 1856; these notes could not be offered as legal tenders, which was the reason the free banking system did not succeed as the Government of the day expected. The ancient system that prevailed throughout the Dominion of Canada, is based on the following principles:—Each bank has the right to issue paper money, redeemable at the office where they are issued, in the following proportions:—

1st. To the amount of paid up capital.
2nd. To the amount of gold on hand.
3rd. To the amount of value of Government bonds.

The directors and stockholders of these banks were responsible as follows:—The Directors are jointly and severally responsible for breach of trust or bad management towards the creditors and stockholders. The stockholders are only responsible for double the number of shares held in the bank. The banks in general were bound to buy Government securities for 1-10th of the paid up capital. The success of this system cannot be denied, and thanks to the wisdom and good administration of our moneyed institutions, it has almost without exception succeeded perfectly. The Government has commenced a new principle, the issue of paper money, granted by the Dominion of Canada, and this paper money, notwithstanding that it is redeemable in gold on demand, can be offered as a legal tender for payment of all debts contracted in the country. This is a step in the right direction, and a principle which will generally give the best possible guarantee. It is to be desired that a uniform system would be adopted which would be calculated to answer all public and private interests. When the State grants the right which exclusively belongs to it, that of issuing money, to establish conventional value for the convenience of commercial exchange, it is only just and reasonable that the State would grant such privileges only on the best guarantees. And the State ought, as a principle resulting from such a transfer of its rights, guarantee the public, and hold themselves responsible for the redemption of this currency for commercial exchange, such as the paper money thrown on the market by parties invested with such powers. What then is the system which would best attain this end? Undoubtedly that which prevails in the Great Republic of the United States, and adopted on the 3rd of June, 1864, that is to say, the Act intituled, "An Act to provide a national currency secured by a pledge of United States bonds, and to provide for the circulation and redemption thereof." By this Act the capital of the circulation is limited to $300,000,000, the circulation of the paper money of these banks had reached in 1863 $403,357,346. This paper money is received in payment of all debts, except for customs duties on importations, and in redemption of the national currency. The State guarantees these notes and bears on their face this guarantee, moreover the Banking Association who bind themselves besides to redeem these notes in gold if required. All is administered by one "comptroller of the currency under the direction of the Secretary and Treasurer." He is appointed by the President as are all the other important nominations. His salary is $5,000 and his deputy $2,500. This "Comptroller," should only issue 90 per cent of these State bonds, bearing at least 5 per cent, and if these bonds become depreciated in value the Comptroller ought to exact other securities not depreciated, or the difference in other bonds. It is to be regretted that in the Bill now under consideration the distribution and examination of these Provincial notes are not placed under the direction and immediate responsibility of a Public Department of the Dominion of Canada. There are thirteen Departments for our small population, which are more than we require. Then why create a useless and expensive patronage in naming useless Commissioners—three for the Province of Quebec, two for Nova Scotia and New Brunswick. The system which prevails in the United States, is preferable for uniformity and for good administrative facilities. There is only one point to consider, is it in the public interest to limit the rate of interest when the Government will come down with a general measure? Yes; in the United States the Act of Congress already cited fixed the rate of interest at 7 per cent, when it is not already fixed in the State of the Confederation (for each State has the right to regulate the rate of interest.) The following is the rate of interest in the different States: 6 per cent. in Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Delaware, Maryland, Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Arkansas, Florida, Illinois, Iowa, Kentucky, Mississippi, Missouri, Ohio, and Tennessee; in New York, Georgia, Michigan and Wisconsin, 7 per cent.; in Alabama and Texas, 8 per cent.; and in California, 10 per cent. On railway bonds and special contracts, some variations are made from these rates in some of the States. It is true that in England the rate of interest is free, and that country can be cited as an example to follow, but since when? The rate of interest had fluctuated frequently when in 1837 and 1839 the power was granted with certain restrictions, again in 1854, only all these restrictions were abolished; but can our position admit of comparison with a kingdom which has acquired for ages the highest degree of riches and national prosperity? In France after having abolished all the restrictions on money loans, it has been again deemed wise in the interest of society to fix the maximum rate of interest. In England, up to the present, there is no reason to complain of this power, for the immense capital of the English people is a guarantee that the rate of interest will be always reasonable, by reason of the supply that there will be in the money market. We have the proof in examining the discount charged by the Bank of England from 1st January 1844, to 1864: In 1844, the rate of interest was 4 per cent. for 249 days, and 2½ for 406 days in 1845; in 1845 from 3 to 3½, 1846, 3, 1847 (financial crisis) from 3½ to 8; at this last rate 28 days at 5, 119 days, &c.; in 1848 from 3 to 4; in 1849 2½ 399 days, 1852 from 2 to 2½, 1853 from 2½ to 5, 1854 5 to 5½, 1855 from 3½ to 5, 1856 from 5 to 6, 1857 (another crisis) from 6 to 10,—10 45 days, 8 31 days,—1858 3½ to 6, 1858 from 3½ to 6, 1859 from 2½ to 4½, 1860 from 3 to 6, 1861 from 3 to 7, 1862 from 2½ to 3, 1863 from 3 to 7, 1864 from 6 to 9. England is at this day making the experiment of a new system, and if it does succeed, it will certainly be there where capital abounds. In Canada, on the contrary, we have not the necessary capital for developing the immense national riches which we possess, and prosecuting the different branches of industry, and in a country where capital is so limited, the loans of money must be limited also. It is to be hoped that the Government will be ready to offer a measure as soon as possible, relative to our financial institutions, based on the best guarantees. It is of the greatest importance that on a measure such as this we make our views and opinions known, as well as through the press. He finished a long, able speech by saying he would support the present Bill, as it gives to the paper money that guarantee which the public has a right to expect from the Government of this country.

Hon. Mr. CHAPAIS said in answer to the remarks of the hon. member who last addressed the House (Mr. Bureau) that this very day the Government would give notice of resolutions in the other House, to fix the legal rate of interest. Our own legal tender notes resembled very nearly the American system of currency, and he agreed with other hon. members that the currency of the United States was in many, if not every, respect, the best suited to the wants of this country. The Government were considering a general system of banking, and would be prepared to bring it forward next Session, and he would assure the hon. members that the guarantees for the security of the public would occupy the best attention of the Government, as one of the most important and desirable provisions that could be introduced into such a measure.

Hon. Mr. WILMOT, referring to a statement he made when the Currency Bill was before the House a few days since, in speaking of the course of trade, had inadvertently said, that when the rate of exchange was below 9½ per cent, at which the sovereign by law was fixed, that gold left the country: the reverse was the fact. He intended to have said, that when the premium on bills was above that rate, sufficiently high to pay the charges and a commission, gold was exported from the country, causing the banks to restrict their discounts, and withdraw their circulation, rendering money scarce, and throwing labor out of employment, which created wealth. In regard to the Bill now before the House he had much pleasure in supporting it, as he considered it a movement in the right direction, and he believed it would have a beneficial effect if carried out on the trade of the whole Dominion. Hitherto he had to regret, that the measures relating to trade, &c., brought in by the Government, had not met his approval, and what was of much more importance for the well working of the Union, had not met the approval of the great majority of the people of the Province from which he came. He considered that the issue of Government legal tender notes would give security to the public, and at the same time the banks would be indemnified by receiving interest upon their issue at the rate of five per cent, besides a commission of one per cent annually in managing them. This subject of banking and currency had long engaged the attention of the Parliament of Great Britain. He (Mr. Wilmot) happened to be in England in 1856, when Hon. Mr. Watkin brought forward a motion asking for a commission to investigate the causes of the panic which had just occurred, and the Government promised to take the matter into consideration and investigate it. We see also in the United States an extraordinary revolution of their whole system of currency and finance. It is a question more important in his opinion than any other which can be brought before this Parliament. He knew it was a dry subject to talk about, although the question of economy was one which entered into the consideration of every family, and affected every individual. Rev. Sidney Smith had said "that broaching the currency question was the end of all argument, for the subject was so deep, he thought the bottom had dropped out." We should endeavour, however, to get at the bottom of the subject, instead of going off on side issues. Money after all is but the representation of commodities produced by labour, and the supply of it should be governed by the same natural law of supply and demand, that regulates barter. Upon that principle he was a free trader, but if a monopoly is given to the holders of money, while the system of free trade was applied to the holders of all other property, then he was rather a protectionist than a free trader. In adopting a banking and financial policy for this new Dominion, we should not only look to Great Britain for an example, but also to the United States, and other countries, and take that which was best from all, and most suitable to our circumstances. The issue of notes on public securities is not confined to the United States (£15,000,000) fifteen millions of pounds of the notes of the Bank of England, are issued upon that amount of the national debt. The issue now proposed will be a legal tender, received for duties and taxes, and secured by the Dominion. We have had experience that banks have failed in Canada and in New Brunswick.

Hon. Mr. McCULLY—What about the banks of Nova Scotia?

Hon. Mr. WILMOT was coming to that directly. It was a fact that Treasury or Government notes had been in circulation in Nova Scotia ever since he (Mr. Wilmot) could recollect. The banks in that Province, like those in England, have been limited to five pound notes, all the circulation below that is in provincial notes, and the result has been, that with an authorized issue of notes to the extent of $800,000, they have been able to put up most of their public buildings, without paying one penny interest for them, while no bank has failed, and as large dividends have been made as by banks in any other part of the Dominion, therefore, so far as the banks are concerned, no injury is likely to arise to affect them in consequence of carrying out this bill. The amount asked for is $8,000,000; he (Mr. Wilmot) would rather have seen it $13,000,000; if $8,000,000, it would be no larger an amount per head for the Dominion than now exists in Nova Scotia. If this system has worked well in Nova Scotia, and been a great advantage to the public, while it has inflicted no injury upon the banks, what harm can arise from extending it to the whole Dominion? Money is that which the law makes a legal tender. Currency may be of different kinds; money extinguishes debt like barter; bank notes transfer debt. If he (Mr. Wilmot) owed $4,000, and had bank notes, while he held them the bank that issued them would be his debtor, but after paying the debt, the party receiving them would be the creditor of the bank. These notes being issued by the State, and the whole property of the country being taxable for them, are better security than notes issued by a joint stock company, with a limited liability. One of the cleverest financiers of the day, Mr. Gladstone, lays down the proposition that all money, whether metallic or paper, should be issued by the State, and the public should be thoroughly secured, and a portion of the benefits accruing from the circulation should go to the revenue. Sir Robert Peel introduced a currency measure to take from the banks the power of issuing notes, and to place it in the issue department of the Bank of England. This was known as the Bank Act of 1844, which according to the bullionist theory was to make the Bank of England notes convertible into gold on demand at all times. The first trial of this Act was in the crisis of 1847, when the Government was compelled to authorize the bank to issue notes beyond what the law provided. This was repealed again in 1857, and in the late crisis of 1866 the joint stock banks in London held a larger amount in deposit of the Bank of England than the whole amount of gold in both the banking and issue departments, and they threatened to withdraw it unless the Government authorized the bank again to break the law. Had they demanded and received their deposits in gold, all other depositors and note holders would have been deprived of their legal rights, and the Bank of England note would have been inconvertible, not that the Government were to have the right to issue notes to any extent they pleased, but that a portion of the annual taxation should be a basis for that issue, and in banking purposes the extent of that issue should depend upon certain specified securities, to be deposited in a public department. In reply to Mr. McCully he said he did not argue against the proposition that there should be some mode by which the Government should give security, but at the same time he held that the State had an inherent right in case of absolute necessity to issue notes simply upon their credit, as had been done in the United States.

Hon. Mr. MACPHERSON—What security will those legal tenders rest upon?

Hon. Mr. WILMOT said there was a limit to the amount to be issued; the Government have the power by the action of Parliament to tax the Dominion of Canada to the extent of $14,000,000, therefore to that extent there can be no great loss, if power to issue those notes be given to the Government, as they must get money in some shape from the people. It was shown by statistical returns that there were $1,400,000,000 invested capital in Canada, and a portion of this was invested in public works, while the whole amount of our banking circulation, according to his hon. friend's, (Mr. Macpherson) statement, was about $12,000,000 for Ontario and Quebec, to which must be added about $2,000,000 for the Lower Provinces. This would make about $3 per head in the shape of bank circulation, or one per cent on $1,400,000,000 invested capital. Now, we know all that money is required for is to exchange the surplus products of industry, and have we circulating medium enough to meet the requirements of the country? We find by the statistical returns given in the "Year Book," 1868, that the amount of raw material alone produced in Canada is valued at $210,500,000, without taking into account the value of manufactured goods. In the United States it has been their policy, caused by their necessities, to have a very extensive currency, amounting to $925,755,000, or $30 per head, while we have only $3 per head. This extensive circulation has entirely revolutionized the preconceived ideas of political economists, for the general idea was that by issuing paper, coin was driven out of the country, and the fact now appears that they have $183,000,000 more gold than prior to the war. By issuing these notes we will create an additional amount of legal tender money to carry on trade, as it cannot be carried on with gold alone, on account of the amount we have being so infinitesimal, compared with the requirements of trade. The internal trade of a country can be carried on with properly secured paper, and all that gold is wanted for, is to pay the balances between the imports and exports. He then referred to the late bank failures in Canada being caused by a panic, which would not have occurred if these notes had been in circulation, as they would have been guaranteed by the Dominion, and there would be no running for gold. He said the circulation of a country in the first place, belongs to the State, and if the Government have parted with it, they have parted with a public right. He had expressed no opinion in favor of a larger amount of Government circulation than they could tax the people for, and for banking purposes, based upon public securities. He hoped to see the day when there would be in the Dominion of Canada, a circulation sufficient to represent the surplus products of the country, so that they would not be subject to those panics which had inflicted so much injury and ruin upon the commercial community. He then referred to the panic which took place in England in 1825, when seventy of the banks failed, but afterwards nearly all paid twenty shillings in the pound. This panic, he said, was not caused by the want of realized wealth, but by the want of a sufficient representative in circulating medium. Our ships then which had sold for £13 a ton in 1825, went down to £2 10s. in 1827. He had had a great deal of experience in business and legislation, and had studied this subject well, and he had now endeavored to give some of his reasons why he should support the Bill. He also referred to the various panics and suspension of specie payments in the United States in 1837 and 1857.

Hon. Mr. REESOR said the hon. member who had just sat down, had made a most extraordinary speech, having taken the ground that the Bill before the House ought to be passed, and at the same time he takes the ground that we want more currency in the country. If the Bill before the House is carried, and goes into operation, the banks being brought under its influence, as shewn yesterday, the effect must be to lessen the amount of currency circulating in the country to the extent of $6,000,000. That is the opinion of bankers and business men throughout the country. Under their charters banks are allowed to discount bills to three times the amount of gold and provincial bonds they have in hand—three times the amount of these available securities which are held in reserve under this bill. If the banks come under its operation they must withdraw all their circulation, and give the Government whatever they may have in reserve, and get in return legal tender notes to the amount of that reserve. Then we have only the legal tender notes to work on, and that is the reason why the circulation of the country will be reduced, which is a fact no one will dispute. There is not a merchant in the country but takes that view of the question. The Government only hope that by some means or other, people will manage to draw money from other sources to supply this want. The Government say they want to take from the people this currency, which is doing the business of the country, and which has been made available since the establishment of the banks. Take for example a manufacturing firm, it may be for working iron, (and there was such an establishment in the county which he had the honor to represent,) take a firm like that, enjoying bank accommodation to the extent of $500,000, withdraw one-third of that accommodation, and the result would be that they must turn away one-third of their hands. Thus there would be a loss of one-third in the means of productive industry, one-third less consumption of imported goods and so much less ability to pay taxes: this will affect the whole revenue of the country. Apply this to the whole manufacturing industry of the country and it will ruin some, and by their failure it will bring down others, and lead to the most disastrous results. A certain writer on political economy has said that money to the trade of a country, is like tools to an artisan. You take away the tools of a mechanic and the value of his art is gone. In like manner if you take away from the business part of the community the currency, the tools of trade, you deprive it to that extent of employing labor. In referring to the banking system of England he said this was a young country, and we wanted capital to develope its resources. In England the people were not only able to lend to their own Government, but they were able to invest in the bonds of the United States, Canada, and many other countries. The investments of English capitalists were not limited to national securities, but through agents it was extended to mortgages on real estate, and a large amount was so invested in Canada. The payment of interest caused a great drain of gold out of this country; therefore we are not in a position to do away with the advantages of banking capital. Even in Great Britain, where there is such a vast accumulation of wealth, they sustain a joint stock banking system, and not Government legal tender currency, such as is being introduced in Canada. If the Government must have more money let them increase the taxes, or borrow elsewhere, and not take from us the means of employing labor by which the resources of the country may be developed and the population increased. Let the Government borrow the money direct from other countries, as they can do it on terms better than individuals can. They can borrow it at 6 per cent., while single individuals would have to pay nine or ten per cent. Some of the hon. members who support this measure imagine that we are relieving ourselves of any difficulty that might arise from a failure of the banks to pay specie; he would remind them that nearly every country in the commercial world, within the last two hundred years, had tried a national banking system and found it a failure. It was tried in Russia, Austria and France, and proved unsatisfactory. When there was a demand for gold they had to stop specie payments, and their notes were sold at a discount. The same results had attended the system in the United States, but there it had been adopted as a matter of necessity, and they were involved in debt, a large part of which had grown out of the depreciation of their national currency. Their credit became so poor, owing to a disastrous war, that their gold at one time was at a premium of 295 per cent., so that in incurring a debt of $3, they in reality only received what was worth little more than one dollar in gold. The worst is yet to come with that country, because so long as it was running into debt, and while it continued to issue notes, so long it was prosperous in trade, but since these debts are being paid, and while the amount of circulation is being contracted they must suffer in proportion to that contraction. Whatever arguments may be urged on behalf of the American system, because they adopted it to carry on a war, they do not apply in favor of this Bill. This Bill is not founded upon the American basis, because their plan was to increase instead of decreasing the circulation. By this means their commercial enterprises have been for a time extended. The Government of England has never ventured to take from the banks their circulation, but have on the other hand protected the banks as they have the commerce of the country; neither have they interfered with the banks of Scotland. There is not a commercial country in Europe that has in operation the system proposed to be adopted here. It is extraordinary that we seem to have so much more wisdom in the financial departments of our Government than they claim in any other country in the world, that we should introduce all at once, the principles involved in which have been discarded for years by the statesmen of Europe. What do the supporters of the Bill say in order to urge upon us the necessity of passing it? They say banks have failed in Canada. Very few have failed. The Bank of Upper Canada was established forty-five years ago, and a Provincial currency would have depreciated in passing through what that bank had to pass through. In 1837 we had a rebellion in Canada, and the Bank of Upper Canada in consequence of the derangement of business during that period suffered great losses. Where Governments issue large sums in paper currency, the experience of the world is, that sooner or later it depreciates in value, and as soon as depreciation is apprehended, demand is made for gold, and the usual results follow—suspension of specie payment. Are these defects in our present banking system? Then we should endeavor to remove these defects. You would not think a man wise if, when he found a slight leak in his dwelling he should at once destroy it, instead of repairing the defect. Our banks have worked well, and done an immense amount of good in the country, having contributed largely to its wealth. In times of hardship and severe trial, they have been identified with the enterprise and industry of the country. He considered they were running a great risk in accepting any extension of the principles involved in this Bill, because there was no provision for that degree of elasticity in the supply of currency, that the trade of the country required, and until the Government were able to point out how that deficiency could be provided, it was most unwise to force it upon the country.

A GREAT DISCOVERY.

The "Stevens Flux"—Immense Increase of the Productiveness of Ores—Excitement Among the Mining Companies in Boston.

Intense excitement among the mining speculators of Boston has been created, according to accounts, by the remarkable results attained last Friday in the testing of a new treatment of ores, by the use of a material known as the "Stevens Flux," which has recently been discovered and brought to notice by Col. C. C. Stevens, of New York. It bids fair, if the report may be believed, to quadruple, or multiply even beyond that, the productiveness of the gold mines of the world, and it is estimated by the Boston Post that at least $40,000,000 in Boston alone, which her merchants and other capitalists have invested in rich but unworked mines, and advertised as sunk, will be redeemed and again become active capital. We quote from the Post the following account of Col. Stevens' discovery and of the practical trials made last week:

"Col. Stevens was no geologist or chemist, and first had his attention drawn to sulphurets, and the desulphurising of gold ores, while he was confined in a prison pen in Georgia, in company with a large number of deserters from the rebel army. These men were uneducated, but had worked in the mines of Georgia for years; and simply knew that if, as they said, 'the sulphur could be got rid of, the gold would all appear.' Their oft repeated conversation made a serious impression on Col. Stevens, though he had as yet never seen a sulphuret. Some time after the close of the war (this impression being still upon his mind) he accidentally became acquainted with the material which he now uses for smelting ore, and for which at the time he knew no name, not being a practical chemist. Directly after this accidental discovery, which was about one year ago, he came to Boston, when he ordered by express a small keg of the material."

"Passing through Devonshire-st. one day, directly after his arrival, and noticing the sign of 'Samuel F. Guild, assayer,' he called upon Mr. Guild and employed him to make an assay, having first obtained some sulphureted ores for this purpose. Neither Col. Stevens nor Mr. Guild had any idea of what 'the stuff' was that they were going to use in smelting the ore. However the treatment was made; and in place of getting at the rate of $300 per ton, which was the mint assay of that particular ore, they got over $1,400 per ton. This was astounding, and the two gentlemen looked upon each other with amazement. 'Something wrong about this,' said the colonel; '$1,400 per ton—that will never do.' So another test was made. The balance of the ore was pulverized, and divided into equal parts. One-half was then assayed by the regular mint process, and true enough it yielded at the rate of $300 per ton. Then the other half was treated with 'the stuff,' and again they find the $1,400 per ton. This was astounding and convincing, but 'we cannot dodge the result,' said Mr. Guild, 'for there it is.' Repeated experiments were then made by Mr. Guild, and ores were sent to his office to be tested from nearly all the companies in the country. In the meantime, Col. Stevens had secured by contract all the material which is now known as Stevens' flux, contracting to pay $30,000 a year for it for ninety-nine years. Having thus secured for himself this great desulphurizing agent, he named it the 'Stevens' Flux' for treating mineral ores. In speaking of this flux, in a recent official paper, Professor Hayes, State assayer, says: 'This new flux is a residue remaining after the extraction of sodium from the mineral cryolite and consists of fluoride of calcium and aluminium with some caustic and some carbonate of lime, in varying proportions, little silica and oxide of iron. The fluxing power is dependent on the fluorides present, and is generally aided by the addition of a chloride, such as common salt, in mixture with it. Besides a high efficiency in causing ordinary rocks and gangues to become fluxed by heat, the fluorides give a remarkable fluidity to the melted mass, and they insure the deposition of any metallic globules, reduced from the ore submitted to trial, so that the metal is found at the bottom in a clean, solid state in cooling.' Prof. Hayes also says in this same paper, that his trials with this flux covered its action on the silicious, aluminous, calcareous rocks and sulphureted ores with compound rocks; and in all these applications their minerals were perfectly melted into thin, glass-like masses, and the metal, or regulus, always separated cleanly from the ore. Here then is an admission on the part of one of our well-known men of science, that this flux is the very agent asked for by Georgia miners to destroy the sulphur and drive away the silica, the 'old queen bee,' of the mineral hive. The Professor also says that his experiments demonstrated that 'this flux may be applied in the large way for reducing ores directly in furnaces of proper form.' This statement has now been fairly verified, the experiment being made last Thursday by the Acworth Mining Company, of Georgia, in a furnace erected by Col. Stevens at Litchfield foundry, in East Boston. The furnace, with all its adjuncts and appliances, was turned over to the agents of this company, who desired to make a test of their sulphureted ores, from which they have never been able to realize over twenty or twenty-two dollars to the ton, by any other process in use. Col. S. L. French, President of this company, had witnessed the workings of this flux repeatedly, and on a somewhat large scale, and was confident of success, while several of the stockholders were incredulous, still believing their money to be no better than "sunk." Everything being in readiness, on Thursday noon the ore and the flux were introduced into the furnace, two thousand five hundred pounds of ore being used in this experiment. All sorts of speculations were indulged in by the directors and stockholders, and other gentlemen largely interested in mining properties. The furnace was visited by hundreds of people, and at one time it was said that there were over ten millions of Boston capital represented. During Friday night the fires were extinguished, and the cooling process commenced. Close watch was kept till ten o'clock on Saturday morning, when the gold was removed from the various depressions at the bottom of the furnace First there were taken out a nugget weighing 195 pennyweights, and valued at $195, gold.

"This exhibition began to open the eyes of several gentlemen, who were strongly inclined to be skeptical. In a few moments, however, another nugget was produced, weighing 126 pennyweights and 12 grains, and valued at $126.50.

"This was astonishing and naturally created considerable excitement, and inasmuch as no gold scales were at hand the two nuggets were hurriedly weighed upon some large platform scales standing near by, the affair creating considerable merriment for the time being. The party, with the exception of three or four, now separated, taking cars for Boston to bring the cheering news and to 'buy up' any stocks in this or other companies that might be floating around loose. At all events it was fair to infer this, for it was evident to every gentleman present who had the slightest knowledge of the smelting of metals, that the Stevens' Flux had accomplished what no other assay process had been able to do—it had destroyed the sulphur, thrust out of the walls of the ore, the miner's great curse, the silica, and after accomplishing all this it had converted these and other ingredients into an article of commerce that would readily sell for a sum nearly, if not quite sufficient, to defray the smelting expenses—the slag which is left after the gold is obtained being worth from forty to fifty dollars per ton for the manufacture of tiles and heavy glass bottles; in fact it is already in demand for this purpose.

"But the result is not reached yet. Directly after the party had separated, two other deposits were discovered, one weighing 59 dwts. and 7 grains, and the other 10 dwts. and 5 grains, making in all from these 2,500 pounds of ore, 391 pennyweights, or 19 ounces and 11 pennyweights, the currency value of which, with gold at 1 38, is $539.58, or at the rate of $431 to the ton. This result becoming known in State-st., as it very naturally would, among gentlemen interested in mining stock, Col. Stevens was hurriedly waited upon at his rooms at the American House, in order to secure an opportunity to have their ores speedily tested. Every courtesy possible was extended to these gentlemen by Col. Stevens, the next trial which is to take place being upon ore from the well-known Lewis mine, of Georgia, its proprietors being sanguine of great results.

"Such, then, is the result of the first public experiment made with the Stevens' flux upon anything like a large scale, although a number of private experiments had previously been made with results equally satisfactory. In all probability a number of other experiments upon different ores will be speedily made, Col. Stevens being now engaged in making additions to his furnace that will allow him to experiment upon a much larger scale. He has also in contemplation the introduction of another flame which will, if successful, enable him to reduce the ores at a great saving of time and expense. These and other particulars, however, will all be laid before the public in due time, and all parties interested in the smelting of ores will have an opportunity to witness the process adopted with the Stevens' flux.

"We also understand from reliable sources that this flux is invaluable in the treatment of iron in smelting and in the manufacture of steel, several experiments having recently been made that fully demonstrate this."

TO A. M. F. GIANELLI, EsQ.

Sir,—I owe it to you and the public to give my attestation to the efficacy of your "Italian Bitters." During three years previous to last February, my health had been declining, at first gradually and then at a rate constantly accelerating until, after having, through motives of economy, tried domestic remedies, but tried them in vain, I consulted a physician of repute, who told me that, without any organic complaint, I was suffering under a general derangement of the system, which he expected to be able to cure provided that I would strictly observe his directions and prescriptions. I promised to do so, and remained under his care during the whole month of February. It would be unjust to say that I derived no benefit from his course of treatment, which I adhered to with the most scrupulous exactness; but, having experienced a relapse during the short spell of fine weather in March, I became desperate, and dismissed my medical attendant after having, with some difficulty, paid his not unreasonable account, and resigned myself to what seemed to me to be inevitable fate. Life, however, is sweet, and having heard of some well-attested cures by your Bitters, I resolved to try them. I did so, taking a wine glassful every morning when I awoke, and lying still in bed for an hour afterwards. A fortnight of this course has completely cured me. All my unpleasant sensations have vanished, my appetite is good, my sleep refreshing, my spirits cheerful, and my mind clear. I give publicity to my cure, principally for the sake of such of my fellow creatures as are, or may hereafter be, similarly afflicted, but not a little to do justice to the merits of your benevolent invention.

I am, sir,
Yours respectfully,
Melville Morton.

Albany, U.S., 2nd April, 1868.

With reference to the concluding sentence of the foregoing letter, I can only say that I am not the inventor of the preparation, nor ever pretended to be so, but am merely the preparer of it here by special authorization of the eminent inventor, Dr. F. P. Ferri of Padua, as set forth in my original advertisement.

A. M. F. Gianelli.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

The Florence Nightingale of the Nursery.—The following is an extract from a letter written by the Rev. C. Z. Weizer, to the German Reformed Messenger, at Chambersburg, Penn.:

A Benefactress.—Just open the door for her, and Mrs. Winslow will prove the American Nightingale of the Nursery. Of this we are sure, that we will teach our "Susy" to say "A Blessing on Mrs. Winslow," for helping her to survive and escape the griping, colicking and teething ege. We confirm every word set forth in the prospectus. It performs precisely what it professes to perform, every part of it—nothing less. Away with your "Cordial," "Paregoric," "Drops," "Laudanum," and every other "Narcotic," by which the babe is drugged into stupidity, and rendered dull and idiotic for life.

We have never seen Mrs. Winslow—know her only through the preparation of her "Soothing Syrup for Children Teething." If we had the power, we would make her, as she is, a physical saviour to the infant race. 25 cents a bottle. Sold by all druggists. Be sure and call for "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup." Having the fac-simile of "Curtis & Perkins" on the outside wrapper. All others are base imitations.

Circular.

Downing-street,
25th April, 1867.

Sir,—

With reference to the Circular Despatch from this Department dated the 5th of June, 1866, relative to the case of Foreigners naturalized in any of Her Majesty's Colonies who wish to obtain British Passports for foreign travel—I have the honor to inform you that different cases have occurred lately in which such naturalized Foreigners have applied in this country for passports without being in possession either of a Passport from the Governor or of any Official Document from the Colony to establish their identity and character. You will readily perceive that this is calculated to embarrass this Department, and also to cause much private inconvenience to the persons concerned if they should find themselves unable to produce any sufficient evidence of their quality.

I have therefore to suggest that, in every Colony containing naturalized Foreigners who are likely to travel in Europe, it would be convenient that notice should from time to time be given in public newspapers of the necessity for such persons providing themselves before leaving the Colony with some official evidence of their identity and description.

I have the honor to be,
Sir,
Your most obedient
Humble servant,
Signed, BUCKINGHAM & CHANDOS.
The Officer Administering
the Government, &c., &c., &c.

Office of the Secretary of State,
Ottawa, 8th May, 1868.

(With reference to the foregoing Circular Despatch.)

Notice is hereby given that parties requiring Passports must apply, until further notice, to this Department, transmitting at the same time a certificate of identity, accompanied in each case with a description of the applicant, signed by a Justice of the Peace and also the fee of one dollar.

CANADIAN PAIN DESTROYER

Side, Back and Head, Coughs, Colds, Sore Throat, Sprains, Bruises, Cramps in the Stomach, Cholera Morbus, Dysentery, Bowel Complaints, Burns, Scalds, Frost Bites, &c., &c.

THE CANADIAN PAIN DESTROYER HAS now been before the public for a length of time, and whenever used is well liked, never failing in a single instance to give permanent relief when timely used, and we have never known a single case of dissatisfaction where the directions are properly followed; but on the contrary, all are delighted with its operations, and speak in the highest terms of its virtues and magical effects.

We speak from experience in this matter, having tested it thoroughly, and therefore those who are suffering from any of the complaints for which it is recommended may depend upon its being a Sovereign Remedy.

The astonishing efficacy of the Canadian Pain Destroyer, in curing diseases for which it is recommended, and its wonderful success in subduing the torturing pains of Rheumatism, and in relieving Nervous Affections, entitle it to a high rank in the list of Remedies for these complaints. Orders are coming in from Medicine Dealers in all parts of the country for further supplies, and each testifying as to the universal satisfaction it gives.

The Canadian Pain Destroyer never fails to give immediate relief. All Medicine Dealers keep it; Physicians order and use it; and no family will without it after once trying it.

NOTICE.

The subscriber would intimate to those of his customers with whom current accounts may have been opened that it is his intention to take advantage of any irregularity in their payment to close them in order that he may conduct his business totally on the cash principle, which has been found to work most satisfactorily for both the buyer and seller in every branch of trade in which it has been tried, and relying on quality of his goods and the prices charged for them which will always be as low as they can honestly be sold for, he solicits a continuance of that patronage heretofore so liberally bestowed upon him.

DARLEY'S

Arabian Heave Remedy

AND CONDITION MEDICINE

IS POSITIVELY SUPERIOR TO ANY or all other preparations for the cure of Heaves, Coughs, Thick and Broken Wind, and all diseases which affect the Wind of Horses; also, as a Condition Medicine, surpassing everything of the kind in use. It is easy to give, sure to cure, and safe in all cases and at all times, and does not prevent the horse from being worked while using it.

It cleanses the breathing apparatus, by removing from the air-cells the coagulable lymph, or that secretion which in heaves clogs them, causing a difficulty in breathing, and by its action on the diseased part, causing the mucous membrane to resume its natural dimensions, thus equalizing the circulation of the blood, and restoring the distended vessels to their natural size; by its use the horse's appetite is improved, all derangements of the digestive organs corrected, softening the skin, and giving to the coat a sleek and shining appearance.

Circular.

DOWNING-STREET,
25th April, 1867.

SIR,—

With reference to the Circular Despatch from this Department dated the 5th of June, 1866, relative to the case of Foreigners naturalized in any of Her Majesty's Colonies who wish to obtain British Passports for foreign travel—I have the honor to inform you that different cases have occurred lately in which such naturalized Foreigners have applied in this country for passports without being in possession either of a Passport from the Governor or of any Official Document from the Colony to establish their identity and character. You will readily perceive that this is calculated to embarrass this Department, and also to cause much private inconvenience to the persons concerned if they should find themselves unable to produce any sufficient evidence of their quality.

I have therefore to suggest that, in every Colony containing naturalized Foreigners who are likely to travel in Europe, it would be convenient that notice should from time to time be given in public newspapers of the necessity for such persons providing themselves before leaving the Colony with some official evidence of their identity and description.

I have the honor to be,
Sir,
Your most obedient
Humble servant,

Notice is hereby given that parties requiring Passports must apply, until further notice, to this Department, transmitting at the same time a certificate of identity, accompanied in each case with a description of the applicant, signed by a Justice of the Peace and also the fee of one dollar.

As I am particular in buying the best quality of Tea to be had for our guests, I am pleased to acquaint you that it gives general satisfaction. Your obedient servant,

WILLIS RUSSELL.

FELCOME, Dec. 23, 1867.—Montreal Tea Company: Gentlemen, the Oolong Tea which you sent me gives great satisfaction. I forwarded part of the chest to a friend in Toronto, who informs me he considers it as good as that he was using for which he paid one dollar per lb. Please send me a chest of Young Hyson at same price, viz., at 75 cents per lb. Address as before. Your obedient servant,

JNO. T. DAY.

HOUSE OF SENATE, Ottawa, December 6, 1867. Montreal Tea Company: Gentlemen, the box of English Breakfast and Young Hyson Tea which you sent me gives great satisfaction. You may expect my future orders. Yours, &c.,

S. SKINNER.

COBOURG, January 8, 1868.—Montreal Tea Company: Gentlemen, I beg to inform you that the two boxes of Tea you sent me are of excellent quality, especially the Young Hyson at 60 cents. Please send another box, or 20 lbs., at same price, and oblige yours, &c.,

F. OLIVER.

The contributors to the Medical Journal have frequently declared that one-half the nervous diseases are caused by drinking impure Tea. The Company have carefully selected and imported a supply of Teas that can be warranted pure and free from poisonous substances, in 50, 25, 20, 15 and 12 lb. boxes.

All orders for 20 or 25 lbs., or two 12 lbs., sent carriage free to the country. Teas not mentioned in this circular sent equally cheap. The Company having determined to take a stand in the Montreal market, weight, quality and circular may be implicitly relied on. Where a 20 lb. box would be too much, two or three clubbing together could divide. An excellent mixed Tea could be sent for 60c to 70c; very good for common purposes, 50c. Buyers living beyond Railway Stations will please send Post Office order or enclosed notes. The carriage will be paid to the nearest station. Tea will be forwarded immediately on receipt of the order by mail containing money, or the money can be collected on delivery by express man where there are express offices. A trial solicited.

TUESDAY, MAY 12, 1868.

THE signs of an early adjournment of Parliament are rapidly multiplying. Last night the House of Commons agreed, on the motion of Sir J. A. MACDONALD, to have two separate sittings each day—the first from eleven till two, and the second from four till the adjournment—commencing from to-day; with a sitting on Saturday, from eleven a.m. to six p.m. It is probable that by this day week the business of the Session will be pretty well through, if not finished.

IT is understood that the Tariff Bill will be brought up to-morrow or next day, and presented without any alteration from the provisions of the resolutions agreed to in Committee. On the great question of the sugar duties, it is not unreasonably presumed that as the Government have neither exactly pleased the importers nor the refiners, they have just about hit the medium which will best serve the interests of the public and the revenue. The question will, no doubt, be the subject of further discussion, but as we have said, it is not at all likely that any concessions will be made, either upon sugar or other articles.

ELSEWHERE we publish a letter from Mr. O'FARRELL, on the reference made to him in our columns yesterday morning. Since he admits the correctness of the main facts stated in our editorial paragraph, which has called forth his letter, we are somewhat at a loss to know wherefore he should have rushed into print; for we, neither by direct charge nor implication, impugned his right to the exercise of that "freedom of opinion," which he claims. It is something, however, to be able to show that he and Mr. BRIGHT stand nearly in the same position, the difference being that the one impugns, and the other anticipates, the decision of a jury. But we have no dispute with Mr. O'FARRELL or Mr. BRIGHT upon these matters, nor do we seek to set bounds to their "freedom." The small difference between making and volunteering a statement, of which we are willing to give our correspondent the full benefit, is confirmatory of the other portion of our remarks as to the "defence fund," because it implies that Mr. O'FARRELL had been invited to give an opinion on the subject.

As to the "caution" which is kindly volunteered to us, we can only say that notwithstanding the appalling prospect of Mr. O'FARRELL being arrayed against us acting as his "own counsel," it shall not drive us out of our ordinary course of dealing with men and things, for we are consoled in the venture by the recollection of the kind of client the old saw gives to him who "pleads "his own cause."

TAKING advantage of the suppression of the Fenian papers in Canada, our enterprising contemporary, the Citizen, has set itself to work to fill the gap and furnish those who desire it "the latest Fenian news!"

We have no quarrel with our neighbor for trying to turn "an honest penny," for sooth to say, there is an appetite abroad for this kind of pabulum. "What about the Fenians?" is not by any means an uncommon question, and if in advance of its contemporaries the Citizen shall satisfy the query, who shall say that the "ill wind" which has blown the Irish American and kindred sheets out of the Canadian market, has not blown "good" to somebody?

Our attention was attracted to this subject by a gentleman who threatened that he was about applying to the authorities to have the Detectives make a "raid" on the city papers, as he considered that they should no more be tolerated in giving "aid and comfort to the enemy" than the American Fenian publications. We begged of him not to invoke the aid of the authorities until we had had an opportunity of examining the article which had outraged his loyal feelings; and now, having done so, we have come to the conclusion that for the following reasons, there is no ground for action:

The first item of the latest "news" contains a brief account of the Worcester Convention, held so "late" if we mistake not as three weeks ago; and the only objectionable feature in it is the publication of the address then adopted appealing to the Fenians of Massachusetts to rush to arms in support of Gen. O'NEILL in his determination to "un-"furl the green flag soon again on British "soil." The authorities may object to this and give our neighbor a "warning;" but

The second item of the "latest Fenian news," entitled "Views of a Fenian in "Canada" is a short editorial article copied bodily, and without credit, from the OTTAWA TIMES of the 27th April last! Now, the fact that the Citizen "cribbed" this article, either at first or second hand, from such a source, and placed it under such a heading, is an evidence that it wished to gammon those for whom it pretended to cater, and ought to be accepted in mitigation of its publishing the Worcester address. Under the circumstances we accept the suppression of the name of its "authority" as a delicate compliment.

The third item in this "latest" information, is a brief family record of a certain A. P. SULLIVAN, chosen a considerable time since at Detroit, as a delegate to the late Chicago Convention. This is credited to the Windsor Record, and any one having an old fyle of that paper may doubtless be able to verify its authenticity, if he will take the trouble.

The fourth is a paragraph which first "caught our eye" in the Globe, some weeks ago, and relates to the discovery of some Fenian correspondence at Chatham, about the end of March last, and which we are enabled to tell the Citizen (a piece of information it is welcome to use for its next "batch") has been since placed in the hands of the authorities at Ottawa.

There are two other items, of which no special mention need be made, as the "statute of limitations" may be pleaded in bar of action, so that we cannot see any ground for putting the local press of Ottawa under surveillance, because of our neighbor's enterprise in publishing the "Latest Fenian news!"

THE PATENT LAWS.

We have been assured that the new Act "respecting Patents of Invention," now before the Senate, does not meet the views of those who advocate the adoption of the Bill introduced by Mr. Masson, in the Commons, with respect to inventions brought by Canadians from foreign countries. What is desired by those parties is the re-enactment of the first sub-section of section ten of the old Canadian law, omitting sub-section two altogether, or these parts of it, excepting "the United States of America" from the operation of the first sub-section, which reads as follows:

"PATENTS FOR INVENTIONS BROUGHT BY CANADIANS FROM FOREIGN COUNTRIES.

"Sec. X.—The privileges, clauses, provisions, powers and legal remedies intended and mentioned by this Act, and which are secured to, imposed upon, and apply to the inventor and discoverer of any new and useful art, machine, manufacture, or composition of matter, for which he may make application for a Patent, shall extend to and include any subject of Her Majesty, being an inhabitant of this (Province), who in his or her travels in any foreign country, has discovered or obtained a knowledge of, and is desirous of introducing in this (Province), any new and useful art, machine, manufacture, or composition of matter not known or not in use in this (Province), before his application for a Patent for the same."

Subsection 2, excepts all parts of Her Majesty's Dominions from the operation of the above, to which there is no objection; but it also excepts the "United States," to which there is a decided feeling of opposition, as they are regarded as the only "foreign country" where our people can conveniently obtain "a knowledge of" such inventions as would likely be useful in Canada. It is therefore desired that the United States should be placed on precisely the same footing as other "foreign" countries, and that all should be put upon the footing indicated by the above quotation.

With respect to the new Act it is urged that it leaves the doors wide open to foreigners or their agents, without giving any protection to Canadians such as the subjects of other States enjoy. The 6th, 8th and 11th clauses may be referred to, as providing for the introduction of foreign patents through agents or assignees, permitting the profits of the invention to be withdrawn from the country. We have not had time to examine closely the merits of these objections, but, we believe, they are such as are likely to be urged against the Bill in its present shape.

LOCAL NEWS.

New hoop skirts just received by Magee and Russell.

BOG OAK JEWELLERY.—Very handsome sets of bog oak jewellery can be had at Young & Radford's, at $1 per set.

THE season for muslin dresses and lace shawls being close at hand, ladies should see the great variety of novelties at Magee and Russell's.

AUCTION SALE.—Remember the auction sale of dry goods now going on at Mr. Rowe's auction rooms. Sale to-day at two and seven p.m. Bargains may be expected.

AUCTION SALE THIS EVENING.—Remember the great auction sale of dry goods this evening at 7 o'clock, at Prud'homme's store, Sussex street. Great bargains may be had.

FINE coral jewellery, bog oak jewellery and a large collection of other goods suitable for wedding and other presents can be seen at Young & Radford's; all new and choice goods and will be sold cheap.

SALE OF MR. WATERS' FURNITURE.—This gentleman being about to leave the city advertises for sale all his household furniture, comprising some very fine articles, among them a seven octave rosewood pianoforte, and a handsome black walnut book-case, &c., &c. See advertisement.

CARPETS AND HOUSE FURNISHINGS.—Garland Mutchmor & Co. make this department a speciality. They have just received a large stock and invite the attention of parties furnishing to it. Purchasers will find their stock in this department second to none in Ottawa. 582-y

POLICE COURT.—Only one case was up before the court yesterday, that of Annie Langlois, charged with keeping a house of questionable character. Adjourned till this morning to enable defendant to get the neighbours to testify to her good character, which, she says, they are all willing to do.

AUCTION SALE OF VERY VALUABLE HOUSEHOLD FURNITURE.—Attention is directed to the advertisement of Mr. Keating, Sparks street, in which he announces the sale of his very valuable stock of furniture on Saturday next. The catalogue embraces some of the handsomest furniture to be found in the city; those wishing to purchase should call and examine. The stock may be sold by private contract.

THE SIDEWALKS.—Among the many bad sidewalks about the city, we notice in particular that in Victoria Crescent, which should receive the attention of Mr. Kinsella at once. This sidewalk was, we believe, laid down many years ago by subscription among the neighbors, but it is hardly right to expect them to subscribe again for the same purpose.

OLE BULL.—This great vocalist will appear at Her Majesty's Theatre on Saturday evening. We have lately seen notices in the American musical journals of his concerts in New York and other great cities in the States, from which it appears that none of his old vigour has left him, while in all respects he, like his violin, has wonderfully improved by time. Ole Bull needs no herald, but it is a duty we owe to the public to make known this extraordinary opportunity of hearing at least one of the greatest living performers.

ST. PATRICK'S ORPHAN ASYLUM.—The bazaar in aid of the St. Patrick's Orphans, which we have previously noticed, was fairly opened yesterday, and will be continued for some days. Whoever desires to enjoy a very pleasant time, and to get one of the many beautiful articles on exhibition for a mere trifle, and to enjoy the still greater pleasure of knowing that his very enjoyment is contributing to the maintenance of the fatherless and motherless orphans should forthwith put money in his purse, and go without delay to strengthen the hands of those who have assumed the parental offices towards the St. Patrick's Orphans.

BANK STREET CHURCH, CITY OF OTTAWA.

It having been deemed desirable to include among the articles deposited in the corner stone of Bank street Church, Ottawa, now about to be laid, a brief narrative of the origin and progress of the congregation for whose accommodation the edifice is designed, the following sketch is compiled chiefly from the official record of the Presbytery of Ottawa, of the Presbyterian Church, with which the congregation is ecclesiastically connected.

The first congregation in Bytown, subsequently named Ottawa, of the religious body called the Canada Presbyterian Church, was Knox's Church, of which the Rev. Thomas Wardrope, its present Pastor, was the past Minister. In the year 1844, there was a disruption of "the Presbyterian Church of Canada in connection with the Church of Scotland," and the minority, that separated from that church retained the former part of the designation, "the Presbyterian Church of Canada." It was popularly called the Free Church, from its sympathy with the movement that in the previous year, had led to the disruption of the established Church of Scotland and the formation of The Free Church of Scotland. Knox's Church, Bytown, was the effect and the representative of the disruption. In the year 1861, "the Presbyterian Church of Canada" and "the United Presbyterian Church in Canada" became one, and the united body assumed the name of The Canada Presbyterian Church.

In the course of time it was found that owing to the increase of population, the growth of our principles, and the blessing of the Great Head, the accommodation originally provided was insufficient. In these circumstances the friends of our church in the city "spoke often one to another" as to the best plan to be adopted to meet the destitution. The matter was brought before the Presbytery of the Bounds, where various schemes were suggested. Some of these were tried but afterwards abandoned.

The urgency of the case was great, many who held by our principles were compelled to seek ordinances elsewhere, and there was danger that our church might cease to occupy its prominent position, unless something were done speedily to meet the want. Besides, Ottawa had been selected as the seat of Government for the Canadas, and it was reasonably expected that there would be an immediate and extensive increase of population.

At length, in the month of August, 1865, representatives from the Session and Temporal Committee of Knox's Church, appeared before the Presbytery and craved a Conference in reference to the matter of church extension in the city. The Conference was held, and led to the appointment of a committee by the Presbytery, "to consider the propriety of certain members of the congregation disjoining themselves from their present connexion, and forming the nucleus of a new congregation with power to organize any such into a church."

On the 19th of September following, the committee reported that they had met with parties, and organized a church, consisting of about thirty members, who had received letters dismissory from Knox's Session. The Presbytery recognized the new church as a distinct organization, agreed to give supply of preaching, and appointed Mr. James Whyte to preside at the election of elders.

On the 7th of November, Mr. Whyte reported that five brethren had been elected, viz: Donald Kennedy, William Hutchison, William Taylor, Robert Whyte and William Porter, and the Presbytery appointed Mr. Wardrope, to ordain and induct them on the 26th of the same month, according to the laws of the church.

On the 7th of February, 1866, there appeared, before the Presbytery, at its meeting in Beckwith, Commissioners from the Congregation, who handed in two resolutions: 1st, praying for the appointment of a minister to moderate in a call; 2nd, promising a salary of $800 per annum, with the prospect of more on the increase of the Congregation.

Mr. Wardrope was appointed to moderate in a call, as craved, on the 22nd of February; and the Presbytery agreed to hold a special meeting on that day with a view to expedite proceedings.

On the 22nd of February, there was produced a duly attested call from the new charge, now called Bank street Church, Ottawa, in favor of Mr. William Moore, Probationer, and the same was sustained by the Presbytery. The Clerk was instructed to correspond with Mr. Moore, and ascertain his intention in the business.

Mr. Moore having signified his acceptance of the call, a special meeting of Presbyterians was held in Ottawa on the 28th day of March, when the trial discourses were heard and the usual examination gone through. These exercises having been sustained, the Presbyterians resolved to proceed with the ordination in the evening.

The following is an extract minute of the proceedings on that interesting and solemn occasion:

"According to previous arrangement, Mr. James Whyte, (Minister of Osgoode,) opened the proceedings with devotional exercises, and thereafter preached from Acts II, 47—And the Lord added to the church daily. After the sermon, the Clerk, (Mr. Fraser, Minister of McNab,) gave a narrative of the several steps taken in organizing and maturing the movement now about to be consummated. The usual questions were put and satisfactorily answered, after which Mr. Moore was set apart to the work of the Holy Ministry by prayer, and 'the laying on of the hands of the Presbytery,' and inducted into the Pastoral charge of Bank-st. Church; and received the right hand of fellowship. Mr. Wardrope (of Knox's Church) addressed the Pastor, and Mr. Joseph White (of Wakefield) the people."

The congregation continued to assemble in their first place of meeting—the Hall of the Mechanics' Institute—for some time. It was found, however, that this place was in some respects inconvenient; and an effort was successfully made to erect a temporary place of worship near the site of the contemplated church. There the congregation has worshipped comfortably hitherto; and now there is the prospect that in a few months they shall occupy a House, worthy of themselves, of the metropolis of the Dominion of Canada, and in some measure, of the August King and Head.

In conclusion, and in view of all the circumstances, have not the people cause to feel and sing as did ancient Israel? "The Lord hath done great things for us, whereof we are glad," Psalm CXXVI, 3.

Dated this eighth day of May, in the year of our Lord 1868.

S. C. FRASER, M.A.,
Clerk, Presbytery of Ottawa.

LETTER FROM MR. O'FARRELL.

To the Editor of THE TIMES.

SIR,—In the TIMES of this morning you deem me of sufficient importance to devote a short leader to the discussion of my professional opinions. You are welcome! It is true, that on my return to Quebec from this city, ten days ago, I made, not volunteered, the statement that in the published evidence, so far, there is not sufficient to convict. What harm is there in that? May I not express my opinion, without let or hindrance? Is there freedom of opinion here, or is there not? I should fondly hope there is. Mr. John Bright dared the other day in England to express, in a deliberate memorial to the Government, the opinion that Barrett, the convicted, is innocent, and I, forsooth, may not hold with British criminal law, that the unconvicted Whelan is to be presumed innocent until twelve good and lawful men, his peers, upon their oaths, shall have pronounced him guilty!! As to whether the Ontario Bar would permit me to defend Whelan is a matter which it will be time enough to discuss, when my assistance shall have been formally required by those who now represent the accused. In the meantime, I may perhaps be permitted to express the opinion, with all due deference to the TIMES, that my brethren of the Ontario Bar are not so narrow minded as the TIMES would paint them.

And now, sir, since in the concluding sentence of your article, which, in that respect, resembles the postscript of a lady's letter, you have thought fit to hold out to me a threat, let me return you a caution. You should be temperate, very temperate, in your language; for though I may not defend another in the Ontario Courts, without special leave, you may rest assured that I can, and if need there be, I will, appear as my own counsel in any suit I may deem it necessary to bring here to test the accuracy of any rash statement you may make concerning me.

Your obedient servant,
J. O'FARRELL.

McGEE TESTIMONIAL FUND IN PRESCOTT.

L'ORIGNAL, May 8, 1868.

W. Mosgrove, Esq., Barrister, Ottawa.

MY DEAR SIR,—While so much is doing in the capital in the way of subscriptions to the McGee Testimonial Fund, allow me to call your attention to the fact that many in this county so recently canvassed by that very much lamented gentleman would wish to mark their appreciation for the extraordinary talents of which the Dominion has just been shorn.

I have had the honor in the recent contest for the representation of this county, to act as Secretary of the late Hon. T. D. McGee's general election committee, and also to represent him at one of the polls. If you as one of the committee men for St. George's Ward, would have the kindness to call the attention of the general committee, I shall have no objection to accepting one of the subscription lists, and thus afford his many friends in Prescott—both those who voted for and against him—an opportunity of showing how much they all regret his loss.

I am, my dear sir,
Yours faithfully, JOHN BUTTERFIELD.

FRIDAY, May 8, 1868.

DOMINION NOTES.

Hon. Mr. BENSON said—The Postmaster-General in resuming the debate upon this Bill, has very tairly explained its provisions; it was a permission only in its enactment, extending to all Banks in the Dominion the option of issuing legal tender notes of the Government instead of their own circulation. No reasonable objection can be made to the Bill, nor is it the intention, I believe, to offer any, on the contrary, he would give it his support under existing circumstances; but there was a principle involved in it to which he was opposed, and he felt it to be his duty, as well as the duty of every member of this House, to state their views regarding that principle. It is evidently the intention of the Government to carry out, if possible, the system of banking inaugurated a year or two ago, notwithstanding the expression of opinion so unanimously given by the country, and the almost unanimous opinion of all persons connected with banking. In reply to the question on the subject by the Committee appointed by this House, it was stated that these were the opinions and views of those who represented the interests of the Banks. He would ask who were so competent to give correct opinions as those engaged in this business, who were capable of judging correctly of the wants and requirements of the commerce of the country. The interests of Banks were the interests of the country, they represented the interests of all classes who had invested their money in these institutions, and these comprise very generally the people of the country. From his own knowledge of the business of Western Canada, extending over a period of thirty-five years, he had no hesitation in saying that the present system of banking is the best adapted to its wants and requirements, and that now contemplated by this Bill, as well as what we may expect to follow it, is not adapted to our requirements, and if persisted in by the Government, cannot fail to bring with it great embarrassment and stringency in all banking operations in the future. It must necessarily reduce the circulation of the Banks to a point wholly inadequate to the wants of trade, and prevent that expansion of the circulation necessary at seasons of the year when it is so much required for moving large quantities of grain and lumber, particularly that of grain and flour; it is well known this is generally done in the short period after harvest to the close of navigation. It has not been asserted that the present circulation of our Banks has ever been too much for these purposes, and what will be the result when this circulation is reduced at least one-third, if not one-half; and the general result upon the trade of the country cannot be otherwise than injurious. When money becomes scarce it increases the rate of interest, while at the same time it reduces the value of every description of property and produce. It has been stated that a safer circulation is required than that now in use, and the failure of two institutions is given in proof. What are the facts? In a period of forty years one Bank has failed and another suspended payment for a few months, and then entered into an arrangement with another institution whereby it secured one-third of its capital to its shareholders, and the payment of its indebtedness in full. The Bank of Upper Canada has not been able to do so, and a loss has fallen upon the shareholders and the public. What is the extent of this loss to the public? It is not to be named in comparison to the advantages the public have derived from that institution. He remembered in the early period of that institution, and no doubt some whom he now addressed can go back with him to this period, and bear testimony to the liberal mode of business adopted by that Bank—its discounts were not demanded in three months. The generous system adopted to meet the wants and circumstances of our young and rising country was the payment of only 20 per cent. every three months, giving the period of fifteen months for the payment of its discounts. Nor was this all, the invariable consideration that was given to all who had transactions with it, the leniency which it extended to its customers, should not be forgotten by the public, and to no institution is this country more indebted for the building up and sustaining its commerce than to the Bank of Upper Canada, and he said the benefits derived from that bank far outweighed all the loss that has been sustained by it; then, gentlemen, does the system proposed secure the public against panic, or does it give security under all circumstances. Is it not possible circumstances may arise, sufficient in the minds of the Government, to suspend payment of specie for its notes, or may not a pressure be brought to bear in times of depression by public opinion, which may for a time, at least, reduce their value in public estimation, and bring them to a rate below their par value, although it may not be so great as it would be by the failure of the bank. He was an advocate for safety, but we must take care that we do not pay too much for it, and he was fully satisfied that we should be doing so if we adopt the legal tender system. Let us be content with what we have found hitherto so well adapted to our wants, and by adopting the mode or form of return as that suggested by the hon. member from Toronto, (Mr. Macpherson), we will obtain all the security we require. He was of opinion had this been the return required heretofore from the banks, neither the bank of Upper Canada or the Commercial Bank would have ceased to be numbered among the useful institutions of the country. An hon. member has stated that the wants of the Government require the introduction of this system, and that it was the opinion of celebrated writers in England upon banking and currency that all circulation should be issued and secured by the Government of a country. He had every respect for the opinion of these writers, and had no doubt these opinions have been formed from the circumstances of their own country, but he contended they are not applicable to ours, or at all adapted to the peculiar trade necessary to be fostered in a new country like ours. He much preferred the opinions of those brought up in our own midst, and acquainted with our commerce and its requirements. As to the necessities of the Government, they are the only reasons for the introduction of this new system entitled to consideration, but there are other methods which are now under consideration of the Government for the supply of these wants. Let them wait and see how far they may be enabled to supply their wants from these, although far from being unobjectionable, as interfering with the resources upon which the banks depended for the extension of their circulation. They are perhaps less so than the one that is now proposed, which gives the control of the circulation to the Government. He trusted the Government will be influenced in the course it may adopt by the information which has already been received, and will be received in answer to the questions of those gentlemen representing Committees appointed by both Houses of the Legislature, and that they will, at an early part of the next session of Parliament, bring in a measure upon this subject that will meet the wants and wishes of the whole country.

Hon. Mr. MACPHERSON, in reply to the Postmaster-General, said he had not spoken exclusively from the banker's point of view, but from a point of view which embraced the general interests of the country. He had shown that in certain cases under this Bill banks might be benefitted at the expense of the general interests of the country. The hon. gentleman then recapitulated his chief objections to the currency of the country being taken by the Government, and remarked that so long as the Government remained unconnected with the currency, and not responsible for its redemption, they would stand as they ought to do, over the banks, and hold them to a fulfilment of the conditions of their charters, in respect to redeeming their notes in specie when required. But if the Government itself were responsible for the redemption of the currency, it might, and in times of panic would, be interested in the suspension of specie payments. He said that the discussion had taken a wide range, extending to the question of the rate of interest. He (Mr. Macpherson) thought there should be free trade in money, and that any restriction imposed upon the rate of interest was calculated to enhance the price of money to the borrower. His hon. friend (Mr. Bureau) had spoken of the rate of interest in New York being limited to 7 per cent. Suppose it were limited to 7 per cent. here, and the right to circulate notes withdrawn from our banks, how could they, at that rate, cover the expenses of management and losses, and pay their shareholders a remunerative dividend? Those who know how business is carried on in New York, know that the law there against usury is a dead letter, as it had been here. His hon. friend expressed an opinion in favor of the National Bank system of the United States. He (Mr. Macpherson) thought that if the Government insisted on changing the present system, he would much prefer something like that, to the Dominion note system, because it would make money less costly to the borrower; as the capital would be invested in public securities bearing interest at the rate of 6 per cent. He (Mr. Macpherson) had no intention of opposing the second reading of the Bill, for he had given notice yesterday that when the House went into committee upon it, he would move that an additional clause and an improved form of bank return be added to the Bill. His hon. friend (Mr. Campbell) had asked him to withdraw these. He would like to oblige him, but he could not in this case. He attached much importance to the proposed form of return. It had been prepared with the assistance of gentlemen of experience connected with banks, and he hoped the House would adopt it.

Hon. Mr. CAMPBELL then moved that the Bill be read a second time, which motion was carried on a division.

On motion of Hon. Mr. CAMPBELL the House went into Committee of the Whole on the Bill,

Hon. Mr. DEVER in the chair.

After several clauses of the Bill were adopted,

Hon. Mr. MACPHERSON moved an amendment to add a clause to the Bill with form of bank return to be made to the Government monthly, and published in the Royal Gazette (vide yesterday's debate.)

Hon. Mr. CAMPBELL thought the amendment was not in order, and ought not in fairness to be introduced in connection with this matter. Several of the banks enjoy individual charters, and those continue in force until 1870. In those charters the form is specified, and is as much a part of the charter as any other part of it, therefore no change should be made except with reference to each particular bank, after due notice had been given, and an opportunity afforded for discussing the proposed change, each on its own behalf. As a matter of right this amendment ought not to pass, therefore he hoped his hon. friend would oblige him by withdrawing it.

Hon. Mr. FERRIER said he could not see or comprehend the cause for the alarm that the hon. member who proposed this amendment (Mr. Macpherson) seemed to entertain. He thought it quite uncalled for, and a violation of the Bank charters, and hoped the hon. mover would consent to its withdrawal, and not divide the House on it.

Hon. Mr. ANDERSON thought this form of bank return would be a great improvement, as it would enable the public to know the position of the banks, and the manner in which their capital was invested.

Hon. Mr. McMASTER said as he was connected with a bank, he had not expressed an opinion in connection with this measure, nor did he now intend to say anything in reference to the Bill itself; but in regard to the amendment, he thought its provisions were wise and desirable. The Postmaster General had said that the whole question will be taken up next Session, but at the same time he knows that the charters of some of the banks remain in existence until 1871. In view of this fact this amendment ought to be adopted, because its provisions will contribute very materially to the safety of the public.

Hon. Mr. MACPHERSON did not wish to press anything that was unfair; if the Hon. Postmaster-General would show that this amendment was unfair to the banks, he would be the last one to object to withdrawing it. One hon. member (Mr. McMaster) who is a bank director, is in favor of the amendment, and another bank director (Mr. Ferrier) from Montreal, opposes it only on the ground of its being unnecessary, and he seems to be under the impression that he (Mr. Macpherson) proposed it from some feeling of alarm. He had no feeling of alarm, but he believed it to be necessary to ensure the better management of the banks; at all events it would give the public and shareholders such information as would enable them to judge how the bank was managed. How can this form be called unnecessary when, had it been in operation during past years, it would have given such information as would have prevented the failure of the only two banks which have failed in Canada? If the returns with respect to the amount due by corporations had been required, the Commercial Bank would not have made the advance which led to its ruin.

Hon. Mr. FERRIER—I was not one of the stockholders, but I knew perfectly well the large amount they loaned to this railway. Their legitimate business was to attend to the commercial interests of the country, and not to loan their capital to railways.

Hon. Mr. MACPHERSON said his hon. friend may have had that information before the shareholders had it. At the annual meetings there are but few shareholders present, and very little information obtained, but by this return information will be brought before the shareholders every month, then if they do not know the state of the bank it will be their own fault, as they have an opportunity of knowing when anything is going wrong, and checking it before it becomes disastrous.

Hon. Mr. McMASTER remarked that his hon. friend (Mr. Ferrier) had said, that though he was not a shareholder in the Commercial Bank, he was aware of the amount they loaned the railway company. He (Mr. McMaster) did not think any one was aware of it until it became a matter of litigation. He again expressed his approval of the amendment, as he thought every security should be afforded to the public.

Hon. Mr. AIKENS said this schedule was in the interest of the public, and not in the interest of the banks. He felt satisfied that if we had known the assets of the bank of Upper Canada, a different course would have been pursued in relation to the stockholders of that bank. The stockholders should have the information which this return will give them.

Hon. Mr. CAMPBELL said he had hoped his hon. friend would withdraw his amendment and saved this discussion. The Government cannot accept this amendment to the Bill, because there is to be legislation upon this subject during the next Session of Parliament. He did not object to the proposed form of return in many respects, and he apprehended that when legislation took place upon this subject, many of his hon. friend's suggestions would be adopted, but to some provisions of his proposed scheme he (Mr. Campbell) objected. The public have a right to know everything in regard to the solvency of a bank, but they have no right to demand any further information. His hon. friend's "return" went beyond that and provided that banks shall give a statement of their discounts and assets in every Province in the Dominion. The public are interested not in the solvency of the banks in each particular Province of the Dominion, but in their solvency as a whole. It is no advantage to the public to have this statement for each Province, as they frequently have a large amount of deposits in one Province, and very few discounts. It was a well known fact that a large portion of the lumber and grain of Ontario is moved by institutions having their headquarters in the Province of Quebec, therefore no correct conclusions can be drawn from a return being made for each Province. In that respect he thought the scheme of his hon. friend was defective, and ought not to pass, but his main objection to it was because it was seeking to alter, at the instance of a private member of Parliament, a form of 'return' which was general throughout these banks existing under a general charter. The Government have expressed an intention to assume the responsibility of legislating upon the subject during the next Session of Parliament, therefore he trusted the Committee would not adopt this amendment.

Hon. Mr. SIMPSON supported the amendment, and thought the statements required by that amendment only reasonable and just for the public; and the bank with which he was connected (Ontario Bank) would willingly furnish it or any other details that may be desired for the satisfaction of the public generally. He dissented from the statement of the Hon. Postmaster-General, viz.: "That the banks whose head offices were in the Province of Quebec, furnished more capital for the lumber and grain trades than those in Ontario. He felt quite certain that the banks of Toronto and Ontario supplied more funds for these objects than any of the other banks according to their capital, though all the banks did as much as possible in that way, according to their capital and the wants of their customers. He concluded by saying he thought the proposed form would be willingly followed by all the banks, as far as he knew, and could see no objection to it, but a great deal of good, and hoped it would pass.

Hon. Mr. McMASTER said it was important that this schedule should be adopted, as these returns would enable the Legislature to know the position in which the banks stood before legislating upon the subject. It would also enable the public to know whether the amount of bank accommodation granted to any of the Provinces was based upon the amount of capital deposited there.

Hon. Mr. ROSS regretted that his hon. friend pressed his amendment. He believed it was out of order, and would be so ruled when the House resumed, and the Speaker took the chair. He hoped his hon. friend would withdraw it.

Hon. Mr. MITCHELL entirely endorsed the views expressed by the last speaker, that this return was admirably adapted to guard the public interest, but the question was not whether it was desirable to give this information, but whether this is the proper time to introduce this amendment, which if the mover pressed to a division might result in the defeat of what a large majority of the House desires to adopt. The Postmaster-General had stated that it was the intention of the Government to be prepared to deal with the subject of banking at the next Session of Parliament, therefore he would ask his hon. friend not to press the amendment to a division.

Hon. Mr. BENSON considered the proposed return a great improvement on that now in use, but thought its introduction now would be untimely, and for that reason, he had refused to second the amendment when asked to do so by the hon. mover. He hoped his hon. friend would withdraw it.

Hon. Mr. McCULLY said if they passed this amendment, it might be decided when the Speaker took the chair, that it was one that affected private persons or a company, and of which they ought to have had notice, therefore it could not be put from the chair.

Hon. Mr. TESSIER believed the proposed return would be a great improvement, but feared it was not in order, and that even if carried in Committee, it would be ruled out and lost when the Speaker took the chair. He therefore saw no use in dividing the Committee. He would suggest to his hon. friend to withdraw the amendment; and if he saw fit, embody it in a separate Bill.

Hon. Mr. MACPHERSON then said that rather than have his amendment thrown out on a point of order, he would withdraw it, and introduce it in the form of a Bill.

It being six o'clock the House separated.

After Recess.

Hon. Mr. DEVER reported that the Committee had agreed to the Bill without amendment; it was then read a third time and passed.

The Bill intituled "An Act respecting the Department of Justice," was received from the House of Commons with several amendments, which were read a third time and agreed to.

The Bill intituled "An Act respecting Penitentiaries and the directors thereof, and for other purposes," was received from the House of Commons, and read a first time.

Hon. Mr. MITCHELL presented to the House a return to an address, relating to correspondence concerning the building of vessels of wood and iron, &c.

The Bill intituled "An Act to confirm the amalgamation of the Commercial Bank of Canada, and the Merchants' Bank, and to amend and consolidate the Acts of Incorporation of the said banks," was read a second time.

The Bill was then referred to the Committee on Banking, Commerce, and Railways.

The Bill intituled "An Act to amend an Act intituled an Act respecting the statutes of Canada," was read a second time.

The House in Committee agreed to a Bill intituled "An Act constituting the Department of Inland Revenue."

The Bill intituled "An Act respecting the geological survey of Canada," was read a second time.

Also, The Bill intituled "An Act to impose a duty on foreign reprints of British copyright works."

The House then adjourned until Monday at three o'clock.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.

The SPEAKER took the chair at three o'clock.

JUDGE DRUMMOND.

On the question of the reception of the petition of Mr. T. K. Ramsay, complaining of the incompetence and malpractices of Mr. Justice Drummond,

Mr. COLBY, while admitting the right of petition by any subject, held that such right was acknowledged for use not abuse, and without going into the subject of the character of the language which the petitioner had used in bringing forward complaints which should justly lead to the judge's impeachment for high crimes and misdemeanours, pointed out that accusations were included against the Court of Queen's Bench as a body, against His Honor Mr. Justice Smith, and against the son of Mr. Justice Drummond, which accusations were brought forward without any intention of following up their establishment by proper punishment, and merely for the purpose of attempting to gain ground for prejudiced impressions, and to strengthen the main object of the petition by creating an undue bias upon points which were only collateral. It had been laid down by English parliamentary authority that petitions must be couched in language respectful, neither vituperative nor violent, and he instanced a case in point in which, during Lord Castlereagh's administration, a similar petition had been rejected at Westminster, on the objection which he had just taken of the improper introduction of extraneous libel. He hoped that the Minister for Justice, to whom the House would look for guidance, would give his opinion against its reception.

Hon. Mr. JOHNSON also opposed the motion.

Hon. Mr. IRVINE, although he denied the analogy sought to be drawn from the English precedent which had been cited, and thought that it would be most unfortunate that the petition should be summarily rejected, as precluding the judge from the defence which he might be able to bring forward, and consequently subjecting the Bench to undesirable mistrust in the meantime, yet could not but admit that the petition contained, and could not by the House be freed from, many improper allegations which must be fatal to its reception. It was very unfortunate that the case should so stand, and that these charges should have been put forth without prospect of their being fairly sifted, but he must, on the grounds stated, oppose the motion notwithstanding.

Sir J. A. MACDONALD concurred, regretting that the petitioner should have introduced clauses into his complaint that practically deprived him of the assistance of the only court of redress to which he could apply. He should desire, however, before rejecting the petition, to look more closely into it, and consult the appropriate precedents and authorities, and therefore urged that the petition shoul be held over to to-morrow.

Mr. CHAMBERLIN said that the petition had been presented as the only honest an open means of seeking redress, and desir the assistance of the House in eliminatin any objectionable matter, the inclusion which would prevent the petitioner from course to the only tribunal at which his com plaint could be heard.

The petition was then allowed to stan

VERCHERES ELECTION.

The Select Committee on the Verche election reported that the sitting member, Geoffrien, had been duly elected, and that petition against his return was frivolous a vexatious.

PRIVATE BILLS.

On the motion of Mr. J. RYMAL, the rule of the House, requiring ten notice of the introduction of private Bills, suspended in favour of the Canada West Far ers' Insurance Company's Bill; and, on moti of Mr. O'CONNOR, the same rule was suspe ed in favour of a Bill which the mover the introduced to incorporate the Canada Vi growers' Association, which was referred to Committee on Banking and Commerce, also, with similar indulgence, was the B then introduced by Mr. REDFORD, to inc porate the Stratford Board of Trade.

The following private Bills were read a th time and passed:—

On motion of Mr. WORKMAN, an Act incorporate the Canada Shipping Compa (as amended by the Committee on Bank and Commerce), and

On motion of Mr. WHITE, an Act to inc porate the Bank of Agriculture (as amend by the Committee on Banking and Comme

After which, on motion of Mr. A. MOR SON, the House went into Committee on the Bill to incorporate the Merchants' Expr Company of the Dominion of Canada amended by the Committee on Banking an Commerce), Mr. SIMPSON in the chair, whi having been reported, with verbal amendme was read a third time and passed.

SUNDAY CANAL TRAFFIC.

In reply to Mr. MORRIS, who, in the ab sence of Hon. Mr. Abbott, asked whether it is the intention of the Government to tak any order respecting the closing of the Car lon and Grenville canals on Sundays?

Hon. Mr. ROSE replied that the Gover ment would discourage all Sunday traffic, far as practicable.

DREDGING.

On the motion of Mr. STEPHENSON, address was voted for returns of all mon expended under the appropriation made Parliament of Canada in 1861, for dredg operations, &c.

PARLIAMENT LIBRARY.

Hon. Mr. BLANCHET moved the con ration of the first report of the Joint Comm on the Library of Parliament, stating the gr inconvenience which existed from the imp fect arrangement of the books, and expressi his hope that the Government would ask Pa liament for sufficient money for completion the building.

Hon. Mr. CHAUVEAU (in French), MILLS, and Hon. Mr. FISHER, hav spoken to the question, the latter opposing suggested expenditure.

Mr. CHAMBERLIN hoped that the vie of economy suggested by the member for would not be adopted, and urged the imp priety of withdrawing the little encourage hitherto accorded to literary pursuits tastes.

After some observations from Dr. PARK

Mr. YOUNG moved in amendment that report be not adopted, but referred ba the committee.

The SPEAKER having explained that restrictions imposed upon the remova books applied only to rare volumes of ref ence, and not to general literature,

Mr. McKENZIE was opposed to any inte ference with the report of a Standing Comm tee.

Sir J. A. MACDONALD said that Library could not be considered merely legislative but as a national institution, wh should take some such position here as that the British Museum did in the United K dom, and be made open to all students readers desiring reference to scarce and va able stores of information. He, therefore, considered that the books of the library ought to be retained at the capital, and regard to the recommendation of the comm tee to discontinue the patronizing purchase locally published works, was of opinion the public were sufficiently ready to encou all native literary talent of any charac whatever without any such small grants had been hitherto made by Parliament.

Mr. JACKSON thought that the books w ill-selected, and that many volumes of fict which were in the catalogues might be ju ciously removed.

Mr. F. JONES, referring to the statem that box fulls of books had been carried a for the amusement of the children of leg lators, by whom the pictures had bee out, desired that the offenders shoul named. He dissented from the Prem views, and held that members of Parliam should be permitted to receive such volu as they required. For himself he took few, but those that he did take he made g use of. (Laughter.)

Mr. T. R. FERGUSSON regretted that member for Leeds and Grenville could possibility be tempted to carry away b for the amusement of his family (laught but was protected from such suspicion by station as a young bachelor. He endo the suggestions of the leader of the Ho which he thought most desirable to a upon.

After some remarks from Mr. YOUNG a Hon. Mr. BLANCHET,

Hon. Mr. DORION suggested that the Li brarian should keep a list of certain valua works, which should never, under any circ stances, be removed, and after a few wo from Mr. D. A. MACDONALD, the amen ment and motion were both withdrawn.

INLAND REVENUE DEPARTMENT.

Hon. Mr. HOWLAND moved the first rea ing of the amendment to the Inland Reve Department Bill, passed by the Senate, second reading being ordered for to-morr (this day.)

PRINTING COMMITTEE.

Considerable discussion took place rega ing matters of clerical detail, on the mot for the adoption of the 13th report of the Jo Committee on Printing, which was enti devoid of public interest, and lasted t o'clock, when the Speaker left the chair.

After Recess.

JOINT COMMITTEE ON PRINTING.

Mr. McKENZIE moved the adoption the 13th report of the Joint Committee both Houses on Printing, as adopted by Senate.

A long discussion took place on the repo which proposed that a small sum ($131) shou be added to the pay of the Clerk of the Printi Committee, it being argued that it was co trary to the report of the Committee on C tingencies passed a few days ago by the House. Finally the House divided on important question, and the yeas and nays being taken the motion was lost, the vote standing as follow—Yeas 51; Nays 72.

YEAS—Archambeault, Beaty, Beaub Blanchet, Bolton, Bown, Brousseau, Cam bell, Carling, Cartier, Casault, Chamb Colby, Crawford (Leeds), Currier, Forbe Geoffrion, Gibbs, Heath, Holton, Irvine, Jone (Halifax), Keeler, Langevin, Langlois, Lapu Macdonald, Sir J. A. (Kingston), Macke Masson (Terrebonne), McDougall, McKe Merritt, Metcalfe, Mills, Morris, Morr (Niagara), Oliver, Ray, Rose, Ross (Vict N.S.) Rymal, Simard, Simpson, Stirton, Till White, Whitehead, Wood, Workman, Wrig Young.—51.

NAYS—Anglin, Ault, Bechard, Bellero Benoit, Bertrand, Bodwell, Bourassa, Bowm Burpee, Burton, Caldwell, Cameron (In verness), Caron, Cayley, Chauveau, Ch val, Cimon, Connell, Coupal, Crawf (Brockville), Daoust, De Niverville, Dob bie, Dufresne, Dunkin, Ferguson, Ferri Fortier, Fortin, Gaucher, Gaudet Gendro Godin, Grover, Huot, Hurdon, Jackson, Jone (Leeds and Grenville), Little, Macdonald (Glengarry), Macdonald (Middlesex), Masson (Soulanges), McCallum, McCarthy, McConkey, McGreevey, O'Connor, Paquet, Parker, Perry, Pinsonneault, Pouliot, Power, Pozer, Rankin, Read, Redford, Renaud, Robitaille, Ross (Dundas), Ryan (Montreal West), Scatcherd, Shanly, Snider, Sproat, Stephenson, Thompson (Haldi mand), Tremblay, Wallace, Webb, Wilson—72.

Mr. CHAMBERLIN moved an address for report of any officer of Post Office Department upon the case of William Weston.

SIR JOHN A. MACDONALD hoped the motion would not be urged. Reports of the kind to the Government were confidential. The motion was allowed to stand.

Mr. MILLS moved address for an amount paid since July 1st, for works connected with descent of timber on Black River, County of Pontiac.—Carried.

Mr. McKENZIE moved an address for orders in Council and correspondence regarding the Intercolonial Railway and the Imperial Guarantee Act, since 1st July, 1867, &c.—Carried.

Mr. CAMERON (Inverness) moved for correspondence relating to improvement of the Harbor of Mabow.—Carried.

Hon. Mr. CARLING introduced a Bill to incorporate the Canada Live Stock Insurance Company.

Hon. Mr. CHAUVEAU moved the third reading of the Bill to annex a portion of the Seigniory of Belair to the County of Quebec, and another portion to the County of Port Neuf.—Carried.

Hon. Mr. ABBOTT moved the second reading of the Bill to facilitate the winding up of Incorporated Companies, and in doing so said the object of the measure was to simplify the matter, and make the process similar to that pursued in the case of private persons.

Hon. Mr. DUNKIN, looking at the first section, thought the Bill must be largely amended before passing, as it went altogether too far out of the jurisdiction of the Dominion Parliament.

The Bill was read a second time and referred to the Committee on Banking.

SALARY OF THE GOVERNOR-GENERAL.

Mr. DUFRESNE moved the second reading of the Act to fix the salary of the Governor-General, after which he moved that the House go into Committee for its consideration.

Hon. Mr. DUNKIN objected to this stage being then taken.

Mr. DUFRESNE having pressed his motion, Hon. Mr. HOLTON said the proposal was perfectly in order.

Hon. Sir JOHN A. MACDONALD hoped the objection would not be pressed.

Mr. DUNKIN continued at some length to oppose the passage of the Bill.

Mr. METCALFE denied the analogy which had been drawn between the position of the Governor of Victoria and the Governor-General. The City of Melbourne was far superior to any city in British America, and the Governor there was compelled to pay very high wages to his servants, as much as £200 per annum in some instances.

Mr. F. JONES strongly supported the principle of retrenchment, which he believed would be endorsed by the constituencies generally.

The motion was then put, (that the Speaker do leave the chair) and declared carried on division.

The House then went into Committee, Mr. F. JONES (who took his seat at the table amid cheers and laughter) in the chair.

Hon. Mr. HOLTON said that the second clause contained provisions which were beyond the authority of the House to enact, in proposing to amend the Imperial Act of Union, and therefore moved that it be struck out.

Hon. S. CAMPBELL moved in substitution for the second clause, the insertion of the following: "That this Act take effect after the expiration of the present incumbent's term of office," which was declared carried on division.

Mr. YOUNG having challenged the chairman's decision, the amendment was again put, and the Committee divided with the following result:

Yeas, 25; nays, 56.

The amendment was therefore lost.

Hon. Mr. HOLTON then moved the amendment of the preamble by withdrawing the assertion of the desirability of amending the British North America Act, which was put to a division and adopted, after which the House resumed, and the Bill was reported as amended.

Considerable discussion then took place, mainly between Hon. Mr. HOLTON and Hon. Mr. DUNKIN, upon the question of the reception of the report, which was finally ordered for to-morrow (this day.)

TONNAGE DUTY.

Upon the motion of Hon. J. ROSE it was resolved, that the House do go into Committee of the Whole to-morrow (this day) to consider certain resolutions on the subject of Tonnage duties now payable in the Provinces of Quebec, Nova Scotia and New Brunswick.

RATE OF INTEREST.

On motion of Hon. J. ROSE it was also resolved, that the House go into Committee to-morrow (this day) to take into consideration a resolution declaring it expedient to amend the Laws regulating the rate of interest of money.

DESPATCH OF BUSINESS.

Sir J. A. MACDONALD moved that for the remainder of the Session, there shall be two distinct sittings each day, except Saturday, the first to begin at eleven o'clock a.m., and end at two p.m.—the second to begin at four o'clock p.m., and continue until adjournment, and that on Saturday there shall be one sitting, from noon until six o'clock p.m.

Hon. Mr. HOLTON, while approving of the proposal for sitting in the forenoon, objected to making two distinct Legislative days out of one, by which measures of importance might be hurried through with undesirable rapidity.

Sir J. A. MACDONALD pointed out that the minority, if considering themselves unfairly dealt with, could always obviate the inconvenience hinted at by speaking against time to the hour of close of the morning Session, which would thus be rendered practically valueless, and, after some discussion in which Hon. J. S. MACDONALD, Hon. Mr. IRVINE, Hon. Mr. DUNKIN and Dr. PARKER took part, the latter contending that the rule would occasion great inconvenience to the meetings of Select Committees, the motion was put and carried.

CUSTOMS AND INLAND REVENUE.

Upon the motion of the Hon. Mr. TILLEY for the third reading of the Bill constituting the Department of Customs,

Hon. Mr. HOLTON moved that the Bill be not now read a third time, but referred back to Committee with instruction to provide for the organization of the Departments of Customs and Inland Revenue under one Minister.

Hon. Sir J. A. MACDONALD pointed out that the Inland Revenue Bill had already passed both branches of the Legislature, except so far as it had been slightly amended in the Upper Chamber, the amendments agreed to, in which had been read there only that day. That department could not therefore be easily interfered with, and the hon. mover of the amendment could not expect the consent of the House to a proposal to abrogate the principle which had been already fully discussed and conclusively accepted to the majority.

Mr. McKENZIE said that it had been distinctly understood that another Departmental Bill had been allowed to pass on the understanding that a discussion was to take place upon this one. He maintained that the number of departments was excessive, and held that this was clearly a case in which two of them might be advantageously amalgamated.

Mr. MILLS challenged the propriety of the Cabinet receiving so high sounding a title as that of Privy Council, questioning their power to perform many analogous functions.

The amendment was then declared lost on a division, and the Bill read a third time and passed.

SECURITY OF CROWN, &C.

On motion of Sir J. A. MACDONALD the Bill providing for the better security of the Crown and Government, was read a third time and passed.

FORTIFICATIONS.

On motion of Sir G. E. CARTIER the report of the Committee of the Whole agreeing to the resolutions to provide a sum not exceeding £1,100,000 sterling to defray the expenses of constructing works of fortification for the defence of Montreal and other cities was received and concurred in, and a Bill giving effect to the same introduced, and ordered for second reading to-morrow, (this day.)

INLAND NAVIGATION.

The House then went into committee upon the Bill respecting the Navigation of Canadian Waters, (from Senate,) (Mr. M. CAMERON in the chair,) which was reported without amendment, and the third reading ordered for tomorrow, after which

CIVIL SERVICE.

The House went into Committee to consider certain resolutions relative to the Civil Service, (Hon. Mr. BLANCHET in the chair), which were agreed to, and the report ordered for reception to-morrow (this day).

CONSOLIDATED REVENUE.

On the motion of Hon. J. ROSE, the Bill respecting the Consolidated Revenue Fund was read a second time, and the House having gone into Committee for its consideration,

Sir J. A. MACDONALD, in reply to Hon. Mr. HOLTON, intimated that there would be no objection to complying with the request of the latter for an early statement of the reasons which had induced the delegates to London to arrange the Provincial subsidies on a different basis from that established by the several Provincial Legislatures prior to Confederation.

The Bill was then agreed to, and the House having resumed, the reception of the report of the Committee ordered for to-morrow (this day).

IMPORTATION OF TOBACCO.

Upon the motion of Hon. Mr. HOWLAND, the House then went into Committee of the Whole, for consideration of certain resolutions respecting the importation of tobacco, (Hon. S. CAMPBELL in the chair), providing for the bonded entry of this article at certain ports only, and imposing restrictions upon its withdrawal from bonded warehouses, which were agreed to, and ordered for concurrence tomorrow (this day).

STEAMBOATS.

The Bill respecting the inspection of steamboats, and providing for the greater safety of passengers by them, was, on the motion of Sir J. A. MACDONALD, read a second time and committed, (Hon. Col. GRAY in the chair), and the Committee having reported progress, obtained leave to sit again.

COPPER COIN.

On the motion of Sir J. A. MACDONALD, the Bill respecting the importation or manufacture of copper coin or tokens, was passed through the final stages, and the House rose at twenty-two minutes to one this morning.

FENIAN PAPERS.

To the Editor of THE TIMES.

SIR,—If light bread were seized at one or more bakeries in this city, would it be proper to say, "the city bakers had their bread seized for light weight," without giving the names of the guilty parties? No "Fenian papers" have ever been seized at our News Depot, for the simple reason that we had none, yet the public have been led to believe differently from your repeated statements, that "Fenian papers have been seized at the News Depots of the city."

By inserting this note you will oblige

Yours faithfully,

JONES & HOLLAND.

A BENEFACTRESS.—Just open the door for her, and Mrs. WINSLOW will prove the American Nightingale of the Nursery. Of this we are sure, that we will teach our "SUSY" to say "A Blessing Mrs. Winslow," for helping her to survive and escape the griping, colicking and teething ege. We confirm every word set forth in the prospectus. It performs precisely what it professes to perform, every part of it—nothing less. Away with your "Cordial," "Paregoric," "Drops," "Laudanum," and every other "Narcotic," by which the babe is drugged into stupidity, and rendered dull and idiotic for life.

We have never seen Mrs. Winstow—know her onl through the preparation of her "Soothing Syrup for Children Teething." If we had the power, we would make her, as she is, a physical saviour to the infant race. 25 cents a bottle. Sold by all druggists. PAIN KILLER.

The Great Family Medicine of the Age!

THE UNIVERSAL REMEDY for INTERNAL & EXTERNAL COMPLAINTS!

OUR FIRST PHYSICIANS USE AND RECOMMEND ITS USE!

It Enjoys the Largest Sale of Any Proprietary Medicine in the World!

THE PAIN KILLER

HAS been favorably known for more than thirty years, during which time we HAVE RECEIVED THOUSANDS OF TESTIMONIALS, showing this Medicine to be an almost NEVER FAILING REMEDY for diseases caused by or attendant upon—Sudden Colds, Coughs, Fever and Ague, Headache, Billious Fever, Pains in the Side, Back and Loins, as well as in the Joints and Limbs; Neuralgic and Rheumatic Pains in any part of the system, Toothache and Pains in the Head and Face.

As a BLOOD PURIFIER and TONIC for the STOMACH, it seldom fails to cure Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Liver Complaint, Acid Stomach, Heartburn, Kidney Complaints, Sick Headache, Piles, Asthma or Phthisic, Ringworms, Boils, Felons, Whitlows, Old Sores, Swelled Joints, and General Debility of the System.

It is also a PROMPT and SURE REMEDY for Crampand Pains in the Stomach, Painters' Colic, Diarrhœa, Dysentery, Summer Complaint, Cholera Morbus, Cholera Infantum, Scalds, Burns, Sprains, Bruises, Frost Bites, Chilblains, as well as the Stings of Insects, and the Bites of Poisonous Insects and Venomous Reptiles.

☞ Directions accompany each bottle.

It has been tested in every variety of climate, and by almost every nation known to civilization. It is the almost constant companion and inestimable friend of the Missionary, and the traveller, should be without it. Like every other good thing, the Pain Killer has been extensively counterfeited: which, (while it is an acknowledgment on the part of the counterfeiters of its real worth,) is a serious hinderance to its usefulness, as the deceived purchaser estimates the value of the Pain Killer by the base compound he has purchased for the genuine article.

Purchasers should be careful and not allow the dealer to sell them worthless imitations, on which they realize a larger profit, but take only the Pain Killer, and see that it is the genuine, bearing the signature of Perry Davis & Son upon the label.

The Pain Killer is sold at wholesale by Druggists and Medicine Dealers, and Commission Merchants, in the principal cities, and retailed by Apothecaries, Grocers, and at Variety Shops generally, throughout the world.

DARLEY'S

Arabian Heave Remedy

AND CONDITION MEDICINE

IS POSITIVELY SUPERIOR TO ANY or all other preparations for the cure of Heaves, Coughs, Thick and Broken Wind, and all diseases which affect the Wind of Horses; also, as a Condition Medicine, surpassing everything of the kind, is easy to give, surprise to cure, and safe in all cases and at all times, and does not prevent the horse from being worked while using it.

It cleanses the breathing apparatus, by removing from the air-cells the coagulable lymph, or that secretion which in heaves clogs them, causing a difficulty in breathing, and by its action on the diseased part, causing the mucous membrane to resume its natural dimensions, thus equalizing the circulation of the blood, and restoring the distended vessels to their natural size; by its use the horse's appetite is improved, all derangements of the digestive organs corrected, softening the skin, and giving to the coat a sleek and shining appearance.

Circular.

DOWNING-STREET,
25th April, 1867.

SIR,—

With reference to the Circular Despatch from this Department dated the 5th of June, 1866, relative to the case of Foreigners naturalized in any of Her Majesty's Colonies who wish to obtain British Passports for foreign travel—I have the honor to inform you that different cases have occurred lately in which such naturalized Foreigners have applied in this country for passports without being in possession either of a Passport from the Governor or of any Official Document from the Colony to establish their identity and character. You will readily perceive that this is calculated to embarrass this Department, and also to cause much private inconvenience to the persons concerned if they should find themselves unable to produce any sufficient evidence of their quality.

I have therefore to suggest that, in every Colony containing naturalized Foreigners who are likely to travel in Europe, it would be convenient that notice should from time to time be given in public newspapers of the necessity for such persons providing themselves before leaving the Colony with some official evidence of their identity and description.

I have the honor to be,
Sir,
Your most obedient
Humble servant,

Signed, BUCKINGHAM & CHANDOS.

The Officer Administering
the Government, &c., &c., &c.

OFFICE OF THE SECRETARY OF STATE,
Ottawa, 8th May, 1868.

(With reference to the foregoing Circular Despatch.)

Notice is hereby given that parties requiring Passports must apply, until further notice, to this Department, transmitting at the same time a certificate of identity, accompanied in each case with a description of the applicant, signed by a Justice of the Peace and also the fee of one dollar.

Secretary.

The Act incorporating the "Merchants" Express Company of the Dominion of Canada" has been passed, and we are pleased to understand that steps will be taken immediately to get it in operation.

This company will be of great advantage to the community at large in facilitating interchange of goods between the Provinces, as well as from different points within either of them, and from the names associated with it, is likely to command the confidence of the whole country. We notice that the St. John Telegraph speaks in strong terms of the need of such a company to facilitate business in the Maritime Provinces, and with the rest of Canada, and have pleasure in calling the attention of our contemporary to the fact, that the charter having been obtained, arrangements will be immediately set on foot to organise the Company, get the stock subscribed, and commence operations as soon as circumstances will permit. The promoters of the Company are energetic men, who will not allow the charter to lie dormant in their hands, and there is, we believe, a general disposition among the business community of the country to give them every encouragement.

We regret to learn by cable despatch, which reached New York on Sunday night, that Lord Brougham is dead. The great man whose life has spanned three generations of men; who has come down to us in the history of a former epoch as a leading spirit in the days of our grandfathers, and whose green octogenarianism a decade ago was the wonder of the time, has at length succumbed to the inevitable decree; and mental and physical powers alike decaying as they had grown and flourished together for so long a period. Henry, Lord Brougham, died at his residence at Cannes, on Sunday last, at the advanced age of ninety years. Both for the brilliancy and the versatility of his genius Lord Brougham will stand forth in history, political, social, and literary, as one of the most remarkable men which the last half of the last century produced, or the first half of the present has been permitted to witness.

Though he will be confounded in history, as he is already in the minds of men, as one of England's great men, the country north of the Tweed has the glory of his paternity; but fortunately now-a-days there is a common feeling of national property, as there is of national pride, in the illustrious sons of any one of the once "three Kingdoms," and we can speak of men as Britons, or as Englishmen, without provoking the narrow question of geographical ownership, which formerly occupied so large a space in the general estimate of public character. It cannot be said that the news of his death will take the world by surprise. For a few years past it has been known and commented upon that the bright sun of his intelligence was rapidly sinking; that the well worn mind in the worn out frame had lost the vigor which animated it for more than three-quarters of a century, and now in the fullness of years, and after achievements sufficient to have made a score of men famous, no one will be surprised to learn that he is dead.

It is, we believe, nearly sixty years since Lord Brougham first entered the British Parliament, and before that time, he was famous among the literary men of those days, all of whom he has survived, and most of them for many years. He was the staunch and trenchant defender of every progressive movement. For the first fifty years of the present century, he took a prominent part in the discussion of every public question, and with all his eccentricities of character was, perhaps, the most general favorite among the people, until the rising star of Palmerston engrossed their more particular attention, as Brougham gradually withdrew from the greater affairs of State. Having risen from a comparatively small beginning to the highest position which any subject of the British Crown can occupy—that of Lord Chancellor—he had little that in the way of additional honors he could have coveted; though some twenty years ago it was broadly charged against him that he had set his heart upon a higher title in the British peerage, an honor to which he was surely well entitled, though smaller men were then powerful enough to deprive him of the pleasure of wearing it. The incident is only noticed here as an illustration of the deep hold which the British system of Government takes upon the sympathies of all men intimately engaged in its administration, for none would have supposed from Henry Brougham's early career, that a higher title than that which conferred upon him all privileges of the State would have had any peculiar charm in his eyes.

Since the great debate in the House of Lords, in '50 or '51 (speaking from memory) on the repeal of the navigation laws, when the caustic Earl of Derby, clinging to his Protectionist notions, delivered his famous phillippic against the noble Lords who had yielded to the liberal ideas on commercial legislation that led to the adoption of that Bill, and pointed to Lord Brougham "as the gnarlish and unwedgeable oak" which had "become the soft and pliant myrtle," Lord Brougham did not take so prominent a part in the debates in Parliament; but turned his attention more especially to "social science" and the encouragement of literary institutions. It was about the date named, and if we mistake not, with reference to the same debate, that the story was started (whether true or false) of Lord Brougham's having informed a noble lady, who asked him who was the best debater in the House of Lords, that "Lord Derby was second;" but whether this was a sarcasm on, or an illustration of, his vanity, we do not pretend to say.

Doubtless the highest honors will be paid to the memory of the deceased nobleman. He had long outlived the asperities of feeling created by political antagonism and intensified by his own overbearing impetuosity of character, and will now be thought of only as one of the nation's greatest of great men, as one who has labored longer and, perhaps, more industriously, than almost any other man of these times in the cause of human progress.

We have received the report of the Directors of the Grand Trunk Railway for the half year ending Dec. 31st, 1867. Gross receipts for the half year £704,379 sterling; working expenses (63.50 per cent.) £447,306; renewals permanent way £85,819; paid on account loss by fires at Sarnia and Toronto £6,164; debit balance from previous half year £17,677; leaving a net available balance of £147,413. This is not quite so favorable an exhibit as that of the corresponding period of 1866, but the cause is to be found in the effects of the financial crisis which injuriously affected the trade of the country.

The members of the McGee Testimonial Fund Local Committee are reminded that the adjourned meeting takes place this evening. It is desirable that there should be a full attendance, and the lists already filled up handed in.

Mr. Jackson, Chairman of the Committee on Immigration and Colonization, submitted yesterday a voluminous report, which, after giving an historical and statistical resume of the subject, closes as follows:—

"The system which has been in existence for furthering and aiding immigration to Canada has not been productive of satisfactory results, neither is it, in the opinion of your Committee, adapted to be so under the law which has placed the public lands under the control of the Provincial Legislatures.

"In order to avoid a conflict of authority and to secure the efficiency of any general immigration scheme, it is necessary that there should be an understanding, and consequently co-operative action, between the General and the Provincial Legislatures. In the meantime, and before any such concurrent action can be agreed upon, your Committee recommend that such care and assistance be extended to emigrants arriving seaward, as may be necessary.

"Your Committee recommend a discontinuance of the agency at Wolverhampton, in England, and such a reduction of the staff at the Quebec, Toronto, and other agencies, as can be made consistently with the recommendation in the preceding paragraph, with a view to the early re-organization of these agencies.

"As the success of the immigrant depends greatly upon his willingness and ability to adapt himself to the conditions in which success is, alone, to be expected, your Committee suggest that great caution and circumspection should guide any public effort to induce persons to emigrate. While Canada offers health, prosperity, and freedom to the industrious laborer and mechanic, she cannot safely assume any responsibility on behalf of persons whose occupations or habits have been unfavorable to self reliance, or to the practical exercise of intelligent effort.

"Your Committee have received a number of letters containing suggestions, on the subject of Immigration, and offers, on the part of the writers, to place their services at the disposal of the Government, as writers or lecturers on the resources of Canada, in Europe. It is not incumbent upon your Committee to express any opinion in reference to the suggestions themselves, or to the gentlemen by whom they are made; for, if the views to which your committee have given expression in this report, are in accordance with those entertained by your hon. House, it will be the obvious duty of the Government—in conjunction with the Provincial Governments—to adapt the agencies in Canada and elsewhere to existing circumstances.

"The prospective acquisition by Canada of the fertile lands in the valley of the Saskatchewan, and its tributaries is, no doubt, interesting thousands who purpose to migrate from the mother country to one of its dependencies. In the present state of the relations between the Northwest Territory and Canada, no precise plan for its settlement can be recommended, or even considered, by your Committee, but they submit that, without any unnecessary delay, so much of these lands as are fitted for agricultural purposes, should be made accessible through British territory, and offered on such terms as will be attractive to a class of settlers who desire to enjoy the fruits of their industry, under the security of British laws and institutions.

"Coincident with the construction of the Intercolonial Railway, a large quantity of land hitherto inaccessible, will be available for settlement. During its progress, the laborer will earn the means of sustaining himself in the early stages of his settlement. The chief drawback to settlement hitherto, has been the difficulty of obtaining employment at a convenient distance, and then of carrying produce to market, over a long line of almost impassable roads. On the line, and within the influence of the Intercolonial railroad, these difficulties will not exist; therefore your Committee urge upon the Government of the Dominion, the necessity of co-operating with the Provincial Governments, through whose territory the road will pass, in the adoption of a well considered and liberal policy, with regard to settlement. The Legislatures of Ontario, Quebec, and New Brunswick, respectively, have passed homestead exemption laws. The former has also devoted large tracts of land for the behoof of actual settlers, in free grants of one hundred acres each, with permission to purchase an additional one hundred acres, at fifty cents an acre. Though those terms are not precisely similar to the homestead exemption and free grant system of the United States, they are presumed to be equally favorable. Your Committee doubt not that the terms will be altered or modified, should it be found in the interest of settlement to do so. The new policy, so far, appears to be liberal and progressive, and may be held as justifying a claim for an adjustment by persons in arrears to the Government on account of purchased lands in the comparatively recent settlements, but which lands, for various reasons, are of little real value.

"The mode in which the mineral lands in the Dominion are to be disposed of, and the obligations imposed by the Governments with regard to the manner of working these lands will, very seriously, affect the number of mining emigrants, as well as the flow of capital necessary for the developement of our mineral resources. The mode of disposing of such lands should be, at once, inviting and encouraging; therefore your committee desire to express the hope that the public policy in regard to them will be quite as liberal as that which appears to have succeeded in the United States. By the investment of capital in extracting the treasures of the mine, a consuming population necessarily follows, so that, besides giving value to that which has no value, while hidden in the earth, a home market is opened for the produce and manufactures of the country."

—In Bremen a young man on the point of getting married, advertised his desire of meeting a man of experience who would dissuade him from the step. In many parts of this continent he would obtain enough of such counsel, and at small cost. A few glasses of Italian Bitters would procure for him many extended interviews from parties competent to dissuade.

Dr. Fortin, M. P. for Gaspe, has communicated the following news from the Magdalen Islands, under date of the 1st of May:

"Last winter has been both long and severe in those parts, and it has been one of hardship and misery for many.

"There has been a great deal of sickness, and more than 100 deaths have been recorded there, since last fall, among the population, now numbering about 3,000.

"Mr. Simon Cormier, a fisherman and ship owner—a descendant of one of the first four families that settled at the Magdalen Islands, in the last century—died in February last. He was much respected by all who knew him.

"Seal hunting on the floating ice that ground around the Islands about the month of March, has been a total failure this year.

"As for the seal hunting vessels, they had left for their laborious and dangerous expeditions at the usual time, about the beginning of April, and nothing had been heard of any of them since. It was thought that owing to the prevalence of southwesterly winds during the latter end of April, they must be jammed by the ice in the Straits of Belle Isle. But still no fears were entertained for their safety.

"There was a large fleet of vessels for herring fishing at Amherst. The vessels were mostly American or chartered American vessels, and many more were to come yet. Among the vessels arrived was one from Prince Edward's Island, and the master of which is going to put up herring for the Scotch market (Glasgow).

"He requires 675 barrels for this year, and he has his own men to pack the fish. He will take this fish to Prince Edward Island, and from there will ship them by some large vessels bound home.

"The herring fishery had not yet commenced on the first of May.

"There was great scarcity of seed grains on the Magdalen Islands, as it is the case generally all over the Provinces. And it is rather surprising to hear that on Prince Edward Island, that agricultural country par excellence, this scarcity should have been so great that the Government had appropriated a sum of money to help the poors farmers in procuring seeds.

"The Government vessel, La Canadienne, was anxiously expected in Pleasure Bay, which is the place where spring herring and mackerel fishing is carried on.

The New Dominion Monthly for May is as usual replete with interesting reading matter.

ST. PATRICK'S ORPHANS' BAZAAR.

We paid a visit last evening to the bazaar now being held in the Bishop's building, Sussex-st., and were agreeably disappointed at finding ourselves free to move about without being pressed on all hands to take a draw for this, that, and the other thing, by crowds of lottery mongers. The managers of this bazaar have done well to inaugurate a reform in this particular, and it is to be hoped that those who have heretofore been coerced into giving ten cents or a quarter for a throw, will show their appreciation of this reform by freely handing out their dollars. We have scarcely ever seen at a bazaar in this city so large a proportion of really superb articles as there are at present on exhibition at this bazaar.

On the first table, that of Mrs. Lemieux, which like all the others, was surmounted by a festooned floral arch, we observed amongst a profusion of superb articles, combining the beautiful with the useful, an elaborately worked chair by Mrs. Lemieux and mounted by Mr. Campbell, a splendid Ottoman, a number of handsomely wrought cushions, varieties of wax flowers under glass cases, one of them being a very fine Victoria Regia, shell and moss-work handsomely attired, wax dolls, baby linen, dresses, perfumery, &c.

The second table was that of Miss Baskerville and Mrs. Goodwin, where besides many of such articles as above enumerated, there is a handsome silver tea service. There is also to be seen the Greek slave under a glass case in wax work boxes, writing desk, porcelain tea service, wax flowers, &c., &c. One of the most costly articles on this table, was, we believe, presented by Mrs. Hays and another by Mrs. Roderick Ryan.

The next table is that of Mrs. McGreevy and Mrs. P. Ryan, and contains a great number of splendid articles, the best of which is a pictorial representation of a deer hunt, in seven pictures, a handsome papier mache chess table, a case of wax fruit, a donation, we believe, from Mrs. Bowes, a beautiful silver egg stand, a donation from Mrs. Macdonald, writing desk, pictures, baby linen, flowers in wax, and a handsome child's dress brought from Paris, &c., &c.

The lunch table next claims notice, and this, too, is surmounted by a floral arch, and on approaching it is seen hanging against a pillar one of Notman's fine photographs of Mr. McGee in a massive gilt oval frame. This was procured for the bazaar by Mrs. George Murphy at considerable expence, and for the last two or three weeks, she has been sedulously engaged in making it productive of the greatest good to the orphans, and we hope she has succeeded. The table is bountifully supplied with the choicest meats, jellies, ices, ice cream, cooling drinks, wines, liquors, &c. Hanging over the table is a beautiful rug in which is woven the picture of a highland huntsman. The bazaar is open every evening, and we understand that the string band of the Rifles is to be present.

Mrs. O'Meara is the lady President of the bazaar.

Monday, May 11, 1868.

The SPEAKER took the chair at three o'clock p.m.

After routine,

The SPEAKER reported to the House that the period for receiving petitions for private Bills; also for presenting private Bills to Senate, and for receiving reports of Standing or Select Committee on private Bills expires this day.

On motion of the Hon. Mr. MITCHELL, seconded by the Hon. Mr. HAMILTON (Kingston), it was: Ordered, that the time limited for receiving petitions for private Bills, also for presenting private Bills, and also for receiving reports of any Standing or Select Committee on private Bills be extended to Tuesday of next week.

Hon. Mr. ROSE presented a petition of E. L. Montezambert, praying to be permitted to withdraw from the service of the Senate at the close of the present Session, on the same conditions accorded to the other employees of the House, who have been in the service of the Legislative Council of Canada for more than twenty years. Referred to Select Committee on contingent accounts for the present Session.

Mr. HAMILTON (Kingston), from the Committee on Banking, Commerce and Railways, to whom was referred the Bill intituled, "An Act to confirm the amalgamation of the Commercial Bank of Canada and the Merchants' Bank, and to amend and consolidate the Act of incorporation of the said Bank." Reported the same to the House without amendment.

Ordered that the said Bill be read a third time to-morrow.

Also the Bill intituled: "An Act constituting the Department of Inland Revenue," was, as amended, read a third time.

Ordered, that the Clerk go down to the House of Commons and acquaint that House that the Senate have passed this Bill with several amendments, to which they desire their concurrence.

AN ACT RESPECTING PATENTS OF INVENTIONS.

Hon. Mr. CHAPAIS explained the different clauses of this Bill at length. The main object of the Bill was to assimilate the Laws of all the Provinces of the Dominion in one comprehensive measure. He explained the different clauses of the Bill, which, he said, had been prepared with great care, and he thought the Bill would give general satisfaction.

Hon. Mr. BOTSFORD said the propriety of granting exclusive rights for a long period to inventors, was a subject of much discussion in the present day, and the feeling was rather hostile to it. He did not rise to oppose the principle of the Bill, but for the purpose of asking the Minister of Agriculture whether it is intended that the patents now in force in the several Colonies shall come under the provisions of this Bill, and whether they shall have to apply every five years for an extension of their patents; as the 31st section says, "All patents issued under any Act of the Legislature of the late Province of Canada, or of Nova Scotia, or of New Brunswick, and all patents issued for the Provinces of Ontario and Quebec, under the Act of the late Province of Canada to the date of the coming into operation of the present Act, shall remain in force for the same term, and for the same extent of territory, as if the Act under which they were issued had not been repealed, but subject to the provisions of this Act in so far as applicable to them."

Hon. Mr. CHAPAIS said the Bill did not allude to any extension of territory; the patentee in any of the different Provinces cannot under this law obtain patents in the Dominion for their respective patents, but they remain in force in their respective Province.

Hon. Mr. BOTSFORD said the clause he had read provided that those patents should be subject to the provisions of this Act. Did that clause apply to patents now in existence the provision that they should expire in five years?

Hon. Mr. MITCHELL said it did not apply; the Bill gave to those patents neither any extension of time or territory.

Hon. Mr. McCULLY said his hon. friend (Mr. Botsford) was quite right in saying that the spirit of the age is rather hostile to the extension of privileges to patentees. A great deal might be said in regard to whether a man who has taxed his ingenuity in devising some labor-saving machinery is not as much entitled to protection as a professional man in his profession. The difficulty is in regard to assigning patent privileges to a third person. A man cannot convey his mind as he can convey his patent, and this makes the difference between the two classes of subjects. He, in connection with others, had taken a very active part in endeavoring to limit the number of patents granted to foreigners in Nova Scotia, and in consequence the privilege of taking out patents has been so confined to the people living in that Province, that we have been able to avail ourselves of all the improvements that have been discovered in any foreign country, or in British territory. In our mines—and especially in our gold mines—we have the advantage of adopting the best machinery for working them, which we could not have had without paying a large amount for patent rights, if we had granted patents to foreigners. When our ingenious young men see new machinery abroad, they can avail themselves of their knowledge in constructing similar machinery without costing them such a large amount of capital as it would do if subject to patent laws. He (Mr. McCully) had not read the Bill very carefully, as it was not going before the House to-day, but if it was what he believed it to be, nothing would give him more pleasure than assisting to pass it. While he was not disposed to prevent ingenious men from having the advantage of their ingenuity and labor, he thought a young country like this was not in a condition to compete with the world in regard to patents, therefore we should not allow strangers to come in and obtain patent rights the same as our own people. These patent rights cause a great amount of litigation in a country, as parties often make some slight alteration in an invention, and make a fortune from it. Very few inventors have been known to improve their fortunes by their ingenuity, for it is generally some other person who avails himself of the labor, skill, and ingenuity of the inventor, and makes a fortune out of those who use the invention.

Hon. Mr. SANBORN said if his hon. friend (Mr. McCully), had not viewed both sides of the question, he had certainly argued on both sides of it. The first position he takes is, that a person who has by ingenuity and thought invented something not in use before, is entitled to that as a matter of property, then he says it becomes a different thing when he wants to transfer it, for he cannot transfer his mind. There is no necessity for him to transfer his mind, but only the product of his mind; it is his property he transfers, and not his mind. It has been recognised as a fact not only in America but in Europe, that the granting of patents to the individuals of any country induces activity in business. What does a man desire to invest for if it is not for the purpose of obtaining a profit? and this should be secured to him by patent rights, otherwise there will be nothing to stimulate men to invent new improvements. There is no country where inventions have gone on so extensively as in the United States, and in no country has such practical results attended them. He then referred to his endeavors to get a patent law passed, which he had introduced into the Legislative Council of Canada twelve years ago, when some of the members who, at first, were interested in the measure, suddenly changed their minds under the conviction that they were violating the principles of free trade. He said they should look at the results of patent laws, instead of treating them as tending to produce monopolies. In countries where inventors were encouraged, enterprise was excited, and new discoveries were made in every branch of industry. He thought the objection to granting patents to foreigners could be obviated by stipulating in the Bill that foreign inventors who take out patents for their inventions should establish a manufactory for them within our own borders, then it would be impossible for them to take out patents here for the purpose of selling them. If our patent laws are liberal the trade will regulate itself, and instead of one having inferior articles of machinery manufactured here we shall be able to get better articles at cheaper prices. With regard to the present Bill it appeared to be far in advance of the one which hitherto existed in the Province of Canada. He could not see what propriety there was in requiring foreigners to reside in the Province one year before getting a patent; if they wanted to establish a manufactory they had better establish it at once, instead of having to wait a year, because it might prevent them from establishing it at all. In the Congress of the United States about twelve or thirteen years ago, there was a patent committee appointed who recommended that country to issue patents to the subjects of those foreign countries on the same terms that such countries permitted the citizens of the United States to obtain patents under their laws. Congress then passed a law founded upon that recommendation. If we permit an American to take out a patent here for $30 we have the same privilege in the United States, but at the present time we would be required to pay $500. He would like to see this principle of reciprocity adopted in this Bill, but as it was he would accept it as an improvement upon our present law. He then referred to the sixth clause where it is provided "that no patent shall issue for an invention having an illicit object in view, nor for any mere scientific principle or abstract theorem." He said a great many cases had occurred and, no doubt, would be continually occurring, where it would be difficult to determine whether the principle was abstract or practical. There was an application made for a patent not long since, for making paper boxes from pulp, but not according to any particular mode. If you are making application for a patent for machinery, you can show how it is done by a model or design, but in the case of the pulp, it is very nearly like granting a patent for an abstract principle, and in such cases it would be difficult to decide whether a patent ought or ought not to be granted. Then in regard to the patents already granted in the different Provinces, he thought the Bill should provide to extend those patents to the whole Dominion when they were renewed.

Hon. Mr. McCULLY said suppose a man had a patent for an invention for the Provinces of Nova Scotia and New Brunswick, and he sold his patent right for New Brunswick; if that patent was extended over both Provinces, who would have the benefit of it?

Hon. Mr. MITCHELL said, in framing the Bill, the Minister of Agriculture had overlooked one principle which had been agreed upon, which was that the privilege of extending patents was not to apply to existing inventions. He was glad the Bill was receiving so much attention, and was being discussed with so much calmness and deliberation, because it was a measure which required much thought and reflection. He was not prepared to say that the adoption of free trade in patents would not be of more advantage than the present system. It would be like establishing the principle of free ports. He thought that if three-quarters of a century ago the port of St. John had been made a free port, and the means to sustain the expenses of the country had been levied by direct taxation, or derived from some other sources, that little town to-day might have been classed as one of the great cities of the continent. The same principle might have some weight as applicable to the Patent Law, and it is one which has engaged the attention of many scientific men. He believed that if the people of this country were sufficiently educated for the position, it would be well worthy the consideration of the House, whether in the present state of the country, looking at its proximity to a great people alongside of us, they should not adopt this principle. The hon. member who had last spoken expressed himself in favor of the Bill, because it was a step in advance of the previous law on that subject in Canada. He has put forward the idea that people's ingenuity should receive attention and protection. He (Mr. Mitchell) said, that as an abstract principle, morally, such a proposition was right, whether it related to patents, copyright, or any other abstract principle. The question the Legislature had to consider was not only the moral effect of the legislation, but the effect it would have upon the sentiments of the country, and upon the industry of the country, in utilizing its resources. This law gives us an opportunity of taking the inventions of other nations and utilizing them. His hon. friend (Mr. Sanborn) had referred to the United States as a country in which great progress had been made on account of their patent laws. He (Mr. Mitchell) agreed with him that the United States had advanced very rapidly during the last three-quarters of a century, but it was not because they have adopted a good system of patent laws, but it is in spite of them. It is because the country is possessed of great internal wealth that it has prospered, as that wealth has been developed, and notwithstanding they have had a disastrous war, it still continues to prosper. We might as well say that the prosperity of the United States was caused by that war as to say it was caused by the number of patents that had been taken out. His hon. friend (Mr. McCully) had stated that in Nova Scotia there were but few patents given to foreigners. In New Brunswick the case was the reverse of this, for there any one could get a patent for $10, and it had the effect of checking the industry of the country. He referred to a shoe factory, which had been established some years ago, the proprietors of which had to pay ten cents per pair for every pair of shoes they made, because they made use of some machinery invented in the United States, and for which they had taken out a patent in the Province.

Hon. Mr. SANBORN asked how the patentee could ascertain the amount he was entitled to receive from the manufacturer, and whether a superior article of shoes was not produced by the encouragement given by that patent.

Hon. Mr. MITCHELL was not prepared to say how they ascertained the total amount, but it might be by affidavit; neither was he prepared to say the shoes were better. It afforded better facilities for making them, so that they could be made cheaper. The effect of the extreme liberality of the patent laws of New Brunswick, allowing every one to come in and take out patents, was to compel the leading manufactories of the country to pay toll to foreign inventors, or perhaps to some person who picked up the invention in some foreign country, and take out a patent for it in ours. He could mention many cases where those patent laws have borne hard upon our manufactories. He held, as an abstract principle, that in a young country like this, where the population were sparse, where the intelligence of the people has not been directed into the channel of invention, and situated as we are along side of a country the very reverse of this, it is our interest as a people to throw as many restrictions about monopolies as possible, but were we in a different position, and the sentiments of the people in favor of doing away with existing restrictions, we could fairly say, that it might be for the interest of the country to adopt a system to allow free trade in patents as in everything else, and the effect would be that every invention discovered in the United States would be open to be adopted in our trade. Then as protection had been given to manufactories both here and in the United States, they would spring up here in many parts of the country where they do not now exist. In the present state of public sentiment he thought that policy could not be adopted, therefore they should throw as many restrictions against the obtaining of patents as possible. In regard to the suggestion of his hon. friend (Mr. Sanborn) to introduce a section into the Bill to enable the American provision for reciprocity in patents to come into operation in this country, he must say that from what he could see of the policy of American statesmen, they take good care to be extremely liberal in any principle of reciprocity that brings advantage to their own people, and were he (Mr. Mitchell) an American citizen, having something to say in regard to the law for the extension of reciprocity in the patent laws to Canada, he would agree with the provisions contained in their Bill. He would ask his hon. friend why they had not adopted the same principle in reference to copyrights?

Hon. Mr. SANBORN thought they were wrong in that respect.

Hon. Mr. MITCHELL said the Americans were quite willing to be liberal when it suited their own interest, but they had refused for the last half a century to enter into a treaty whereby the genius and talent of European authors could have had that protection which his hon. friend was so desirous American inventors should have. He then referred to the unfortunate position in which the Canadian publisher was placed in regard to reprints of British copyright works, in consequence of the policy adopted in the British Parliament, thus compelling us to give the preference to the American publisher over our own. While he was prepared to favor the principle of free trade in every way in which it could be extended, he was not prepared to allow American citizens to come into our country and take out patents for inventions which they may have picked up in foreign countries, and make our people pay for the application of those patents, as they did under the old Canadian law. Such restriction should be introduced into our patent law as would allow our people the utmost liberty in utilizing every invention existing in a foreign country.

Hon. Mr. SANBORN hoped his hon. friend was not going to oppose the Bill; he had advocated everything that was not in the Bill, and opposed what was in it.

Hon. Mr. MITCHELL denied that he was advocating every ground that was not in the Bill. His hon. friend (Mr. Sanborn) was going to support the Bill, because it was one step in advance of the old Canadian Bill, while he (Mr. Mitchell) was supporting it, because it was one step the other way. They both supported it, but it was from two different points of view. He supported the Bill, not because he believed a system of patents was an advantage to a country, but because public opinion demands that a patent law should exist, and if they must have such a law, they should have it open to as few objections as possible.

Hon. Mr. CHAPAIS explained that existing patents would not be affected, or come under the provisions of the Bill.

The Bill was then read a second time.

Hon. Mr. CHAPAIS moved that the Bill be referred to a Committee of the whole House to-morrow.

Hon. Mr. SANBORN said the Bill would place inventors in the separate Provinces in a worse position than they were now, but he hoped the hon. mover would consent to amend the Bill in committee, as he thought that a wrong principle altogether. The privileges should be extended to the whole Dominion. He said that it was in a great measure due to the wise and judicious legislation of the United States on this subject, and everything that fostered their own manufacture and enterprise, that caused that country to make such rapid strides in wealth and colonization during the first half century of their career. If not, to what else could their great prosperity be attributed? The patent laws are an absolute necessity to foster the infant manufactories of a young and rising country like Canada, when free trade might suit old communities. He was relieved when he found the Hon. Minister of Marine and Fisheries was about to support this Bill of his hon. colleague, though he spoke against its clauses almost throughout. But the hon. member seems now to have arrived at the conclusion to save the Bill from defeat by the "rule of contraries," to his great credit and grasp of mind be it said. He also thought there were many good provisions in the Bill, and would support it as a move in the right direction.

[A message was brought from the House of Commons to the Clerk, returning "An Act to amend the Acts relating to the Niagara District Bank," and that they had passed the same without amendment.

Also a message returning the Bill intituled "An Act respecting Aliens and Naturalization," and that they had passed the same with several amendments, to which they desire the concurrence of this hon. House, which said amendments being read were concurred and a message ordered to be sent to the Commons that the Senate doth agree to said amendments without any amendment.

Also a message from the Commons with a Bill intituled, "An Act respecting Larceny and other similar offences," to which they desire the concurrence of this House. Read a first and ordered to be read a second time to-morrow.

The petition of the Northern Railway was then received and read, for construction of elevator and other works connected with said railroad.]

Hon. Mr. MITCHELL thought he had stated the case already, that he was in favor of free trade on patents if public opinion was educated for it, but if they must have a patent law it should be such a one as was contemplated by this Bill. He again referred to the manufactories of St. John, and said many of them had to pay toll to the casual traveller or inventor, who took out a patent for an improvement on some machinery used in their establishments. The nail trade had been monopolized by the United States until the time of the war, but during that time the manufactories of St. John had nearly driven them out of the trade with the West Indies. At the close of the war labor became cheaper, and they adopted a new mode of turning the heads of the nails, for which they took out a patent, by which they have been able to secure that trade to themselves. What we want is to give our people an opportunity of using foreign articles to enable us to compete in the markets of the world with the more advanced manufactories of the United States. His hon. friend (Mr. Sanborn) had spoken of the great advances the United States had made in wealth and civilization during the first half century of their career, and had asked to what it could be attributed. He (Mr. Mitchell) would tell him it was the markets derived from their extensive country which had been the cause of their prosperity, their manufactories having had a monopoly to supply the whole Southern people. That was what had built them up, and the same facilities for trade would build us up, while free patent laws would give to our people the advantage of the ingenuity of the people on the other side of the border, and we would have greater resources than we now have to compete with them in the foreign markets of the world.

Hon. Mr. REESOR said that in the 11th clause there is a provision that any one may act as agent in obtaining patents for inventions, but in that application the applicant is not obliged to declare, under oath, that the inventor has been a resident of Canada for one year, as is specified by the Bill. That provision should be made more clear.

Hon. Mr. MITCHELL said that could be done when the Bill was in Committee.

Hon. Mr. McCULLY related a circumstance of a Captain of a coasting vessel who had a "gaff" on his vessel for a number of years, the whole fitting up of which did not cost over $3. This Captain went to Portland with his vessel, when a man came on board and said, "You have my patent gaff, and you must pay ten dollars for it." The Captain at first refused, but after consulting with the gentleman to whom the vessel was consigned, he came to the conclusion that he had better pay it, and he did so. He then referred to the number of patents granted in the United States, there being scarcely a stove manufactured there but was patented; and he thought if that principle was adopted in Nova Scotia, it would destroy their manufactories altogether. Looking at this question on broad principles, he quite agreed with the Minister of Marine, that they should have free trade, but in allusion to the registry of ships in the United States, he said he did not like reciprocity when it was all on one side.

The motion was then carried.

A Bill entitled "An Act to confirm a certain by-law, passed by the Directors of the Lake Memphremagog Navigation Company, and for other purposes," and

A Bill entitled "An Act respecting larceny and other similar offences," were received from the House of Commons and read a first time.

The petition of the Northern Railway Co. of Canada, "for the passing of an Act to enable the said Company to raise capital for the construction of elevators, the extension of railway stock, and other equipments, and the construction of such new and additional works as are or may be necessary for the operation and extension of the traffic, and for other purposes," was received and read.

The House then adjourned.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.

Tuesday, May 12, 1868.

First Sitting.

The SPEAKER took the chair at eleven o'clock.

Several reports from Committees were received.

The Select Committee to which was referred the Whiteaves Divorce Bill reported the same without amendment.

KAMOURASKA ELECTION.

Hon. Col. GRAY, from the Committee on this election presented the first report setting forth that riotous proceedings had taken place to prevent the holding of the election; naming some fifteen or twenty parties who had taken part in the riot; representing that the Returning Officer was unfit for his duty, and should not again be entrusted with the writ; that the law officers of the Crown should proceed against the parties named; and that a new writ should issue for Kamouraska, between the first day of December and the first day of January.

ADJOURNMENT OF ELECTION COMMITTEES.

The several Election Committees reported asking leave to adjourn to the first day of June. The reports were adopted.

NAVIGATION OF INLAND WATERS.

On the motion of Hon. Sir JOHN A. MACDONALD, the Bill respecting the Navigation of Inland Waters was read a third time and passed.

CIVIL SERVICE.

The report of the Committee of the Whole on resolutions fixing the salaries of the Civil Service employees was received, and the Bill (on motion of Hon. Mr. ROSE), read a first time.

IMPORTATION OF TOBACCO.

The report of the Committee on Resolutions respecting the importation of tobacco was also received.

SUPPLY.

On the motion for concurrence in report of Committee of Supply,

Hon. Mr. HOLTON said that as the House had before it the estimates for two years, it would expedite business, and avoid unnecessary discussion, if the estimates for the current year were agreed to pro forma, and the discussion reserved for the estimates of the year ending 30th June, 1869.

[House adjourned for five minutes to permit General Committee on elections to meet].

Several items for the present year were concurred in.

On the item for the salary of the Lieutenant-Governors,

Hon. Mr. DUNKIN expressed his regret to see such a disposition to vote anything for the sake of getting home; but the item before them opened a serious question, one which he could not allow to pass without expressing his earnest convictions on it. Under the former system when the Lieutenant-Governors were sent from England, they had large salaries and other adjuncts to their position, which enabled them to administer successfully the system of responsible Government. But under this Dominion they were attempting to carry out responsible Government in the Provinces with Lieutenant-Governors, appointed by the Dominion, who were associated with local politics, and who would have great difficulty in maintaining a character for impartiality, because of their past associations. If a prominent politician were appointed to the office, he would have to keep himself very much in the shade; his Premier would have a far better opportunity of advancing himself in the country; it was in fact a position which no leading politician would be willing to take. He then alluded to the social status they were expected to maintain, and argued that the salaries of eight thousand and seven thousand dollars were totally inadequate to the position. The argument which had been made with respect to the salary of the Governor-General was that it should be reduced because it was so much larger than that of the President of the United States; but this argument if allowed to have weight in the House would bring it down to twenty-five thousand dollars, and the same line of argument would lead to the adoption of another political system. The salary of the Governor-General and the salary of Lieut.-Governors should be determined by other considerations; we should consider what is needed to maintain the social dignity of the position, and mark the country's sense of its importance; and he held that $8,000 and $7,000 respectively did neither.

Hon. J. ROSE thought that the Lieut.-Governors' salaries were established at a figure which would be acceptable to the country. Besides the pecuniary emolument there were contingent advantages which went to make the position valuable, as well as, from its influence and importance, desirable in the eyes of gentlemen of ambition and talent. If, however, it should be found that the salaries were practically inadequate the good sense of the House might be trusted to remedy the error.

Hon. Mr. CHAUVEAU argued that the salaries should be higher. The Minister of Finance had spoken of the possibility of raising them hereafter, but it would be found much more difficult to raise than to cut down, and the proper rate should justly be established at the outset. The fixing of these salaries at a low figure practically limited the choice of incumbents to three or four men of wealth, to the exclusion of intelligence. It was discreditable to find the Head of the Executive Administration paid less than a subordinate departmental official, as was actually the case here. He went on to ridicule the attempt to preserve monarchical institutions at the lowest figure for which it was possible to bargain for them, and maintained that the preservation of the local importance and dignity of the Provinces was necessary to the welfare of Confederation, and could most naturally be effected by due recognition of the station of the heads of the several Governments.

Hon. Mr. HOLTON was happy to be able to support the Government, whose proposal, he considered, avoided equally either parsimony or extravagance.

Mr. JONES (Halifax) supported the suggestion for an increase of salaries, and hoped that the House would give such an indication of opinion to the Government as might induce them at an early date to reconsider the rates they had laid down.

Hon. T. W. ANGLIN was quite satisfied with the amounts proposed, and did not consider it necessary for Lieut.-Governors to keep open doors, as had been represented in their behalf, for all comers. If the Government had in every respect acted with equal judgment, he would not have given one vote against them through the whole Session.

The item was then concurred in on a division, as also were those following (which have been previously reported on their consideration in Committee) without discussion as far as No. 23.

On the item of $1,500 for Observatories at Halifax and St. John,

Mr. F. JONES took the opportunity of asserting that he concurred in the various items of estimates merely from necessity. He regarded many of them as most extravagant, but in the absence of any Opposition organization, found it impossible to dispute them successfully.

This item, and those immediately following, were then passed.

On that of $14,750 for Immigration and quarantine considerable discussion, raised by Mr. F. JONES, who maintained that European immigration failed of permanent attraction to our shores, ensued, after which the item was concurred in.

The remaining items as far as No. 33 having been concurred in,

SALARY OF GOVERNOR-GENERAL.

On motion of Mr. DUFRESNE the amendments to the Bill to fix the salary of the Governor-General were read a second time, and the Bill ordered for third reading at the second sitting of same day.

ESTIMATES.

Concurrence was then taken in the succeeding items as far as 109, when it being two o'clock, the House adjourned.

Second Sitting.

The SPEAKER took the chair at four o'clock.

MR. JUSTICE DRUMMOND.

On the question of the reception of T. K. Ramsay's petition against Judge Drummond, Sir J. A. MACDONALD said that he had looked into the authorities, and was of opinion that the petition was inadmissable.

Mr. CHAMBERLIN urged the reception of the petition, stating that he desired an expression of the opinion of the House as to the proper mode of proceeding to facilitate the obtaining of redress for the petitioner.

Hon. Mr. HOLTON having objected,

Sir G. E. CARTIER, referring to the recent discussion introduced by the member for Hochelaga, upon the merits of the Quebec Bench, denied that the Government acted in any concert with the members for Missisquoi and Ottawa with regard to the petitions presented by these gentlemen.

Mr. WRIGHT thought that the member for Missisquoi should press the reception of the petition, and elicit a fair expression of the opinion of the House on this point. It was the inherent right of every subject to petition the Commons, as the last Court of Appeal upon any grievance for which he was unable to obtain redress elsewhere.

Sir J. A. MACDONALD pointed out that the extraneous allegations contained in the petition must be considered fatal objections to its reception. He suggested its withdrawal and subsequent presentation in proper form.

Hon. Mr. JOHNSON strongly opposed the motion, which he characterized as a cowardly attack, which the promoters were unable openly and definitely to support.

Hon. Mr. DORION, while denying that the debate upon the Quebec judiciary, and the strong condemnation then elicited had been introduced or precipitated by himself, who had not spoken until after many Lower Canada members opposite, maintained the substantial truth of the charges then brought forward, but defended Judge Drummond from the accusations of the petitioner, whom he stated to have been actuated only by motives of private spleen and animosity.

Hon. C. DUNKIN remarked upon the inconsistency exhibited in the general concurrence of the House in the charges brought against the entire Bench, as compared with the promptness to dispute and impede any particular effort made for the removal of some special scandal. The proper procedure in such cases was extremely doubtful, from the scarcity of precedent, and ought, he held, to be established definitely by enactment. Few people were acquainted with the English practice as applicable to the rare cases which had ever occurred; he himself had only obtained within the past few days any reliable information on the point, on which he had been instructed by perhaps the only gentleman in the country, who had mastered the question—their own librarian.

The petition was then withdrawn.

PUBLIC WORKS.

Hon. W. MACDOUGALL laid a blue book on the table, containing particulars of all public works coming under supervision of his department up to 1st July, 1867.

TOBACCO DUTIES.

On motion of Hon. Mr. HOWLAND, leave was given to introduce a Bill providing for the better securing of the collection of the duty on Tobacco, the second reading of which was ordered for to-morrow, (this day).

STEAMBOAT INSPECTION.

The House then went into Committee upon the Bill respecting the Inspection of Steamboats and for the greater safety of passengers by them, (Mr. M. C. CAMERON), which was reported with some verbal amendments, and read a third time and passed.

SUPPLY.

Hon. Mr. ROSE proceeding to move concurrence in certain items reported from Committee of Supply, a long discussion ensued upon the item of $50,000 for relief to sufferers by the great Quebec fire, which Mr. ROSE, in reply to Mr. HOLTON, stated to have been, in the great emergency of the case, authorized by an order in council.

After Mr. F. JONES had expressed his opinion that Acts of Parliament binding the conduct of the Government to fixed principles were of less value than the paper on which they were written, the item was passed, as also several others following.

On that of $2,000 for Confederation medal, Mr. YOUNG asked for an explanation. What was the medal for, and by whom was it to be worn?

Hon. J. ROSE replied that the Queen had been good enough to express a desire to have Confederation commemorated by a medal being struck in its honor. She had been also graciously pleased to sit herself for the figure on the obverse; and, though he could not exactly say by whom the medal was to be worn, he presumed that it would be generally distributed, and hoped some day to see it on the breast even of the member for Halifax.

The remaining items of the estimates were then concurred in with the exception of that of $93,912 for expenses connected with Confederation, and $488,261 for salaries and contingencies of Customs.

GOVERNOR-GENERAL'S SALARY.

On motion of Mr. DUFRESNE the Bill reducing the salary of the Governor-General to $32,000 per annum was then read a third time and passed amid Opposition cheers.

CIVIL SERVICE.

The Civil Service Bill was, on motion of Sir J. A. MACDONALD, read a second time and committed for to-morrow (this day).

INLAND REVENUE.

Hon. Mr. HOWLAND having moved the second reading of amendments made by Senate to Bill intituled, "An Act constituting the Department of Inland Revenue," some discussion ensued lasting to six o'clock, when the Speaker left the chair.

After Recess.

On motion of the Hon. C. DUNKIN the debate, with the consent of the MINISTER FOR INLAND REVENUE, was adjourned.

SUPPLY.

On the suggestion of the Hon. J. ROSE, and with the consent of Mr. McKENZIE, the reserved items of 1869 estimates were passed, it being understood that a debate should take place on the motion for concurrence.

Hon. J. ROSE then moved the reception of the Committee report, as far as regards the items of $33,611 for Department of Public Works, and $33,885 for arrears of grants to charitable institutions, reserved for further consideration from the estimates for 1868, whereon a discussion ensued respecting the question of general or Provincial liability for the latter item, in which Hon. Messrs. J. S. MACDONALD, CHAUVEAU, DORION, and DUNKIN took part, the former asserting that the Government and people of Ontario were determined to repudiate all such obligation as had been herein sought to be imposed upon them, having adopted the principle of declining any further treasury contributions to the funds of charitable societies, and stating his determination to oppose any proposition to impose upon his own Government these liabilities, which he was quite willing to vote for if to be defrayed by the Dominion.

Hon. J. ROSE, in deference to the views of the Premier of Ontario, would withdraw the item.

Hon. Mr. GALT said that these obligations, if forming part of that of the old Province of Canada, must be primarily assumed by the Dominion, and subsequently proportionately recovered from Quebec and Ontario.

Hon. J. S. MACDONALD denied that the items formed any portion of Canadian liability.

Sir J. A. MACDONALD said that he held the moral obligation indubitable, but, as the Premier of the Province had repudiated the legal responsibility, the Minister for Finance had no alternative but to withdraw the item.

After some further discussion the committee rose and reported, the motion for concurrence being fixed for to-morrow, (this day.)

MILITIA BILL.

Sir G. E. CARTIER having moved the House into Committee on the Militia Bill,

Hon. Mr. DORION opposed the principle of the measure so far as it went to discourage the volunteer spirit of the country. He objected to the expenditure of large amounts of money in payment of staff and clerical services without benefit to the real working element of the force. The subject had been already exhaustively discussed, and he would not, therefore, go into its merits at length, but would without further introduction move in amendment the following instruction to the Committee That it be resolved that, in the opinion of the Committee the Volunteer system is of proved efficiency, is specially adapted to the spirit and circumstances of the people, and is capable of supplying a more efficient and available force than that proposed to be substituted by this Bill, and that it is therefore advisable to amend the same, so as to make provision for the more efficient maintenance and encouragement of the Volunteer system, for the drilling of officers of the ordinary Militia; and that no conscription shall be put in effect, except in case of necessity.

Mr. BELLEROSE (in French) opposed the amendment.

Mr. JONES (Halifax) urged the superiority of the volunteer to the conscription principle.

Mr. CHAMBERLIN from his personal acquaintance with Volunteers, found that the system was becoming effete, and argued that that system imposed unequal burthen upon the willing portion of the community for the advantages of those who were backward. The expenses which had been entailed upon Lieut.-Colonels were intolerable. A measure such as the present, which presented the alternative of choice between voluntary and compulsory enrolment was in reality one of assistance and encouragement to volunteering, as favoring the option of corps in which to serve, and, although necessarily imperfect, was a fair equitable method of distributing the onus of the protection of the country.

Hon. T. W. ANGLIN had frequently heard it urged that the Bill would destroy the volunteer system, but had never heard a valid argument offered in support of that theory. He would oppose the amendment.

Hon. Mr. BLANCHET (in French) maintained that the volunteer system had exhausted itself, and required such a stimulus as provided in the measure to renew its vitality. He would therefore vote against the amendment.

Mr. POPE could not see any force in the provisions of the amendment, and would therefore support the Bill.

Hon. Mr. JOHNSON having briefly criticised some provisions of the measure,

Mr. YOUNG contended for the argument that the Bill would prove fatal to volunteering, which it would discourage, beyond the settled quota, in thickly peopled districts, and would therefore tend to damp the patriotism and loyalty of the most important centres of intelligence and industry. The Bill had, he believed, been framed expressly to destroy the volunteer system, and would, undoubtedly, succeed in accomplishing its mission.

Mr. SPROAT, since opposing the second reading of the Bill, had had a conversation with the hon. Minister for Militia which had the effect of removing many of his objections. He would therefore oppose the amendment.

Mr. OLIVER strongly opposed the principle of conscription, a word most distasteful to a free people. There were amply sufficient numbers prepared to voluntarily defend their country without any recourse to so obnoxious a system. His section of the country, while cheerfully submitting to the taxation necessary for support of volunteers, would, he ventured to assert, resent, all but unanimously, the effort to introduce a new and obnoxious establishment.

Hon. Mr. LANGEVIN (in French) supported the Bill.

Mr. BROWN thought that the measure was susceptible of important amendments, which if he could see carried into effect, he would follow with his support.

Sir G. E. CARTIER replied, defending his measure from the accusation of tending to the destruction of volunteering, and intimated that he proposed introducing an amendment by which volunteers would be given credit for their previous term of service in the three years, which were to be required from them. He then adverted to the state of volunteering in Nova Scotia, where he was confident that his measure would be most popular, as relieving that class of the community which had, without any adequate support or recognition, borne hitherto the whole burthen of the defence of the Province. His Bill was a measure of economy, of efficiency, and of relief (hear, hear), and would, he was confident, be found suitable and acceptable to the majority of the people of the country.

Hon. J. S. MACDONALD presumed that the Minister of Militia had received sufficient evidence of the imperfections of the present volunteer system, and believed that the Bill, although certainly involving an increased expenditure, would have the effect of distributing the burthen of defence more equitably than it had been hitherto borne. He regretted, however, the proposal to increase the cost of the staff which, on the contrary, he considered might be reduced with profit.

Hon. Mr. HOLTON, congratulating Ministers on the doubtful support of the member for Cornwall, repudiated the insinuation that the volunteers of Lower Canada had been backward in defence of their country, and, with all the energy that he was capable of commanding, would protest against such a reflection upon the patriotism of the community among which his life had been spent.

Mr. McKENZIE contended that the proposed eight day term of drill would be found utterly inadequate to provide the efficiency which was aimed at. He thought that it would be more adviseable to attempt rather to create the skeleton machinery of an army, which might be called into life on emergency, but which it was futile to imagine could be immediately perfected. The military education of officers was a point of far higher importance than the superficial practice to be acquired in the temporary exercise proposed, which would be forgotten as soon as learned. His solemn conviction was that the Bill would destroy the existing force, and replace it only upon paper, while for such a result the appropriation of £1,000,000 would be an enormous outlay.

Hon. Sir G. E. CARTIER, referring in explanation to the argument that his Bill discouraged surplus volunteering, pointed out that this might be readily utilized at any time by the liberality of Parliament consenting to a proportionate expenditure for the pay of such extra volunteers, adding, in reply to Mr. BOWELL, that no general excessive volunteering of the whole Province would exempt any particular localities which had not contributed.

Mr. D. A. MACDONALD contended that the money might be most profitably expended in educating the officers before calling out the men.

Mr. BOWELL desired to explain the vote he proposed to give, and, while utterly denying the assertion of the Minister, that the measure would not operate to the prejudice of volunteering, would oppose the amendment with a view to taking the Bill into Committee, and there, proposing the amendments of which he had himself given notice, by which, if carried, the result which he regarded as most valuable to the country would be attained.

Mr. DORION'S amendment was then put and lost on the following division: Yeas, 41; Nays, 100; after which the original motion (that the Speaker do leave the chair) was carried, and the House went into Committee,

The Hon. S. CAMPBELL in the chair.

Mr. BOWELL proposed in amendment to strike out the word "volunteer" wherever it occurred, and substitute "active" therefore.

Sir G. E. CARTIER, supported by Mr. BROWN, declined to consent to a proposal which would create so much confusion as to render the Bill nugatory.

The amendment was then lost.

Sir G. E. CARTIER proposed an amendment to the 7th clause, providing for exemption from the ballot for Volunteers who had served five years, upon which considerable general discussion arose, the Hon. Mr. HOLTON supporting the Government, on the ground that the Minister, who had the advantage of professional co-operation, must be better able to judge of such questions than any private member. He had not, indeed, read the amendment, and might frankly state he had no intention of doing so, but would endorse the Government notwithstanding.

The amended clause was finally adopted, as also the 8th, 9th, 10th, and 11th, when the Committee rose and reported, and the House adjourned at half-past one this morning.

The betrothal of the Crown Prince of Denmark with the Princess Louise of England is denied.

POLICE COURT.—The adjourned case of Annie Langlois, for keeping a house of ill-fame, was called up. Defendant not having brought the witnesses, to enable her to produce whom her case was adjourned from Monday. She was sentenced to one week in jail, and to pay a fine of fifty dollars or undergo three months additional imprisonment.—Eliza Church, an old lady, was charged with assaulting Mary Jane Cooper in her own house. The parties are next door neighbors, between whom there is no congeniality of disposition; fined one dollar and one dollar costs.—David Labelle, a youth of 16 years of age, was charged with assaulting Alexander Labelle. Defendant admitted the charge, and was fined one dollar and one dollar costs.—Mary Welch was charged with keeping a disorderly house. Constable Pinard said he had received information of a number of disorderly persons being in defendant's house, making a great noise and disturbance, and that on going there, he found about dozen persons making a noise, and breaking windows and fighting, but made their escape out of the back door on his appearance. He found the prisoner drunk and arrested her, but was not able then to catch any of the others, but with the aid of other policemen captured several of them later in the evening. Mary Harrison, drunk and disorderly; prisoner said she was in at Mrs. Welch's, but went in for no bad purpose. Mary has been in the habit of "roughing it in the bush," but had latterly been located among the habitations of men in this city; fined $2 and costs or three weeks in jail.—Bridget Carroll, another of the parties well known to the police as a latitudinarian, was fined $5 or three months in jail.—Catherine Whelan was charged with being drunk, but the evidence was not strong, and she was discharged to give her a chance to mend her ways; an undertaking in which she professes to be seriously engaged, and for her success, in which His Worship expressed a faint hope.—Henry McCormick was arrested as one of those in the house of Mrs. Welch. Mary Harrison was called to prove that prisoner was in the house at the time of the disturbance. Sergeant Brown proved to prisoner's bad character, and instanced his riotous conduct on Sunday night on Sussex-st., as proof thereof. Witness identified him as one of those who attacked Ald. Mosgrove, on the night of the assassination of the late Mr. McGee. His Worship shewed prisoner that he was on the high road to the penitentiary, and sentenced him to pay $5 and costs, or go to jail for three weeks at hard labor. He then instructed the police to look after him, when he comes out of prison.—Luke Foy, charged with striking a boy on the face with a piece of a horse-shoe, inflicting a wound. He was fined $5 and costs, or to be imprisoned for three weeks.—Charles Lalonde, drunk and disorderly. Defendant is a beggarman, who it appears got drunk with his charite, and threw stones at those who refused him alms; fine, one week in jail. The Police Court presented as motely a set of incorrigible looking scoundrels of various types, and of both sexes, as the warm sun of Ottawa ever awaked from a protracted hybernation.

MARRIED.

At St. Andrew's Church, on the 12th inst., by the Rev. Mr. Collins, Mr. W. J. Croke, M. P., to Miss Mary Anne Ruhn, of Halifax, N. S.

We speak from experience in this matter, having tested it thoroughly, and therefore those who are suffering from any of the complaints for which it is recommended may depend upon its being a Sovereign Remedy.

The astonishing efficacy of the Canadian Pain Destroyer, in curing diseases for which it is recommended, and its wonderful success in subduing the torturing pains of Rheumatism, and in relieving Nervous Affections, entitle it to a high rank in the list of Remedies for these complaints. Orders are coming in from Medicine Dealers in all parts of the country for further supplies, and each testifying as to the universal satisfaction it gives

Arabian Heave Remedy

AND CONDITION MEDICINE

IS POSITIVELY SUPERIOR TO ANY or all other preparations for the cure of Heaves, Coughs, Thick and Broken Wind, and all diseases which affect the Wind of Horses; also, as a Condition Medicine, surpassing everything of the kind; is easy to give, sure to cure, and safe in all cases and at all times, and does not prevent the horse from being worked while using it.

It cleanses the breathing apparatus, by removing from the air-cells the coagulable lymph, or that secretion which in heaves clogs them, causing a difficulty in breathing, and by its action on the diseased part, causing the mucous membrane to resume its natural dimensions, thus equalizing the circulation of the blood, and restoring the distended vessels to their natural size; by its use the horse's appetite is improved, all derangements of the digestive organs corrected, softening the skin, and giving to the coat a sleek and shining appearance.

THE INVESTIGATION.

When we stated a few days ago that no more information would be made public for a time, regarding the investigation now being conducted by Mr. O'Reilly, Q. C., before the Police Magistrate of this city, we also intimated that additional important evidence had been discovered, and was about being followed up. The proceedings taken yesterday in Montreal, comprising some arrests and an examination before Judge Coursol, were in pursuance of the discovery then indicated; but it was not by any means intended that these proceedings, in their incomplete state, should have been blazoned forth to the public. It was directly contrary to the instructions given by Mr. O'Reilly, that any part of the proceeding should have been communicated to the press, until the matter had so far progressed, that he could feel assured that the ends of justice would not be jeopardised by its publication.

For these reasons we are exceedingly sorry that our local contemporary the Citizen should have yesterday issued a couple of extras, professing to reveal the whole plot hatched in Montreal, and introduced therein the names of gentlemen of high position in Ontario who, whatever may be the part they have taken in serving the cause of justice, can neither be gratified nor served by such unwarranted publicity. In this connection the charge which we jestingly alluded to, as having been preferred against the Citizen the other day of serving the Fenian cause, may now be made in earnest, though we are sure the mischief has been unwittingly done on the part of our contemporary. Still the highly inflated character of the despatch, and the great prominence which the Citizen's correspondent assigns to himself, gave it so much of a "fishy" appearance, as ought to have led our neighbour to consult the authorities here before making it public.

The evidence mentioned as having been taken before Judge Coursol "with closed doors," but revealed by the eavesdropper who did the Citizen's despatch, was given last week in full before Mr. O'Gara in this city; and the "witness" whom the Citizen's correspondent says "O'Neill has secured," was merely sent down to Montreal in company with Detective O'Neill to identify certain parties. Our neighbour's telegrams were "sensational" and in the worst taste.

The Clan Fraser meets at ten o'clock this morning, at the Court House, in this city, for the purpose of completing the organization for the whole Dominion. The Hon. Mr. Fraser De Berry has been here for several days, preparing for the first gathering of the clan, and we understand that some representatives from the Maritime Provinces are to take part in the proceedings.

The report of the Commissioner of Public Works for the year ending 30th June, 1867, which was laid before Parliament by the Hon. Commissioner on Tuesday, is a blue book of more than ordinary importance. It contains a full history of the public works of the two Provinces of Ontario and Quebec, their progress and present condition, with the amount expended on each up to the close of the old Canadian Union, and a large mass of statistical information. From the present state of our columns we can only acknowledge the receipt of the report, and shall take an early opportunity of referring at length to its contents.

On Tuesday evening, an amendment to "the Act respecting Patents of Invention," was carried in the Senate (in committee) by a vote of 21 to 17, on the motion of the Hon. Mr. Sanborn, providing that patents granted to any British subject in any one of the Provinces, under existing laws, should be extended to the whole Dominion, on the payment of a fee, at the rate of $4 per annum for the unexpired term of the patent, but that the rights of parties already manufacturing or using the article, in a Province where it had not previously been patented, should not thereby be affected.

Yesterday afternoon, the Hon. Mr. Chapais announced that, in consequence of the amendment carried the previous evening, it was not the intention of the Government to proceed with the measure; the order of the day for the third reading was therefore discharged, and the Bill dropped.

There is now consequently no measure before Parliament relating to the patent laws, except the Bill introduced into the Commons by Mr. Masson, which has been held over awaiting the fate of the Bill in the Senate. That being now determined it is more than probable that Mr. Masson's Bill will receive favorable consideration, as it is framed in accordance with the prayer of a large number of petitions, which have been presented to Parliament on the subject. The main feature of Mr. Masson's Bill is the placing of the United States of America on the same footing as other foreign countries—a step which can hardly be deemed unfair, seeing that they make a discrimination of $200 against British, more than they do against any other "foreigners," the sum to be paid by a British subject in the United States for a patent, being five hundred dollars, while any other foreigner can obtain one on the payment of $300.

The discussion on Mr. Dorion's amendment to going into Committee on the Militia Bill, excited a good deal of interest; though after the signal triumph of the Minister of Militia on the fortification resolutions, no one doubted that the amendment would be defeated by a large majority. The following is the division, which was taken on Tuesday morning, at half-past twelve:

Yeas—Messieurs Bechard, Bodwell, Bourassa, Bowman, Brown, Cameron (Huron), Cheval, Connell, Coupal, Dorion, Ferris, Forbes, Fortier, Geoffrion, Godin, Holton, Jones (Halifax), Kempt, Kierzkowski, MacFarlane, Mackenzie, McCallum, McMonies, Metcalf, Mills, Morrison (Victoria O), Oliver, Paquet, Parker, Power, Pozer, Redford, Rymal, Scatcherd, Snider, Stirton, Thompson (Haldimand), Thompson (Ontario), Tremblay, Wells, Whitehead and Young.—41.

Nays—Messieurs Abbott, Anglin, Archambeault, Ault, Beaty, Beaubien, Bellerose, Benoit, Bertrand, Blanchet, Bolton, Powell, Bown, Brousseau, Burton, Cameron (Peel), Campbell, Carling, Caron, Cartier, Cartwright, Casault, Cayley, Chamberlin, Chauveau, Cimon, Colby, Costigan, Crawford (Brockville), Crawford (Leeds), DeNiverville, Desaulniers, Dobbie, Dufresne, Ferguson, Fortin, Galt, Gaucher, Gendron, Gibbs, Grant, Gray, Grover, Heath, Holmes, Howland, Hurdon, Irvine, Jackson, Johnson, Keeler, Kirkpatrick, Langevin, Langlois, Lapum, Lawson, Little, Macdonald (Cornwall) Macdonald (Glengarry), Macdonald, Sir J. A. (Kingston), McDonald (Middlesex), Magill, Masson (Soulanges), Masson (Terrebonne), McCarthy, McConkey, Macdougall, McGreevey, McKeagney, McMillan, Merritt, Morris, Morrison (Niagara), Munroe, O'Connor, Perry, Pope, Pouliot, Rankin, Read, Renaud, Robitaille, Rose, Ross (Dundas), Ross (Prince Edward), Ryan (Kings, N. B.), Ryan (Montreal West) Savary, Shanly, Simard, Simpson, Sproat, Stephenson, Tilley, Walsh, Webb, White, Willson, Wood, and Workman.—100.

We have lately received a great many favors from correspondents, for which we can only return our thanks, as the pressure on our columns prevents our making them public in time to be of any general interest.

Mr. Fleming's report on the Intercolonial Railway route, with Mr. Wilkinson's observations upon Major Robinson's report, and the Major's reply thereto, reprinted by order of Parliament, was distributed yesterday.

We have received from Sheriff Treadwell, President of the Mechanics' Institute of L'Orignal, the following intimation:

"Her Majesty's Birthday will be celebrated at L'Orignal, on Saturday the 23rd inst. The Managers of the Mechanics' Institute are making preparations to celebrate the day in a modest way. The amateur performers are preparing a rich treat for the occasion. Among the young men, a Lacrosse Club is spoken of, while the older ones will no doubt be engaged in base ball. It is expected that part of the brave volunteers of the 18th Battalion will assist on the occasion.

In our report yesterday of the debate on the Militia Bill, it was stated that Mr. Bowell moved that the word "volunteer" be struck out, and the word "active" substituted in lieu thereof. This was a mistake, Mr. Bowell's amendment having been to strike out the word "regular," and not "volunteer."

The McGee Testimonial Fund Committee meeting was adjourned from last evening until Monday next at eleven o'clock, a.m., at the City Hall.

Police Court.—Annie Whelan, a filthy looking young woman, professing to hail from Kingston, was arrested about three o'clock yesterday morning as a vagrant. The circumstances would justify a harsher, but more indelicate term. His Worship gave her the alternative of leaving the city immediately or going to jail. She chose the former.

The St. Patrick's Orphans' Bazaar.—We have great pleasure in announcing the fact that the bazaar has been so far very successful; quite a large number showed their approval of visitors being left free to purchase what they please, or what they can afford, by making liberal purchases at liberal prices. We are requested to say that the raffle for some of the articles will commence this evening. Somebody will get the beautiful portrait of the late Mr. McGee. Who shall it be? Go and try.

The Band on Major's Hill.—"Music hath charms," &c. We have been in the habit of taking the playing of the Band of the Rifle Brigade on Major's Hill every week since the commencement of fine weather as a matter of course, and have said nothing about it. Since, however, so many hundreds of people, mostly of the higher classes, regularly attend on these occasions, it is but just this gratuitous contribution to the public enjoyment on the part of the band, by the permission of the officers, should be publicly acknowledged, and we have great pleasure in thus expressing the general sentiment.

Messrs. Young & Radford having secured the services of first-class working jewellers in etruscan, filagree, plain, fancy and solid gold work, and having made large additions to their work shop are now better prepared to execute any orders with which they may be entrusted than heretofore. Masonic jewels gold and silver medals, and every kind of gold and silver work done on the shortest possible notice. Remember the place, 30 Sparks-st., and encourage home manufacture.

THE INTERCOLONIAL RAILWAY.

To the Editor of THE TIMES.

Sir,—I am singularly unfortunate. A short controversy with you excited the ire of somebody who styled himself "A True New Brunswicker," and now my reply to him has brought out "Examiner," who, however, assumes to identify himself as the former. Well, it makes not the slightest difference to me what this writer calls himself, as I have only to do with what he writes, and with that only so far as his writings are to the point under discussion. He cannot disturb my temper, nor induce me to enter upon a personal controversy, and in his evident desire to do this, he might find himself as much mistaken as he is with reference to my authorships, when he accuses me of having written letters that I have never, to my knowledge, even seen. Those of your readers who perused my last letter must have observed how studiously I avoided the use of any expression in the most remote degree offensive, to any individual or individuals, and they will acquit me of the charge so lavishly made that my letter was a "tirade of abuse." Indeed, I could wish for no better commentary as an endorsement of the truths I stated in my former letter than this reply of "Examiner." I am just as well satisfied as if he had admitted directly the truth of any argument I advanced. I have little to do, therefore, so far as regards "Examiner," further than to recapitulate the points of my last. It will be remembered that I did not admit that an annexation clique existed in St. John. I said I had heard of it, &c. And with regard to Charlotte, I most positively deny the existence of such a desire. I cannot prove a negative, but as the charge is a grave one it appears to me that "Examiner" is bound to justify it; if he does not, it will be simply because he can not, and then what of the writer who cries treason! disloyalty! against his fellows from behind an impenetrable defence? I uttered no tirade against the North; if I stated falsely should the falsities not have been exposed? It is a very convenient, but not logical, way to meet an argument, this "becoming disgusted." With regard to those resolutions of the Local Assembly of New-Brunswick, I have in my possession a letter, a copy of which I enclose for you, Mr. Editor, and which "Examiner" may see if he chooses, signed by a member of this Parliament, who was present in the Local during the debate on those resolutions and associate action, in which he asserts that my statements on the subject were strictly correct. I know they were so for my information was not derived second hand. "Examiner's" reticence about the press of New Brunswick, those petitions and that caucus is admirable, it is only a pity he had not shown the same judgment all through. I have only to say that, however Mr. Gray may have left the caucus, he seems quite willing to have it understood that he has always been opposed to a Northern line, except as a last resort. It is true, the Imperial Government has reserved a right of approval of the route of an Intercolonial, built under Imperial guarantee, but I fail to see that therefore, whatever their views once were, they would now, when not only the character of the proposed arrangement is different, but when experience has so entirely changed the policy of Government with regard to routes of railroads, not approve of any route save the one originally stated in the terms of their reservation to be the Major Robinson line. That there is no such intention on the part of the Imperial authorities, I am bound to believe, not only from the fact that the Minister of Fisheries, who is supposed to be rather more favorable to a Northern line than any other, has himself proposed a divergence from Robinson's line at two points, but quite as much from the printed records. I find in the Journals of New Brunswick, 1863, that in 1861 a negociation was decided upon, and entered into, by the Governments of Canada, Nova Scotia, and New Brunswick, and the Imperial Government; Mr. Tilley being the delegate chosen to represent New Brunswick, with a view of obtaining Imperial assistance to build an Intercolonial railway. In a despatch from the Duke of Newcastle to the Governor of New Brunswick, under date the 12th April, 1862, the Duke thus recapitulates the proposal of the delegates:

"The length of railway necessary to complete the communication between Halifax and Quebec is estimated at 350 miles, and the cost, after deducting the right of way, which the Provinces will provide, is estimated at three millions sterling. Such being the data supplied by the deputation, the project is that the Imperial Government should join the three Provinces in a guarantee of four per cent upon three million pounds, in which case the Provinces are ready to pass Bills of Supply for sixty thousand pounds a year (twenty thousand pounds in each Province), if the Imperial Government will do the same. The selection of route is left solely to the British Government." His Grace then proceeds to express regret that he cannot accede to the proposition as submitted, but proposes to give the Provinces an Imperial Guarantee of the interest, to enable them to raise the money by a public loan. On the 20th of August, 1862, the Government of New Brunswick having had under consideration the above despatch, in a minute of Council, advised the Governor to appoint three members to confer with delegates from the Provinces of Nova Scotia and Canada, and to make arrangements for the building of such road. The delegates appointed were Messrs. Tilley, Mitchell and Steeves. Subsequently Mr. Tilley proceeded to England as a delegate from New Brunswick to conclude the arrangement determined upon.

Now it will be observed that upon one point there was no difference of opinion, either on the part of the Imperial or Provincial authorities—namely, the distance of road to be built—that was assumed to be 350 miles. There was more difference of view as to how the money was to be raised and the maximum sum; but the Imperial Government would not guarantee a larger sum than the three millions estimated as requisite to build the 350 miles.

Now, Sir, these facts being indisputable, How was it anticipated the road should run? By the North? If so, it presupposes either great ignorance on the part of the Imperial authorities, or great duplicity on that of the Government and delegates of the Provinces. I am not prepared to think that in either case such charges would lie. No sir, the conclusions are as irresistible as that the sun shines. There was and is a route by which the Intercolonial can be built in 350 miles, and for £3,000,000 of money, the very amount guaranteed by the Imperial Government, under the Union Act, and that is by utilizing those roads which, as stated in the memorandum of the delegates, under date Dec. 2, 1861, "the colonies have, themselves, unaided, already made." We need not go back of this for the opinion of the Imperial Government, nor need we seek stronger proof that that Government had abandoned any preference for the Northern line, previously entertained, than their own approval of a line of only 350 miles in length, which could not be found, except by some frontier, or frontier central route. "Examiner," truly, when he talks about Imperial disapproval of any line other than the north, is a "child playing with the stars." As he very weakly attempts to quote Mr Punshon, might I add to give the quotation as delivered. "Examiner," when he attempts to combat the intelligent wishes of an intelligent public, is as rash as the "tyrant who attempts to control an ocean, or the child to grasp a star."

Over date of January 28, 1852, I find in a memorandum signed by F. Hincks, E.P. Tache, John Young and E. B. Chandler, after setting forth how certain negotiations with the Imperial Government for assistance in building railroads had failed, they say, "It therefore follows that the Northern line must be considered as entirely abandoned for the present. The only line, therefore, which is now open for consideration is one which, following Major Robinson's line from Point Levi to River du Loup, or Trois Pistoles, would cross Lake Temiscouata, and thence traverse in its main course, a country watered by tributaries of the River St. John, to the city of St. John. * * * That such a line would meet the approbation of the Imperial Government, if supported by the Government of the three Provinces, the undersigned confidently anticipate." They then proceeded to state that this line is not inconsistent with the proposition of the Imperial Government, and then notice an objection raised by Nova Scotia that it was the Northern line which that Province had anticipated would be adopted, and then they say, "The undersigned cannot admit that Nova Scotia had any just grounds for assuming that the Northern line would be the one adopted." * * * * * "The Southern line, there is sufficient ground for believing, would be a remunerative one * * * * * * the other line would, for some years at least, pay little more than working expenses. Again over date the 29th January, 1862, in a memorandum signed by F. Hincks, E. P. Tache, and John Young, they say: "It is not unworthy of remark in this place, that in crossing the Portage road from Riviere du Loup to Lake Temiscouata, the undersigned met no less than 42 sleighs in one day returning from New Brunswick, having delivered loads of pork and flour, destined for the supply of the lumbering regions of New Brunswick and Maine." They then give the price of transportation to Little Falls and Grand Falls, New Brunswick, per barrel—and it is worthy of note that now, as then, the bulk of the carrying trade to supply the business in the districts already named, as well as the private marketing of the people, is done over this portage with horses from Riviere du Loup. They then say: "To direct so important a trade to the St. Lawrence must be of immense importance to all the Provinces." Subsequently an Act was passed by the respective Legislatures to give effect to the above proposition. Under date the 21st January, '62, Hon. E. B. Chandler, in a memorandum, as member of the Executive Government of New Brunswick, writes: "The Government and Legislature of New Brunswick have, moreover, been persuaded that by assuming a large responsibility for a line (the Northern) that would not, for many years, be a paying one, they would not only seriously embarrass their finances, but would deprive the bulk of the population of the advantage of a line of railway that would subject them to no loss." So strong was the feeling of the New Brunswick Government and Legislature that, when the one-third proposition was abandoned by Nova Scotia because New Brunswick would not consent to the line going north, they finally agreed to bear five-twelfths of the expense of constructing the road via the valley of the St. John.

I find, and it is a somewhat important item, that the agitation of a railway connection of the B.N.A. Provinces, although it had been previously suggested by the Earl of Durham, grew out of a proposition of the British Government to construct a military road through the centre of New Brunswick, at the expense of the Mother Country, and F. Hincks, in a letter to Sir John Pakington, in March '52, says, after referring to Earl Durham's former views: "No action, however, was taken in the matter for some years, nor until it was proposed to construct a great military road through the centre of New Brunswick, at the expense of the Mother Country." The scheme of substituting a railway was then revived on the supposition that the necessity for a military road being superseded, Imperial assistance would be given in aid of such a work to a considerable extent." On application being made to the Colonial Secretary, arrangements were made for a survey, and the result was Major Robinson's. And here it will be observed that whenever any stress on a preference for a particular line was made by the Imperial Government, it was when they were to aid, by substantial assistance, the construction. But, perhaps, we shall get some inkling as to the cause for any preference shown the Northern line. Quoting further from Mr. Hinck's letter, he says the result of the negotiations has been "the adoption of a different line from that recommended by Major Robinson, which was carried away from the more populous settlements of New Brunswick and from her principal cities, through an UNSETTLED COUNTRY to the St. Lawrence" * * "In a commercial point of view, the two lines do not admit of comparison." * * * "It is admitted that the Northern line is recommended principally on military considerations." Mr. Hincks then goes on to point out the fact that certain threatened national complications had affected Major Robinson's mind in making the report he did, as well as the fact that the report was based on the supposition that the Imperial Government were going to contribute largely of means for the construction. He also shows why the proposed river line would be positively and relatively safe and convenient in time of difficulty with our neighbors, and states that "the route now proposed would not prove a barrier to the carrying out of the liberal intentions of Her Majesty's Government," this he had reason to believe from the terms of a letter from Under-Secretary Peel. Mr. Hincks remarks that "the Halifax and Quebec line is only a section of a Great Trunk line, which in many points would be equally assailable with the proposed line in New Brunswick." The proposition under which this line was to be constructed, so far as raising the money was concerned, did not meet the views of the Imperial Government, but Earl Grey, after complimenting the Governor-General on the judgment and ability displayed by his Executive in the consideration of the subject, says: "It would be to me a subject of deep regret, &c., * * * that all hope of hereafter carrying the projected railway into effect by other means must be given up." And again, on the same subject, and referring to the same frontier road, Earl Grey says: "While Her Majesty's Government are most anxious to promote the proposed undertaking, they are not yet prepared to submit to Parliament any measure for that purpose." * * "Considering the great amount and pressure of the exigencies which continue to weigh in the Imperial Treasury," always and only it will be observed the one objection—the financial one—an objection that exists no longer, as we do not now ask direct Imperial aid for the construction of the road, but merely that the Imperial Government would give us the benefit of their guarantee in obtaining money cheaply. There is no doubt that Imperial preference originally was induced for the Northern route, by Major Robinson's report, which seemed to present no alternative, for, as Mr. Wilkinson, in his observations, justly says, "the report (Robinson's) is too peremptory in the recommendation of the Eastern or Bay Chaleurs line, and equally too peremptory in the condemnation of any more direct or central route."

Major Robinson, in his review of Mr. Wilkinson's objections, says, after noticing the portion of country in which Mr. Wilkinson's services on the survey were required, being "the difficult and hilly (if not to say mountainous) portion, lying between the upper part of the Restigouche river and the St. Lawrence, near to where the latter receives the waters of the Trois Pistoles river. The object he had to accomplish was to find a practicable line through this country for about 70 miles * * * a central and direct route through New Brunswick." "It was entirely unsuccessful. The difficulties of the ground tried by him were too great to be surmounted." In reply to this language of Major Robinson Mr. Wilkinson states, "I am not aware of any statement in the report, adverted to, of entire failure, or of difficulties too great to be surmounted." The correspondence of, and between, Major Robinson and Mr. Wilkinson should be carefully read by every one who would understand thoroughly this railroad question. It proves conclusively that the Major did not hesitate at using very questionable means favoring his favorite route, or of preventing a fair survey of other routes. Perhaps the best commentary we could have has been afforded of late, when the surveyors have found the Northern line in places almost impassable, and the difficulties in that portion of the Central referred to in the extract given above from Major Robinson's reply presenting no serious obstacles. Indeed, there is one very simple fact that seems conclusively to prove that previous to Major Robinson's survey the Imperial Government were not wedded to the Northern route, and that is the fact, that, following instructions, the Major sought for, or appeared to seek for, a Central route.

"Examiner's" challenge for me to make good a denial of certain assertions of his is to say the least amusing. So far as the statement that Southern New Brunswick has got the Shediac road goes, I must admit she has got it, in the light the man owned the "elephant." She has certainly had to pay for it in excess of the north in the ratio per head $37 and $11, but I rather think that road was built in the interest of the Northern counties for whose benefit it is undoubtedly most used, and I think that I have noticed in a letter somewhere over the signature "Examiner," that he claimed that St. John was most interested in the Intercolonial going by a Northern line; if so the Shediac road is scarcely a Southern New Brunswick work.

But, Mr. Editor, my former letter was mainly for the purpose of elucidating a simple proposition: How is New Brunswick interested on the question of route of the Intercolonial?

What "Examiner" terms an ingenious array of figures was a very disingenious statement of the population, territory, and interests of New Brunswick, in behalf of which certain significant voices had been uttered, by first the Local Parliament; second, by the Press; third, by petitions; fourth, by the representatives in Dominion Parliament. These figures which had the great merit of being ingenious only in their truth; ingenious only because they did not "lie," gave a most conclusive answer to my question. The voices, individually and collectively, proclaimed loudly New Brunswick is against a Northern line. My arguments, I claim, were strong in their very simplicity—strong because unimpeachable; strong because they required neither logic or explanation to make them understood; strong because no logic, or wit, or insinuation, or assertion, could possibly shake them, or dull the point of the conclusion to which they led, and, sir, I can well afford to smile at the rude assertion of "Examiner," that my letter was "a tissue of deliberate falsehoods," in the presence of intelligent readers, who cannot fail to have observed that my continuous reproduction of facts has been met by a simple assertion on the part of their opponent, who by this and an assumption of bravado would hope to mislead. Let "Examiner" call things by their right names; let him use plain language, but for his own sake I advise him to study to appreciate better than he does what is right, and what is honestly plain. To his last remark, I only say, I hope he can assert some claims to veracity, apart from any significance that may attach to a name. I am satisfied, and proud, hoping never to discredit it, to be able to call myself,

Decamping of Suspicious Characters.

Special to THE TIMES.

Montreal, May 13, 1868.

Detective O'Neill leaves in the morning for Ottawa with his prisoner, Duggan, and the witness. This man is a well known bitter enemy of the late Hon. Mr. McGee. It turns out that the plot was concocted in his house by a committee of 12 American and 12 Canadian Fenians, and from results which transpired Whelan drew the lot. How faithfully and fatally he performed the deed is now too well established. Whelan is the man who set fire to the Orange Hall here last winter.

Griffintown has taken another vomit to day. Several of the notorious have decamped for the land of liberty.

The S.S. St. George arrived to-day.

Raining hard now.

Entertainment in Hull.—The audience at the Hull Penny Readings, have enjoyed the pleasure of hearing upon the two last occasions, some readings and recitations by Mr. Menzies. Their delight was expressed in the most unequivocal manner. Upon the last occasion, Mr. Menzies, in addition to three long and beautiful readings, gave a scene from Othello, which was rendered with such dramatic force that the want of proper costume, &c., was not perceived, but the audience seemed to feel that the "Moor" stood before them. Mr. Washburn took the part of Iago, and exhibited a dramatic talent of no mean order. A very general desire having been expressed to hear Mr. Menzies, in an entertainment where his splendid abilities might be better seen, he has determined to favor the good people of Hull, by giving a reading on Friday evening next at eight o'clock p.m., in the Public Hall, under the auspices of the Hull Literary Society. He will be assisted by some amateurs from Hull and Ottawa. In order that the small boys who whistle and stamp may be induced to come; the price of admission will be 10 cents, and 25 cents for reserved seats.

THE CANADIAN PARLIAMENT.

THE SENATE.

Tuesday, May 12, 1868.

The SPEAKER took the chair at three o'clock p.m.

After routine,

His hon. the SPEAKER reported to the House that he had received a communication from the President of the Legislative Council of Newfoundland. The said communication expressed the feeling of the Legislative Council relative to the assassination of the Hon. T. D'Arcy McGee and their profound sympathy with his bereaved widow and family. Having been read by the Clerk, a resolution was passed acknowledging the receipt of the same and directing the Speaker to make a suitable reply.

A number of petitions were then presented and laid on the table.

ENQUIRY RESPECTING DEBTS OF THE MARITIME PROVINCES.

Hon. Mr. McCULLY said there was some misapprehension existing in the Maritime Provinces in reference to the state of the accounts existing between those Provinces and the Dominion Government. It was due to the Dominion Government, and also to the Local Governments, that there should be some authenticated statement made in regard to this matter, in order to disabuse the minds of many who would be willing to do justice to the Dominion Government if they were not misled by interested parties. He thought those statements were entirely erroneous, yet for the reasons named, he would enquire:

"Whether any dispute exists between the Dominion Government and the Provinces of Nova Scotia or New Brunswick, or either, and which of them, as to the amount of their respective debts on the 1st day of July last, assumed by the Dominion? Also whether any dispute exists as to such amounts at any subsequent dates? Also whether any method of settling disputes, if any exist or should arise, as to amounts of money charged or chargeable by the Dominion against the respective Provinces or vice versa is to be provided by Government?"

In the British North America Act, a provision was made for the settlement of any disputes that might arise between the Provinces of Ontario and Quebec. There was also ample room for disputes to arise between Nova Scotia and the Dominion Government, because there were certain services to which there might be some doubt as to whether they ought to be charged to the Dominion or to the Provinces, therefore, he thought it desirable that, at the earliest date, the Government should provide a disinterested tribunal to give satisfaction, so that the weaker Province would not seem to be overborne by Dominion institutions.

Hon. Mr. CAMPBELL replied that there was no dispute between the Dominion Government and the Governments of Nova Scotia and New Brunswick as to these items. In reference to a great many of these items, the Local Governments have assented, but to some they have not yet come to a decision. In regard to the other part of the question, no arrangement has been made, because any arrangement for settling disputes must come before the Local as well as the General Government, and be mutually agreed upon.

Hon. Mr. McCULLY moved "that an humble address be presented to His Excellency the Governor-General, praying that His Excellency will be pleased to cause to be laid before this House a statement, showing the debts of the Provinces of Nova Scotia and New Brunswick, to the Dominion, at the most recent date to which they have been adjusted."

Hon. Mr. CAMPBELL said he had no objection to the address, but he would suggest to his hon. friend, to omit the word "to which they have been adjusted," because they have not been adjusted.

Hon. Mr. McCULLY said he had no objection to omitting those words.

Hon. Mr. WILMOT said, so far as New Brunswick was concerned, before the first of July warrants were issued to cover almost every service upon the local treasury, and $250,000 were paid over to the Dominion Treasury on the first of July. He had been surprised to hear a statement made that a large amount had been paid on account of New Brunswick, therefore it was very desirable that a statement should be made.

The motion was then adopted.

Hon. Mr. BENSON moved, "That an humble Address be presented to His Excellency the Governor-General, praying that His Excellency will be pleased to cause to be laid before this House, all correspondence connected with the navigation of the Saint Clair Flats, or of the improvement thereof, and a statement of all money paid for that object." He said he made this motion because he had received from a person interested in the trade of the country a copy of a report made by an officer of the American Government upon the position of the navigation of the St. Clair Flats, from which it appeared that that Government has decided to abandon the old channel which was made, and to which the Canadian Government contributed $20,000, and have now contracted for a new ship canal in a more accessible position, more easy of navigation and less expensive. This canal is said to be on American territory, is only one and a half miles long, 300 feet wide and 13 feet deep at lowest water, with embankments on each side, 50 feet wide, and it will be completed in 1869. This canal will save the large expenditure necessary heretofore in crossing those flats which amounted in 1865 to the sum of $494,369, while the new canal will only cost $428,754. It is not necessary to discuss the importance of this subject to Canadian interests, or the extent of the navigation which must necessarily pass through this channel. It may be sufficient to say that in the season of navigation in 1866 the number of crafts of all description that passed through the old channel was 22,274, and 90 rafts, being an average of 86 vessels daily. The proportion of Canadian vessels is not given, but sufficient is now given to show the importance of the subject, and the necessity of securing for our shipping interests all the advantages possible to be obtained, and it was for this object he asked this address.

The motion was then put and carried.

On motion of Hon. Mr. CAMPBELL it was ordered that on to-morrow, and on every sitting thereafter, there be two distinct sittings of the House, one from three to six o'clock p. m., unless the House sooner adjourns, and another at half-past seven p.m.

The Bill intituled "An Act to confirm the amalgamation of the Commercial Bank of Canada, and the Merchants' Bank, and to amend and consolidate the Acts of incorporation of the said Banks," was read a third time and passed.

COMMITTEE REPORT.

Hon. Mr. CAMPBELL moved the adoption of the report of the Select Committee on the subject of alterations in the form of proceedings in the Senate, and said he trusted that the report now before the House would be regarded by the hon. members as very desirable. The object of those who prepared the report was to give more time for the discussion of subjects which came before the House, and it suggests a more perfect mode than we have had for attaining that object.

The report was then adopted.

AN ACT RESPECTING PENITENTIARIES.

Hon. Mr. CAMPBELL, in explaining the provisions of this Act, said that changes had been made in the law formerly in force in regard to Penitentiaries, with a view of introducing a system which had been found practical in Great Britain, and which had been attended with beneficial results. One change consisted in enabling the Governor in Council to legalize Penitentiaries in different parts of the Dominion; for instance if public works were carried on, those public works might be constituted legal Penitentiaries where convicts might be employed under the surveillance of their keepers. This would not only promote their own health and improvement, but it would be an advantage to the public to have those works carried on in this manner. In the Penitentiary system of Ireland they have intermediate penitentiaries for convicts who have spent a portion of their term in more severe labor, and, perhaps, in complete silence; but having served that portion of his time a man is allowed, as it were, for good behavior, to be removed to another intermediate prison, where the work is not so severe, and he is allowed some privileges. It would be impossible in the state of finances of this country to have intermediate prisons, therefore it is considered advisable to constitute penitentiaries and make them intermediate prisons, where convicts after serving a portion of their time, and by their conduct, entitle themselves to be considered in the way of improvement, can be sent where the work will be less and some privileges will be granted to them. There was another provision in the Bill to which he desired to call the attention of the House. It is proposed in one of the clauses of the Bill to have penal cells, because it is found by experience, and from the reports of those who have studied this question, that the true way to reform the conduct of a convict is to teach him in the first place the hardship of the sentence he is undergoing. Having been so punished if he shows a desire to conform himself to the rules of the prison, and faithfully perform his work, a certain degree of relaxation might be permitted. This would hold out to the convict a ray of hope, and it would remove what has been considered a great obstacle in the way of the successful working of our penitentiaries, inasmuch as a convict cannot hope for any change in his sentence on account of his conduct. That hope is held out by the section of the Bill which authorises the remission of the time of the sentence in accordance with his good conduct, to the extent of five days for each month. These are the principal changes made in the Bill as compared with what has hitherto been the law in Canada proper. He could not speak of the laws on this subject in the Lower Provinces, but he believed they were the same as in Canada, and have been administered with more or less success in the reformation of convicts. He would now move the second reading of the Bill.

The motion was then adopted, and it was ordered that the Bill be referred to a Committee of the whole House to-morrow.

TAKING EVIDENCE IN CANADA.

The order of the day being read for the second reading of the Bill intituled, "An Act to provide for the taking of evidence in Canada, in relation to civil and commercial matters pending before courts of justice in any of Her Majesty's Dominions, or before foreign tribunals,"

Hon. Mr. CAMPBELL said that both in Great Britain and the United States, they had a law by which evidence could be taken in these countries for suits pending in a foreign country, and they can compel the attendance of witnesses, and compel them to give evidence after they have attended. This Bill will exercise the same powers as if the suit was pending in our own courts. He would now move the second reading of the Bill.

Hon. Mr. TESSIER wished to know how evidence taken in foreign countries was to be legalized and binding in the Province of Quebec, there being such dissimilarity existing now in the laws of evidence obtaining there from those of the other Provinces of the Dominion, and other countries of the world.

Hon. Mr. CAMPBELL—The objection raised by the hon. member (Mr. Tessier) had not escaped the attention of the Government, but until one court could be established for the whole Dominion, the Government felt it necessary to pass such a law as this, and if it should be found necessary, the Province of Quebec would doubtless avail itself of the advantages of this Bill, and copy from it. All these details will adjust themselves in a short time after some trial of the present legislation.

Hon. Mr. McCULLY doubted very much whether this Legislature had the power to pass such a law, and feared that serious, if not dangerous, consequences will follow its passage if carried into effect. Such, at all events, were his apprehensions, but he would not press his objections now.

The Bill was then read a second time, and on motion of Hon. Mr. CAMPBELL was ordered to be referred to a Committee of the whole House to-morrow.

GEOLOGICAL SURVEY.

The House went into Committee of the Whole on the Bill intituled, "An Act respecting the Geological Survey of Canada,"

Hon. Mr. DUMOUCHEL in the chair.

Hon. Mr. McCULLY alluded to the provision of the Bill, allowing balances to be held over, and said it was not consistent with the principle adopted by the Government in relation to the Departments of the Civil Service, and late discussions would show how strongly the Government felt on this subject. If the objections were good and valid then, so they must be considered now, and he was at a loss to see how the Government can change their public policy on one measure of this kind, after the high grounds taken by them lately in this House.

Hon. Mr. CAMPBELL said it was found by past experience that continuity of this service was necessary to secure its value, and therefore they had voted for this service in terms of four or five years. This service had been of great benefit to the country. He had known individuals who had discovered minerals upon their farms, and not knowing the value of them, had referred to the geological report, and found information given by the best scientific men upon these minerals, which showed them that they were very valuable. This Bill proposes to extend this service to the Maritime Provinces.

Hon. Mr. FLINT wished to ask if there was any provision in the Bill for the establishment of schools for miners, in which they could be trained to assay those minerals, instead of our having to be dependent upon persons coming from the United States. It is highly important that something of this kind should be done for the purpose of developing the mineral resources of the country. He did not agree with the Postmaster-General that a great benefit had been derived from this survey. If every one who has tried to get geological information from those conducting that survey had been treated as he (Mr. Flint) had been, they would get very little information indeed. He had sent ores to them from his part of the country since 1865, but he had never yet been able to obtain the least information from that staff. He did not think the geological survey was worth the money that was bestowed upon it. He hoped the Government would take this matter into consideration, and see that some portion of this money was expended in giving information to persons, to enable them to give us proper information, otherwise we might as well save the money as to expend it in the way we do.

Hon. Mr. LETELLIER DE ST. JUST stated as a well known fact that the chemical department of the geological survey had not met the general expectations of the people of this Dominion. From one cause or another there was a general dissatisfaction with the late and present working of this important branch of the public service. It was much to be regretted that such was the case, as he considered it one of the greatest desideratums for this young country, abounding in mineral wealth, that the most competent and painstaking scientific men should be employed in making known its varied sources of hidden wealth to the world.

Hon. Mr. McCULLY spoke in high terms of the persons who were conducting this survey. He had supposed that when the Government brought down this measure they would have had some opportunity of knowing what the arrangements were, but it appeared the arrangements were to be made by the Governor in Council. In Nova Scotia they were anxious to know what amount of money was to be spent in that Province for this purpose. He trusted that when the staff was organized, and the survey was extended to Nova Scotia, they would not forget those persons of very creditable attainments in that Province who had made this science their study for many years, but that their services would be made available for the purpose of giving the Dominion the most creditable information which can be obtained in regard to its geological value. He did not wish to be understood as opposing the measure, as he approved of it, and intended to support it.

Hon. Mr. CHAPAIS said that this was one instance to show how the most scientific men of the universe may be deceived for a time regarding any new discovery. He knew for a fact that for a length of time the best chemists and most learned Geologists in Europe had agreed with Mr. Hunt that the particular ores to which reference has been made as having been referred to Mr. Hunt, were incapable of fusion. Mr. Hunt had not the required materials to make the assays or experiments desired, which is a complete justification, as far as he is concerned, if any were wanting; but the later experience has disproved that mistake, but no reproaches can be made to our staff when other eminent men with all the appliances, were in error also.

Hon. Mr. CAMPBELL said, in reference to the question put by his hon. friend (Mr. Flint), that the Government were quite alive to the importance of having a school for miners. There was no provision for taking any steps at present in this matter, but the importance of the subject would receive the attention of the Government. The remarks made in reference to the errors committed by the staff of Sir William Logan would exercise a useful and wholesome influence. The remarks which had fallen from the hon. members of the House would have great weight and secure others from falling into similar errors. Those very sands to which allusion has been made, were sent to Europe by the officers of the Hudson's Bay Company, and were pronounced valueless by scientific men. It is impossible to prevent those errors from occurring, and we must set against them the valuable result which will be derived from the salt works which have been brought into notice by Sir William Logan, and which bid fair to rival the salt works in the State of New York. He might specify numerous instances where the results of this geological survey have been most valuable to the country. He believed the arrangements of Sir William Logan would include on his staff the name of one of those persons referred to by his hon. friend (Mr. McCully), he being one of the first to bring forward men of promise from all parts of the Dominion.

The SPEAKER said when he was in Europe, in France, last year, he found men of the first scientific attainments, who all agreed in pronouncing Mr. Hunt one of the ablest chemists of the age, without exception.

The Bill was then adopted, read a third time and passed.

FOREIGN REPRINTS OF BRITISH COPYRIGHT WORKS.

The House went into Committee of the Whole on a Bill intituled, "An Act to impose a duty on Foreign Reprints of British copyright works."

(Hon. Mr. GUEVREMONT in the chair.)

Hon. Mr. RYAN would make a few remarks in reference to the first clause. It was in reference to this clause that he had suggested to the Postmaster-General the adoption of an amendment. The object of the amendment was to give to the printers and publishers of Canada an opportunity of doing what this Bill will give to the printers and publishers of the United States. At present he believed that all copies of English copyright works printed in the United States were prohibited from coming into Canada. This Bill will allow them to come in by paying 20 per cent. ad valorem, which 20 per cent. goes to the author or whoever possesses the copyright in England. It appears very natural that we should be put on the same footing as we are allowed by an Act of the Imperial Government to put the printers and publishers of the United States. This would be a benefit to us, as we would then employ our operatives doing the work which is now done in the United States, and which we admit into Canada on paying 20 per cent. to go to the author. His object was to allow our operatives to have the same privileges as those of the United States in regard to this matter. He had thought that this might be easily accomplished, but upon looking into the subject and consulting some of the legal members of the Government, he found there is a legal difficulty unfortunately in the way. The hon. gentleman then read several extracts from the law upon this point to show that this legal difficulty existed, and went on to show that these reprints of British copyright books could be more cheaply printed here than in the United States under their system of taxation. He had been told by practical printers that in Montreal if they had permission, they could publish a great number of those works not only for Canada but to compete with the United States in the United States market. This would be an advantage not only to our operatives but to the authors of those works, because they now get nothing on the numerous copies published in the United States, but only 20 per cent on those imported into Canada; if they are printed here the printer would not only have to pay this percentage upon those sold in Canada, but also upon those sold in the United States. It appeared but reasonable and right that we should by some means obtain the power of making such regulations as would confer these benefits. It was his intention to give a notice of motion to-morrow for an address to Her Majesty, praying that through the action of the Imperial Parliament we should have this power.

Hon. Mr. SANBORN did not see any necessity for an address to Her Majesty in reference to this subject; they should deal with the question themselves.

Hon. Mr. RYAN said if they could act upon it by legislation, it was well to do so, but he had consulted the law officers of the Crown, who say it is incompatible with the Copyright Acts of the British Government.

Hon. Mr. SANBORN did not so understand it; we have a perfect right to legislate upon patents, and this subject would involve the same principle. It was a matter of justice to the author that we should legislate upon it, and grant him the same privileges we do to the inventor, although it was merely a moral obligation. We are laying aside that principle of self-interest which usually influences the legislation of countries, and magnanimously conceding to the authors of those copyright works a right to have an interest in them. If we yield that principle we ought to give them a right to take out their copyright here. That would meet the objection raised, and our publishers would have privileges under the Copyright Act. The point made by his hon. friend was, that our publishers in Canada want to have the same privilege in regard to those copyrights as they have in the United States.

Hon. Mr. RYAN—There is now a penalty imposed, the right of every author being extended to all the Provinces. That copyright is pirated in the United States, and it is found difficult to prevent those publications from coming into Canada, therefore to obviate this, there is to be a duty imposed of 20 per cent., for the benefit of the author. Any one publishing a British copyright work in Canada is liable to an action.

Hon. Mr. SANBORN said the Imperial Act on this subject was of no greater force than any other Imperial Act; if this was recognized our local legislation does away with it, because under the Union Act power is given us to legislate upon the subject. He then referred to the Bill being in the interest of the authors, and not in the interest of the public, and he could not see how those who advocated the interests of the public in regard to patents for inventions, could now support this Bill.

Hon. Mr. McCULLY thought that though copyright was something for the benefit of the author, yet, no man produced a good book without its being a benefit to the public. It was a benefit to the man who read the book as well as to the man who wrote it. There was no reason why other people should take the benefit of the ability and long services of the author, and undersell the book which he has produced.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.

WEDNESDAY, May 13, 1868.

First Sitting.

The SPEAKER took the chair at eleven o'clock.

QUEBEC BENCH.

In reply to Mr. MASSON (Soulanges), who asked whether it is true that two of the judges of the Court of Queen's Bench or of the Superior Court have tendered their resignations; whether those resignations have been accepted; and whether it is intended to appoint two other persons in their places, and if so, when?

Hon. Sir J. A. MACDONALD replied, that three of these judges had tendered their resignations, which, however, the Government had not yet accepted, and would not do so until they had obtained an authority from Parliament to confer upon the retiring judges a compensating allowance.

JUDGE LAFONTAINE.

Mr. WRIGHT having moved for a Select Committee to enquire into the administration of justice in the District of Ottawa, stating that he intended following up the action of the Committee by ulterior measures,

Hon. Mr. HOLTON was of opinion that the Session was too far advanced for any practical purpose to result from the action of the Committee upon matters which had been already brought into notice and discussion two or three years ago.

Hon. Sir J. A. MACDONALD was of opinion that it would be well for the Committee to meet and organize immediately, even although, but little work could be done before the prorogation. He would propose asking the same Committee to sit and continue the enquiry next Session, and would propose that the Committee consist of the following gentlemen, viz.: Messrs. J. H. Cameron, S. Campbell, Blake, Morris, Huntington, Robitaille, Cassault, Dufresne, Webb, Pope, Dorion, Bellerose, Savary, Scatcherd, Desaulniers, and the mover, which after considerable general discussion was put and carried.

SUNDAY TRAFFIC.

Hon. Mr. ABBOTT, at great length, moved for an address requesting the closing of the Carillon and Grenville Canals on Sunday, which was seconded by Mr. ROSS (Prince Edward).

Hon. W. MACDOUGALL would not go into the general question of the propriety or impropriety of Sunday traffic, but maintained that, if one branch of public works were to be closed from operation, the same rule must apply to the remainder. The Government would willingly consent to be guided by the tendency of public opinion, of which he would desire an expression in the House. At the same time, he might say that the object of promoting public order and morality, might not be best attained by offering facilities and inducements for drunken rowdyism among the bargemen, who would be thus subjected to compulsory idleness.

Hon. Mr. DORION coincided in this opinion, narrating some disgraceful scenes witnessed by himself on the banks of the Welland Canal, and attributable to the forced inaction of Sunday legislation.

Hon. J. S. MACDONALD, amid great laughter, recounted a reminiscence of his younger days, when he had been severely, though unprofitably, taken to task for the wickedness of travelling on Sunday by a lady, who was extremely anxious to press upon him the hospitality of Saturday night. This lady lived on the banks of a canal, and was constantly being gravely shocked by the amount of Sunday labor passing before her eyes. A temporary accident occurring a few days later to the neighboring lock, compelled the cessation on the ensuing Sunday of all the traffic of which she complained, but after enduring the consequent noise and riot, and intoxication, which was forced under her observation, after finding her orchard plundered, and her poultry stolen; after having suffered all the damage to her property, which the disorderly and drunken idlers were capable of inflicting this lady came to the conclusion and maintained it ever after, that Sunday observance was desirable, and even necessary, but—that it should begin at the next lot for the future.

Mr. McKENZIE supported the motion, holding the principle of stated weekly rest to be necessary to the welfare of the community.

Hon. Mr. CONNELL and Mr. MORRIS also supported the motion, which Mr. MASSON (Soulanges) opposed in the interests of morality.

Mr. MERRITT and Mr. GIBBS would vote for the motion, the latter quoting from the Decalogue and the Anglican liturgy as arguments in its favor.

Dr. GRANT and Mr. CURRIER also supported the motion, which was then put and carried.

LAW FEES.

Hon. Mr. WOOD moved an address for copies of all minutes or orders in Council relative to fees collected in law proceedings in the Province of Ontario, which was consented to by Sir J. A. MACDONALD, and carried.

L'ISLET ELECTION.

Messrs. Simon, Caron, Connell, D. A. Macdonald and M. C. Cameron, (Chairman,) were sworn at the table to serve on the Select Committee for the trial of the L'Islet election petition.

SALARIES OF RECORDERS.

On the motion of Hon. Mr. WOOD an address was voted relative to the salaries of Recorders of the Province of Ontario.

TRINITY HOUSE.

On motion of Mr. ROBITAILLE an address was voted for copy of the answer made to the report of the Trinity House of Quebec, asked by an address of this House on the 6th inst.

BAY OF QUINTE CANAL.

On the motion of Mr. KEELER the returns to the address respecting the proposed canal between Lake Ontario and the Bay of Quinte, was referred to the Select Committee on Fisheries and Navigation.

NOVA SCOTIA MAILS.

On the motion of Mr. CAMERON (Inverness) an address was voted for copies of petitions and correspondence respecting carrying the mails across the strait of Canso.

SPECIAL COMMISSION.

Mr. BURTON moved an address for correspondence respecting issue of a Special Commission for the trial of persons accused of the assassination of the late Hon. T. D. McGee, when it being two o'clock the House adjourned.

Second Sitting.

The SPEAKER took the chair at four o'clock.

INSOLVENCY.

Sir J. A. MACDONALD introduced a Bill respecting Insolvency, which would extend to the whole Dominion the enactment of the old Province of Canada, with certain improvements as experience had suggested.

SUMMARY CRIMINAL JURISDICTION.

On motion of Sir J. A. MACDONALD the House went into Committee on the Bill for the more prompt and summary administration of justice in certain criminal cases (Hon. S. CAMPBELL in the chair,) which was reported without amendment, read a third time, and passed.

MILITIA BILL.

Sir G. E. CARTIER moved the House again into Committee on the Bill respecting the Militia and Defence of the Dominion of Canada, Hon. S. CAMPBELL in the chair.

On the 15th clause being put,

Sir GEORGE intimated that he would amend it so far as to permit in certain cases of the field officers provided for therein being non-resident in their several districts.

On clause 18 Dr. GRANT moved a resolution providing for the organization of a Special Medical Staff, arguing the great necessity for proper medical care of troops actively employed, and the impossibility of its improvisation on occasion of emergency.

Hon. Mr. JOHNSON though opposed to the military scheme altogether would be reluctant to subject the militia or volunteers to medical risk in addition to the dangers of the field. (Laughter.)

Sir G. E. CARTIER said that he was prepared to amend the clause by the insertion of the word "medical" among the number of auxiliary corps provided for, with which

Dr. GRANT expressed himself satisfied, and withdrew his resolution.

On the 36th clause being put,

Hon. Col. GRAY moved its amendment by the omission of the word "and Colonels appointed by commission, signed by the Commander of Her Majesty's regular forces in Canada, shall command colonels of militia whatever be the dates of their respective commissions." It would be so manifestly unjust that an officer newly arriving in the coun should be permitted to supersede old and tried officers, that he must conclude that the clause slipped in by mistake, or, if contained in the old Canada enactment, had probably never had attention drawn to it before.

Hon. Mr. HOLTON remarked that he had himself challenged this same provision as long ago as 1854.

Sir G. E. CARTIER said that the Mutiny Act of the Kingdom required such a provision.

The amendment not being pressed, the clause was then agreed to, as also were the remaining, as far as No. 40, when it being six o'clock, the Speaker left the chair.

After Recess.

DIVORCE.

Mr. WORKMAN having moved the second reading of the Bill for the relief of Joseph Frederick Whiteaves (from Senate),

Hon. Mr. IRVINE pointed out that the Bill had obtained its progress hitherto in a manner not in conformity with English precedent or by our own practice. It was not founded on any evidence adduced before the Legislature, but upon the testimony of witnesses examined at Montreal, in course of a proceeding instituted for an object of considerably minor importance—the securing of a judicial separation.

Mr. SCATCHERD thought that there could be no doubt of the facts of the allegations which had been indubitably established, and thought that it would be unjust and oppressive to deny the relief sought for.

Sir J. A. MACDONALD said that it was true that the House of Lords (before the creation of the Court of Probate and Divorce) required testimony upon such cases to be given at the bar, but this was because they sat as a Court of Justice, the highest in the land, and were bound by the rules of all English Courts in which evidence was taken viva voce. In the present case he could see no grounds for any impeachment of the evidence relied upon. Even if it was competent for the House to impugn the action of the Senate, and he considered the case to be one in which any gentleman who could conscientiously vote for any measure of divorce could fairly be expected to support the Bill, which provided a necessary relief to the applicant from the unfortunate tie which bound him. He would take the opportunity of expressing himself to be strongly averse to the institution of any divorce court, for which there existed no necessity in this country. It was only the great expense attendant on proceedings in the House of Lords—sufficient to debar any but the very wealthy from the redress to be there obtained—which had called for such an establishment in England; here, where these expenses did not exist, such a court was unnecessary, and would only serve as an inducement to conjugal infidelities.

The House then divided on the motion for the second reading with the following result: Yeas 72; Nays 48; after which the Bill was read a second time, committed, and passed.

BANKING IN NOVA SCOTIA.

Mr. JONES (Halifax), in the absence of Mr. Savary, having moved the second reading of the Bill respecting the banks of the Province of Nova Scotia, the object of which was to authorise the issue of notes of smaller denomination than those at present legalized ($20.)

Hon. J. ROSE said that the whole subject of banking legislation was under the consideration of the Government, who would be prepared with an early measure for its regulation, and therefore, as the Bill could only remain in operation for a few months, he hoped that it would not be passed.

Mr. JONES urged the injustice of allowing the Banks of his Province to remain in the meantime subject to restrictions from which those of the other Provinces were exempt. The former had to bear all the legislative burthens imposed upon the latter. The Government having failed to propose any measure by which an equitable generalization of Bank privileges could be secured, it was his duty to protest against the unfairness of permitting the continuance of such exceptional restriction upon the course of business in Nova Scotia, and to urge, therefore, the second reading of the Bill.

Hon. Mr. HOLTON thought that the subject was one for fair investigation by the Committee on Banking and Commerce, and would therefore support the motion.

Hon. Mr. ROSE having consented, on the understanding that the Government should not be held as acquiescent in the principle involved, which they desired to leave entirely to the Committee.

The Bill was read a second time and referred to the Standing Committee, to which, on the motion of Hon. Mr. HOLTON, the names of Messrs. Jones, (Halifax), Wood and Dunkin were added.

MILITIA BILL.

The House having again gone into Committee upon the Militia Bill, (Hon. S. CAMPBELL in the chair), the remaining clauses, with the exception of the money clauses, which had been reserved, were agreed to after some general discussion, and after the proposal of an amendment by Mr. CARTWRIGHT, upon clause 61, which was negatived, and the Committee then rose and reported.

The SPEAKER then read a message from His Excellency, recommending the consideration of resolutions providing as follows, viz.: that the salaries of the Deputy Minister of Militia, and of the other officers of the Department, be fixed by the Governor in Council; that the salary of the Adjutant-General be $3,600; of the Deputy Adjutant-General at headquarters, $2,600; of each of the District Deputy Adjutant-General, $1,800; and providing also for the other necessary expenses of militia and defence, and for the administration of the organization generally.

Hon. Mr. HOLTON having intimated that it was not intended to offer any opposition at this stage, the House again went into committee, when the resolutions were agreed to.

JUVENILE OFFENDERS.

On the motion of Sir J. A. MACDONALD the House then went into committee on the Bill for the more speedy trial and punishment of juvenile offenders, (Mr. BODWELL in the chair,) which was agreed to, and ordered for a third reading to-morrow, (this day.)

CIVIL SERVICE BILL.

The Bill respecting the Civil Service was also committed, and, after considerable general discussion, read a third time and passed, after which

CONSOLIDATED REVENUE.

The amendments made in Committee of the Whole on the Bill respecting the Consolidated Revenue Fund were, on the motion of Hon. Mr. ROSE, concurred in, and the third reading ordered for to-morrow, (this day).

DEPARTMENTAL SALARIES.

The House having gone into Committee to consider resolutions respecting the salaries and allowances attached to certain offices therein mentioned, (Hon. Mr. BLANCHET in the chair).

Hon. Mr. HOLTON criticized the great number of the departments of the Dominion organization, and thought that the principle of paying equal salaries to all Ministers was indefensible and absurd. Several Ministerial offices were of very minor importance, and quite below the capabilities of their hon. occupants, and he held that the remuneration attached to these should not be made as large as that of the more serious Cabinet portfolios.

Mr. J. RYMAL had taken some trouble to make a few calculations, which although not usually dealing in the House with figures and, for that reason dealing perhaps unskilfully, he would proceed to quote from. We were now a first class power (laughter,) and he would compare our proportionate administrative expenses with those of other first class nations. Great Britain with 30 millions of population, with 658 members of Parliament, and with 360 millions of revenue, had 15 Heads of Department; or in the proportion of one to every two millions of people, to every 44 members of the Commons, and to every 23 millions of revenue. This basis of calculation, if adopted here, would give us two Heads for our population, and taking into account the comparative extent of their business and the amount of money which they handled, only one. (Laughter.) The United States had 30 millions of population, 240 members of the popular branch of legislature, and 7 Heads of Departments; or in the proportion of one to every 4 millions of people, to every 33 representatives, and to every 70 millions of revenue. In France, a country with which we had some affinity, numbering among our population a considerable proportion of her gay, gallant, and refined people, (a laugh) represented in the Cabinet by our Minister for War (much laughter), there was a population of 35 millions, with a Corps Legislatif of 283 members, and a revenue of 375 millions of dollars. For all these there were but 11 Heads Department, or one to every 3¼ million of people, to every 26 legislators, to every 34 millions of revenue. The same basis of calculation would give Canada one head as regards to population, but as regards revenue, one of their heads was worth two of ours. (Great laughter.) Each of their heads represented as large a revenue as it took all of our fifteen to manage together. How did it happen that the minister for war was of only one 15th the capacity of his countrymen at home, and was his degeneracy to be traced to the accident of his having been born in Canada? Our 13 heads represented each but 300,000 people, and but 13 members of Parliament. Indeed he was well aware that some of the 13 could not command the adhesion of nearly so large a number. (Cheers and laughter.) He could point to three or four whose influence was less extensive. He would prefer to see the salaries of the 13 divided among 7, a number which would be quite sufficient, and each of whom might be more adequately paid; and he could not understand why the Minister for Finance could not manage his revenue single-handed as in old Canada. It was as easy to say millions as thousands, and he had only to reckon up the figures. (Laughter.) It must be remembered too, that the other Governments with which he had made comparison, had duties to discharge from which ours was altogether free, had diplomatic relations to maintain which we had not yet made our way to. He was therefore compelled to one of two conclusions; either that we had a greater number of Ministers than was necessary, or that they were men of very inferior calibre, and judging from their performances, he inclined to the latter opinion. (Much Laughter.) They could not have the hardihood to assert that their affairs were in a creditable state when they were compelled to propose so many new measures of legislation to set them right—to rescue them from their position of topsy turvey, all heads and points. In closing these few financial statements (loud laughter) he would repeat his opinion that Heads of Department should be well paid, should receive $5,000 if they deservered it, or even $10,000 on the same condition, but he still maintained that their number was a mischievous absurdity, and a direct contradiction to the impression sought to be established previous to Confederation that the removal of the Crown Lands would greatly lessen the work of the General Government. That impression had succeeded in laying hold of his unsophisticated mind, but he had since lived to see the hope he had so fondly cherished dispelled. (Laughter.) He went on to refer to the multiplicity of governing bodies existing in Ontario, and asked what would be the fate of any private individual living so far above his means as we were being forced to exceed ours. The Lord knew, and they knew, and the people knew, that the way taxation was being piled on by the Dominion Government, was a caution to weak minds. (Loud and continued laughter.)

The first resolution was then put and passed, after which considerable discussion ensued upon the second, mainly between Hon. Mr. HOLTON, Hon. J. S. MACDONALD, Mr. SCATCHERD, Mr. McKENZIE, and Sir J. A. MACDONALD, the salaries and position of County Judges taking up the greater share of attention.

Finally this and the remaining resolutions were adopted, and the Committee rose and reported, when, the reception being ordered for the next sitting, and Hon. Mr. HOLTON having given notice that he would then ask the Government whether any information, and what, had been received from our envoy extraordinary at the Court of St. James, respecting his mission, and also from the Imperial Government regarding the Incorporation of the Northwest Territory, the House adjourned at five minutes past one this morning.
